HANSON ((Ed.)), 1983 Recombinant DNA Research and the Human Prospect Earl D. cancer research from the 1950s to the 1980s and was a leader in calling for scientists to accept an educational and advisory responsibility to the public. In return he believed the public should rely on science to strengthen social and political institutions. Luria was born in Italy where the Fascists came to power when he was ten. He left Italy for France due to the antisemitic Race Laws of 1938 and then fled as a Jewish refugee from Nazi Europe making his way to the United States. Once an American citizen, Luria became a grassroots activist on behalf of civil rights, labor representation, nuclear disarmament, and American military disengagement from the Vietnam and Gulf Wars. Luria joined the MIT faculty in 1960 and was the founding director of the Center for Cancer Research. Throughout his life he remained as passionate about his engagement with political issues as about his science and continued to fight for peace and freedom until his death. Genetic Engineering

Mark Y. Herring, 2005-12-30 Genetic engineering has quickly become one of the more controversial issues of our time. Herring provides a detailed history of the debate in a fair and balanced manner using proponents' points of view to make individual cases both pro and con. Narrative chapters cover such topics as the Human Genome Project, gene splicing, cloning, genetically altered foods, and DNA and crime solving. Students and the general public will find a comprehensive survey of the genetic engineering debate. Appendices include statements from Robert P. George and Peter Singer, two of the most prominent scholars on the subject, and a bibliography of print and electronic resources for further research. Nature Remade Luis A. Campos, Michael R. Dietrich, Tiago Saraiva, Christian C. Young, 2021-07-16 In this fourth volume in our Convening Science series with the Marine Biological Laboratory, contributors including historians, biologists, and philosophers explore the development of bioengineering. The essays show how engineering is both a means to a functional end and a method of learning about the world. The book is organized around three themes: controlling and reproducing, knowing and making, and envisioning, to chart the increasing sophistication of our engineering of biological systems and to change our sense of the scales at which engineering occurs, to include not just genetics but also ecosystem-level intervention. The volume will attempt to make the case for the centrality of engineering for understanding and imagining modern life. Draft Programmatic Environmental Impact Statement, 1988 Sci-Tech Library Networks Within Organizations Ellis

Mount, 1988 This fascinating volume offers thorough descriptions of sci-tech library networks in which their members have a common sponsorship or ownership. Library networks exist in such great quantity and diversity now that it is not difficult to identify many types of them. Corporate library networks at T Xerox and General Electric and federal government networks at NASA and FEDLINE are the focus here as the authors present the history, development, and activities of these networks. A library network for health sciences libraries that use OCLC is also scrutinized. The Experiences and Challenges of Science and Ethics, 2003-01-01 In April 2002 the U.S. National Academies hosted an interacademy workshop involving participants from the United States and Iran on the topic of Science and Ethics. The explicit purposes of the workshop were a) to engage important members of the American and Iranian scientific communities in meaningful discussions of the topic of science and ethics and particularly differences in the approaches in the west and in Islamic countries in general and Iran in particular b to encourage greater participation by Iranian scientists in international scientific discussions by exposing them to seasoned veterans in international meetings and c to identify specific topics and approaches that could be carried out by the Academies in the two countries to contribute to international understanding of the importance of considering the ethical dimensions of scientific research and related activities This report includes documents prepared by four breakout groups and a statement on priority areas for future interacademy cooperation developed at the final plenary session Also included are background papers prepared by some participants prior to the workshop that were not previously published

The Second Tree Elaine Dewar, 2010-07-07 The Second Tree documents a biological revolution that will change the way you think about the material world your own life and even the inevitability of your own death Genetic scientists are busily pushing back the boundaries of the humanly possible climbing the branches of a tree of life that has been grafted by man not God Elaine Dewar chronicles the lives the discoveries and the feuds among modern biologists exploring how they have crafted the tools to alter human evolution She travels the globe on the trail of Charles Darwin and his intellectual descendants telling the story of James D Watson and his partner Francis Crick who first described DNA of Frederick Sanger who invented how to sequence genes and won two Nobel prizes of the computer scientists who put the human genome on the World Wide Web She visits companies that are trying to turn cloned sheep into pharmacies on the hoof to resurrect prize cows from the grave to transplant human genes into mice ultimately attempting to give us immortality in pieces while trying to keep investors happy As these tales spill out we find out how biologists learn by doing tearing mice and worms and flies and human eggs apart twinning disparate animal cells and genes together creating clones and chimeras as outlandish as any sphinx In public research biologists often express their good intentions about curing the big diseases In private many of them are compelled by furious struggles to be rich famous and first Dewar lays bare the motives conflicts and fears of the men and women whose job it is to trespass the boundaries of what laypeople consider ethical and sacred
