Black Power at Work David Goldberg, Trevor Griffey, 2011-05-02 Black Power at Work chronicles the history of direct action campaigns to open up the construction industry to black workers in the 1960s and 1970s The book's case studies of local movements in Brooklyn Newark the Bay Area Detroit Chicago and Seattle show how struggles against racism in the construction industry shaped the emergence of Black Power politics outside the U S South In the process community control of the construction industry especially government War on Poverty and post rebellion urban reconstruction projects became central to community organizing for black economic self determination and political autonomy The history of Black Power's community organizing tradition shines a light on more recent debates about job training and placement for unemployed underemployed and underrepresented workers Politicians responded to Black Power protests at federal construction projects by creating modern affirmative action and minority set aside programs in the late 1960s and early 1970s but these programs relied on voluntary compliance by contractors and unions government enforcement was inadequate and they were not connected to jobs programs Forty years later the struggle to have construction jobs serve as a pathway out of poverty for inner city residents remains an unfinished part of the struggle for racial justice and labor union reform in the United States

Knowledge & Power in the Global Economy David Gabbard, 2017-07-05 Advancing a three fold political agenda this volume illuminates how the meanings assigned to a whole vocabulary of words and phrases frequently used to discuss the role and reform of U S public schools reflect an essentially economic view of the world contends that education or educational reform conducted under an economized worldview will only intensify the effects of the colonial relations of political and economic domination that it breeds at home and abroad and offers a set of alternative concepts and meanings for reformulating the role of U S public schools and for considering the implications of such a reformulation more generally for the underlying premises of all human relationships and activities Toward these ends the authors in Part I critically examine many of the most commonly used terms within the rhetoric of educational reform since the early 1980s and before Part II links today's economized worldview to curricular and instructional issues These essays are especially important for comprehending how the organization of school curriculum privileges those disciplines deemed most central to market expansion math and science and how the political centrality of the economic sphere influences the nature of the knowledge presented in specific content areas Given that language constrains as well as advances human thought the twin tasks of de economizing education and decolonizing society will require a vocabulary that transcends the familiar terminologies addressed in Parts I and II The entries in Part III cultivate the beginnings of such a vocabulary as the authors elucidate innovative concepts which they view as central to the creation of truly alternative educational visions and practices Annual Report of the Dominion Water Power and Reclamation Service Canada.
