

Summary of Chapter 11 of Procedures in Marriage and Family Therapy by Brock and Barnard

- I. Referral and Consultation Procedures
 - a. Accepting Referrals p.193-194 for all points
 - i. Sometimes the referring person can be invited to the first session.
 1. during that session the involvement with the family can be assessed and future roles and expectations can be agreed upon by all
 - ii. if the referring person was a therapist it is important to find out what was helpful and effective along with that was ineffective.
 - iii. It is good to find out why the referral was made now
 - iv. It is nice to send the referring person a thank you in some way.
 - b. Making Referrals p 194-196 for all points
 - i. Make a referral if:
 1. the therapist or family is relocating
 - a. it is helpful for the therapist to give a first hand account to the new therapist
 - i. have the clients sign a release of information so you are able to give information to the next therapist
 - b. use AAMFT if the family is relocating or ask colleagues if they know of anyone in the area they respect
 2. the clients presents a unique problem requiring that a different orientation or specialty become clinically involved
 - a. an example of this would be an eating disorder
 3. the therapist and or family determine they are unable to negotiate a viable therapeutic contract
 - a. some families and therapist simply do not "connect" and that is when it is helpful to refer out
 - c. Introducing a cotherapist p196-197 for all points
 - i. A cotherapist may be introduced into the system or may replace a therapist who is leaving
 - ii. It is vital to have at least one session where both are present
 1. this time can be used to say goodbye and to identify accomplishments to be made
 - iii. There are times when a cotherapist is invited in because the therapist is "stuck" or the family wants new input or they are facilitating training/supervisory process, or choosing as a matter of preference to function in a team
 1. in the first session the cotherapist should encourage the couple to share about their experiences so far
 2. it is important that the cotherapist monitor their ego needs and not be offended if the family is more attentive to their old therapist.

Procedures In Marriage And Family Therapy:

Procedures in Marriage and Family Therapy Gregory W. Brock, Charles P. Barnard, 1999 Most writing in marriage and family therapy presents readers with an established system of how to change families so as to relieve the symptoms of the stress they are suffering. The reader is encouraged to follow a rigid system and adopt one particular theoretical basis for bringing about change. The authors' two hands-on teachers offer something different. They are sharing a clinical anthropologist's view of what happens when a family interacts with a professional who has dallied with the fads but finds success in doing what works. The authors have gathered data and organized it into a multifaceted notebook with value for both the novice and more experienced therapist. Hidden behind the descriptions of what to do and when readers can see the message of gentle care offered to families in pain. Topics covered include first contact procedures, assessment, initial and middle stage treatment procedures, procedures for challenging sessions, and more. A resource all clinicians can draw upon, especially those early in their careers and those just beginning as marriage and family therapists.

An Introduction to Marriage and Family Therapy Joseph L. Wetchler, Lorna L. Hecker, 2014-08-27 Now in its second edition, this text introduces readers to the rich history and practice of Marriage and Family Therapy with 32 professionals from across the US presenting their knowledge in their areas of expertise. This blend of approaches and styles gives this text a unique voice and makes it a comprehensive resource for graduate students taking their first course in Marriage and Family Therapy. The book is divided into three sections. Part 1 focuses on the components on which 21st century family therapy is based and summarizes the most recent changes made to not only therapeutic interventions but to the very concept of family. Part 2 presents an overview of the 7 major theoretical models of the field: structural, strategic, Milan, social constructionist, experiential, transgenerational, and cognitive behavioral family therapy. Each chapter in this section focuses on the founder of the theory, its theoretical tenants, and its key techniques. Shows how the model focuses on diversity. Presents the research that supports the approach. Part 3 addresses specific treatment areas that are common to marriage and family therapists such as sex therapy, premarital therapy, research, and ethics and legal issues. As an introduction to the field of Marriage and Family Therapy, this volume stands above the rest. Not only will readers gain an understanding of the rich history of the field and its techniques, but they will also see a complete picture of the context in which families are embedded, such as gender, culture, spirituality, and sexual orientation. This knowledge is the key to understanding what differentiates Marriage and Family Therapy from individual psychotherapy. Glossaries, case studies, tables, figures, and appendices appear generously throughout the text to present this information and give students a thorough overview to prepare them for their professional lives.

