Architects, Angels, Activists and the City of Bath, 1765-1965 Cynthia Imogen Hammond, 2012 Approaching the past as both historian and artist Cynthia Imogen Hammond documents how women across classes shaped the built environment of one of England's most architecturally significant cities Architects Angels Activists and the City of Bath 1765 1965 Engaging with Women's Spatial Interventions in Buildings and Landscape documents Hammond's own creative spatial interventions in the city through which she brings the history of women to the foreground of Bath's urban image The Evangelicals at Oxford, 1735-1871 John Stewart Reynolds, 1975 The Collected Letters of William Morris, Volume IV William Morris, 2014-07-14 These volumes bring to a close the only comprehensive edition of the surviving correspondence of William Morris 1834 1896 a protean figure who exerted a major influence as poet craftsman master printer and designer Volumes III and IV taken together give in detail the comments and observations that articulate his problematic political and artistic stands and equally problematic position within the aesthetic movement as it developed in the 1890s Most eloquently voiced also are the complexities of his troubled marriage and his devotion to his epileptic daughter Jenny and his other daughter May But dominating all these themes organizing and structuring them are the Kelmscott Press and the building of Morris's important library of medieval manuscripts and early printed books The letters record the way in which the Press becomes not only the center of Morris's aesthetic ambitions and achievements but also the site for his closest human relations and for much of his connecting with the makers of early modernism The letters in Volumes III and IV are thoroughly annotated and through texts and notes provide a new assessment of Morris's career Included also as appendices to Volume IV are two important documents the first never before published is F S Ellis's Valuation List of Morris's library made after Morris's death and the second never before reprinted is the text of what was to be Morris's final essay on socialism published in April 1896 Originally published in 1996 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 Towards World Heritage Melanie Hall, 2016-02-24

Historic preservation whether of landscapes or buildings was an important development of the nineteenth century in many countries. There is however surprisingly little understanding about how it took place and research into it is narrowly focused. For example generally landscape preservation from this time is examined separately from buildings preservation is seen in terms of national narratives or considered within the contexts of area studies and it is usually seen from a specific disciplinary perspective. All of these later categorizations did not apply at the time and consequently a very partial view is achieved. In order to begin unlocking a very complex phenomenon that has helped to define our own age this dynamic collection of essays brings together an international and transdisciplinary line up of academics and practitioners to reconsider preservation's origins in the second half of the nineteenth and early part of the twentieth century. With a focus on Britain and the British Empire and including case studies from the United States Canada Sweden France Germany Sri Lanka The Holy Land and Turkey this book places preservation in imperial international and national contexts demonstrating that there was far more interaction between different countries in this arena than may be supposed and revealing remarkable but hitherto hidden overlaps and intersections. It examines three main themes the influence of religion the political and sub diplomatic aspects of preservation and the professionalization of preservation practice. Internationalizing trends already existed through the churches the universities and the diplomatic services as well as familial ties that had an important impact on preservation's epistemic communities and its targets. Other internationalizing factors include an interest in national histories and the histories of architecture and art particularly when known through illustration a growing interest in biography especially of founding fathers or famous literary figures and tourism. Although the focus is on architectural preservation this book demonstrates that in this formative period the preservation of buildings and landscapes needs to be considered together as it often was at the time and in context. The conclusion reached is that the preservation movement has to be understood in imperial and international contexts rather than in simply national or regional ones.

Victorian Perceptions of Renaissance Architecture Katherine Wheeler, 2017-07-05. In the mid 1880s The Builder an influential British architectural journal published an article characterizing Renaissance architecture as a corrupt bastardization of the classical architecture of Greece and Rome. By the turn of the century however the same journal praised the Renaissance architect Filippo Brunelleschi as the Christopher Columbus of modern architecture. Victorian Perceptions of Renaissance Architecture 1850-1914 examines these conflicting characterizations and reveals how the writing of architectural history was intimately tied to the rise of the professional architect and the formalization of architectural education in late nineteenth century Britain. Drawing on a broad range of evidence including literary texts professional journals university curricula and census records Victorian Perceptions reframes works by seminal authors such as John Ruskin Walter Pater John Addington Symonds and Geoffrey Scott alongside those by architect authors such as William J Anderson and Reginald Blomfield within contemporary architectural debates. Relevant for architectural historians as well as literary scholars and those in Victorian studies. Victorian

Perceptions reassesses the history of Renaissance architecture within the formation of a modern British architectural profession British Architecture 1760-1914 Geoffrey Tyack, 2023-04-18 This volume of primary sources examine British architectural history from 1830 1914 The collection contains a mixture of architectural treatises biographical material on architects works on different types of building and contemporary descriptions of individual buildings This title will be of great interest to students of Art History and Architecture "Architects, Angels, Activists and the City of Bath, 1765-1965"

Cynthia Imogen Hammond, 2017-07-05 A unique contribution to the architectural and social history of Bath Architects Angels Activists and the City of Bath 1765 1965 Engaging with Women's Spatial Interventions in Buildings and Landscape approaches the past with the methods of the architectural historian and the site specific interventions of the contemporary artist Looking beyond and behind Bath's strategic marshalling of its past Cynthia Imogen Hammond presents the ways in which women across classes shaped the built environment and designed landscapes of one of England's most architecturally significant cities This study argues that Bath's efforts to preserve itself as an idealized Georgian town reveal an aesthetics of exclusion Jane Austen may be well known but the role of historic women in the creation of this city has had minimal treatment within the city's collective public memory This book is an intervention into this memory the author uses site specific works of public art as strategic counterparts to her historical readings Through them she aims to transform as well as critique the urban image of Bath At once a performative literature an extensively researched history and an alternative guide to the city Architects Angels Activists engages with current struggles over urban signification in Bath and beyond
