

Stage Model of Recovery for Chemically Dependent Adolescents: Part 1—Methods and Model†

Dean Blumberg, Ph.D., M.F.T.*

Abstract—This qualitative study, presented in two parts, refines the model of how chemically dependent adolescents initiate and engage in the recovery process. Part 1 describes the research process and results used to derive the model. The model was derived from theory grounded in verbatim reports of 30 chemically dependent participants who first attempted recovery from chemical dependence during adolescence. The constant comparative method of grounded theory was used to analyze the data. This stage model of adolescent recovery includes the using/precontemplation, transition, early recovery, and ongoing recovery stages; the transition stage is divided into contemplation and action phases. The stages, phases, and significant events are similar, but not identical to, those presented in adult-based models of recovery from chemical dependence. In Part 2, the resulting theory is compared with extant theories on stages of recovery in chemically dependent adults; treatment implications for the adolescent population are reviewed, and topics for further research are suggested.

Keywords—adolescence, alcohol-related disorders, psychotherapy, rehabilitation, substance-related disorders, theoretical models

There are few research-based recovery models for chemically dependent adolescents. Pioneers in chemical dependence treatment relied not on research but on theory and clinical observation for their models of recovery. The popular conception of recovery, first proposed by Bacon (1973), was the opposite of the downward progression previously outlined by Jellinek (1960) for active alcoholism; recovery was depicted as a predictable upward slope that neatly reversed the progressive decline of alcoholism. Tiebout (1953, 1949, 1944), the first to examine the progression of psychological changes during recovery, outlined four stages: admission of alcoholism, defiance/compliance, acceptance, and conversion. Bean (1984, 1975; Bean-Bayog 1993) next proposed that people in chemical dependence recovery proceed through stages that require "a series of physical, behavioral, and psychological shifts" (Bean 1984: 97).

†This study was completed as part of the doctoral requirement of the Clinical Psychology Program, Center for Psychological Studies, Berkeley, California. This research was supported in part by the Kaiser Permanente Northern California Innovation Program. Stephanie Brown, Ph.D., consulted with Dr. Blumberg and reviewed the manuscript. Sylvia Sussman, Ph.D., consulted in the program and reviewed the manuscript. Day Top Village Adolescent Facility, Redwood City; Kaiser Permanente Alcohol and Drug Programs for Teens at Oakland, San Francisco, Santa Clara, South Sacramento, and Walnut Creek; New Bridge Adolescent Program San Ramon; Sobriety High, San Rafael; Thunder Road, Oakland; Victory Outreach, Oakland; Walden House, San Francisco; and Youth Experience Success, Santa Cruz referred teens to the study. The Medical Editing Department, Kaiser Foundation Research Institute, provided editorial assistance.