Shueman, Benjamin B. Wolman, 2012-12-06 Family and marital therapies are rapidly becoming highly used methods of treatment of mental disorders and are no longer ancillary methods to individual psychotherapy The last few decades have brought about an increasing awareness of the fact that excluding organic etiology practically all mental disorders are caused fostered and or related to faulty interpersonal relations As a rule the earlier in life one is exposed to noxious factors the more severe is the damage Thus early child parents and child siblings interactions are highly relevant determinants of mental health and mental disorder Moreover parents themselves do not live in a vacuum Their marital interaction significantly contributes to their own mental health or to its decline and parent child relationships are greatly influenced by the nature of intraparental relationships Parental discord conflicts and abandonment affect the child s personality development Thus family and marital therapy is more than therapy it is an important contribution to the prevention of mental disorder The present volume is comprised of three parts The first primarily theoretical analyzes the fundamental aspects of marital and family therapy The second part describes the various therapeutic techniques and the last deals with several specific issues It gives me great pleasure to acknowledge my gratitude to my coeditor Dr George Stricker Without his thorough and devoted efforts this volume could not have come into being I am also profoundly indebted to our consulting editors Dr James Framo Dr Applied Ethics and Decision Making in Mental Health Michael Moyer, Charles Crews, 2016-06-22 Applied Ethics and Decision Making in Mental Health covers ACA APA and AAMFT codes of ethics in an easy to read format that applies ethical standards to real life scenarios Authors Michael Moyer and Charles Crews not only focus on the various aspects of legal issues and codes of ethics but also include ethical decision making models and exploration into the philosophy behind ethical decision making By challenging readers to understand their own morals values and beliefs this in depth guide encourages critical thinking real world application and classroom discussion using case illustrations exercises and examples of real dialogue in every chapter The Art of Jungian Couples Therapy Elizabeth Éowyn Nelson,Anthony Delmedico,2025-07-16 Within this accessible volume Nelson and Delmedico apply a Jungian approach to provide fresh ways of thinking about couples therapy and the profound unconscious forces at play when couples create a life together The Art of Jungian Couples Therapy offers new perspectives into thinking about what is happening in the consulting room which the authors re imagine as a sacred space or temenos guiding partners toward psychological wholeness or what Jung termed the Self The book offers welcome insights into how therapists can work with the complex and often intense energies that arise when two people cross the threshold of the clinical space As art in the title suggests it draws the therapist s attention to the souls of the partners and the soul of the relationship itself Firmly grounded in Jungian thought yet intimate approachable and up to date the book will be an indispensable guide for professional marriage and family therapists psychoanalysts from both Jungian and Freudian schools counseling psychologists and licensed social workers who already practice couples therapy or have considered working with couples Issues in Family and Geriatric Psychology: 2011 Edition ,2012-01-09 Issues in Family and Geriatric Psychology 2011 Edition is a ScholarlyEditions eBook that delivers timely authoritative and comprehensive information about Family and Geriatric Psychology The editors have built Issues in Family and Geriatric Psychology 2011 Edition on the vast information databases of ScholarlyNews You can expect the information about Family and Geriatric Psychology in this eBook to be deeper than what you can access anywhere else as well as consistently reliable authoritative informed and relevant The content of Issues in Family and Geriatric Psychology 2011 Edition has been produced by the world s leading scientists engineers analysts research institutions and companies All of the content is from peer reviewed sources and all of it is written assembled and edited by the editors at ScholarlyEditions and available exclusively from us You now have a source you can cite with authority confidence and credibility More information is available at <http://www.ScholarlyEditions.com> Handbook of Marriage and the Family Marvin B. Sussman,Suzanne K. Steinmetz,Gary W. Peterson,2013-06-29 To know where we are going as scholars educators and practitioners in the field of marriage and family life we first need to know where we have been A perusal of early texts on marriage and family life provides some thought provoking insights into the accuracy of the saying what goes around comes around It is interesting to note who has been considered to be in a position to provide information on marriage and family life Included in the eclectic collection of texts we reviewed were ministers whose focus was on spirituality doctors who emphasized medical aspects of child and adult health and public health professionals and home economists concerned with fighting disease who emphasized cleanliness order fighting germs and eliminating rodents and insects There are also philosophers who drew from ancient texts when discussing family life and a count who assembled a group of German intellectual elites to address various topics An insightful essay of this type is by Marta Karlweis 1926 in which she notes There is no other fetish that society holds to so firmly as the conception woman with all its usual associations of infantilism and dependence The child requires protection is a minor and consequently a serf but above all it possesses no spiritual existence Neither doctorates or other distinctions nor the right to vote have as yet been able to dispel this sweet idea of the childishness of woman which man cherishes p
