Eye on Korea James V. Young, 2003 Colonel James V Young one of the American military's first area specialists spent almost twenty years in Asia including fourteen in Korea In this memoir he writes with the expertise of an old Korea hand about a period that saw South Korea make the transition from an agrarian economy to a modern industrial state Young volunteered in 1969 for a new program aimed at creating area specialists within the military In 1975 after four years of training in Korean language and culture he witnessed how American diplomats convinced Park Chung Hee the South Korean president not to develop his own nuclear weapons Later from the perspective of a military attache Young saw the mistrust that characterized U S Korean relations during the 1970s He provides new insights into the intrigue and behind the scenes efforts to derail President Jimmy Carter's troop withdrawal policies and he argues that the United States was caught flat footed by such crucial episodes as the coup of 1979 and the arrest of Gen Chung Sung Hwa in what became known as the 12 12 Incident He provides on the scene observations of the imposition of martial law and the Kwangju incident that followed when security forces ran amok during protests in the city and killed and wounded hundreds of civilians Further his insider account of dealing with North Korean senior leaders in both diplomatic negotiations and business settings makes a unique contribution to understanding the internal dynamics within this secretive state Young's memoir straddles the line between military and diplomatic history Those interested in the region the

On the Outskirts of Form

Michael Davidson, 2012-01-01 This new book by eminent scholar Michael Davidson gathers his essays concerning formally innovative poetry from modernists such as Mina Loy George Oppen and Wallace Stevens to current practitioners such as Cristina Rivera Garza Heriberto Ypez Lisa Robertson and Mark Nowak The book considers poems that challenge traditional poetic forms and in doing so trouble normative boundaries of sexuality subjectivity gender and citizenship At the heart of each essay is a concern with the politics of form the ways that poetry has been enlisted in the constitution and critique of community Davidson speculates on the importance of developing cultural poetics as an antidote to the personalist and expressivist treatment of postwar poetry A comprehensive and versatile collection On the Outskirts of Form places modern and contemporary poetics in a cultural context to reconsider the role of cultural studies and globalization in poetry

Artistic Transfer Ursula Bertram, 2018-11-09 Non conformist non linear unruly thought and action have always led to great works of art pathbreaking inventions and forward looking perspectives But how can this precious good find its way into our everyday working life to help us deal with social ecological and economic challenges The crucial step Ursula Bertram contends is to reach a synergy of logically justifiable knowledge and the capacity to navigate in open systems To find out how such synergy could come about Ursula Bertram has observed the strategies and principles of artists choreographers musicians and unruly thinkers and compared them with the statements of physicists mathematicians managers and researchers She shows that when artistic thought is circulated and probed in non artistic fields an extremely efficient pattern called artistic transfer emerges With contributions by Werner Preising and others

Peace by Design Dawn Brancati, 2009 Why does political decentralization reduce intrastate conflict more in some countries than in others Can political institutions be designed to engender peace If so how Addressing these questions Dawn Brancati's Peace by Design advances the current debate on decentralization beyond a discussion of whether or not decentralization is effective in reducing conflict to when and under what conditions it is successful The book bridges opposing views while offering an original one arguing that decentralization's ability to reduce conflict hinges on the electoral strength of regional parties which in turn varies according to different institutional features of decentralization Various aspects of political systems likewise affect the extent to which regional parties stimulate conflict and conversely the degree to which statewide parties mitigate it Rich in scholarly as well as policymaking insights and grounded in extensive qualitative and quantitative research Peace by Design illuminates the exigent issue of how to design political institutions in order to promote peace Dawn Brancati is an Assistant Professor at Washington University in St Louis Previously she taught at Harvard University and held fellowships from the Harvard MIT Data Center and the Center for the Study of Democratic Politics at Princeton University

Selling Sustainability Short? Janina Grabs, 2020-05-14 Can private standards bring about more sustainable production practices This question is of interest to conscientious consumers academics studying the effectiveness of private regulation and corporate social responsibility practitioners alike Grabs provides an answer by combining an impact evaluation of 1 900 farmers with rich qualitative evidence from the coffee sectors of Honduras Colombia and Costa Rica Identifying an institutional design dilemma that private sustainability standards encounter as they scale up this book shows how this dilemma plays out in the coffee industry It highlights how the erosion of price premiums and the adaptation to buyers preferences have curtailed standards effectiveness in promoting sustainable practices that create economic opportunity costs for farmers such as agroforestry or agroecology It also provides a voice for coffee producers and value chain members to explain why the current system is failing in its mission to provide environmental social and economic co benefits and what changes are necessary to do better

Comparative Models of Development Howard J. Wiarda Ph.D., 2017-09-05 Howard J

Wiarda who was the Dean Rusk Professor of International Relations at the School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Georgia outlines a paradigm shift in world politics that has been driven by two overarching trends the shift from a U S and Western favored model of development to different models and the decline of a Western system of world order In examining these two trends he seeks to answer questions such as Why are the gaps increasing rather than shrinking between the rich and the poor both within countries and between the developed countries and developing ones Why have some countries and regions adapted to the newer pressures of globalization democratization and new markets and others have not Why does the Middle East Southeast Asia Sub Saharan Africa and much of Latin America still lag behind while others are forging ahead By taking a regional view of development and international relations the author challenges the view that one theoretical framework can explain the economic social and foreign policy approaches of all countries
