Recruiting Hispanic Labor Karen D. Johnson-Webb, 2003 Johnson Webb studies the labor recruitment behind the recent surge in immigration to North Carolina Her qualitative study suggests a strong connection between employer recruitment a tight labor market and the growing Hispanic population Evidence indicates that employers prefer immigrant workers and go to extraordinary lengths to recruit them However historical social economic and political factors have also contributed to the massive influx of Hispanic immigrants to North Carolina The policy implications of this study are notable Policy makers should consider local context when crafting immigration policy welfare reform policy and workforce development policy in order for these to be effective

Latino Identity in Contemporary America Martin Bulmer, John Solomos, 2014-01-02 This edited collection brings together original research papers that explore an important aspect of race and ethnic studies namely the processes that are shaping the making of Latina and Latino identities in contemporary America This is a question that has received much attention in the USA over the past decade and these papers make an original contribution to these debates Much of this attention towards Latino a communities in the USA can be seen as the outcome of public debates about the growth of these communities over the past three decades and the consequences of this growth for social and political change The papers in this collection highlight some of the key facets of contemporary research in this field As original pieces of research they are at the forefront of current debates about Latino a identities in contemporary America and they provide research based insights into the changing experiences of these communities This book was originally published as a special issue of Ethnic and Racial Studies

Immigrants Outside Megalopolis Richard C. Jones, 2008-01-01 The booming 1990s saw a new demographic pattern emerging in the United States the shift of immigrants toward smaller towns and metropolitan areas in ethnically homogenous or traditionally bicultural areas These places offer growing specialized economies in need of unskilled or semi skilled and occasionally skilled labor they also offer for some immigrants a favorable physical and social climate Immigrants Outside Megalopolis documents this trend with case studies including Hmong in Wisconsin Iranians in Iowa Mexicans in Kansas and Colorado Vietnamese in coastal Louisiana Mexicans in North Carolina and south Texas Cubans in Arizona Bosnians in upstate New York Asian Indians in north Texas and Ukrainians and Russians in the Willamette Valley of Oregon Truly this process is resulting in a cultural transformation of the U S heartland The implantation of new features on the cultural landscape businesses homes churches schools possessions and the peoples themselves is giving many Americans a world geography lesson at a time when increased world understanding is something the country cannot do without This geography lesson comes at a cost however the difficult process of social adjustment playing out on a daily basis between immigrant and host populations which remains largely unresolved This process is an important focus of Jones s book

The End of Compassion Alejandro Portes, Patricia Fernandez-Kelly, 2020-12-18 This book brings together the most recent and the most comprehensive collection of articles on a population at risk the children of immigrants in the United States especially those children whose parents came to the country without legal authorization The end of compassion and the shift to temporary migration to source the labour needs of the American economy have brought in their wake a series of consequences some of which were predictable and others unexpected The chapters fully document the nature and implications of the enforcement initiatives implemented by the American government in recent years and their interaction with state policies and local contexts of reception This collection provides an exhaustive testimony of the severe conditions faced by unauthorized migrant families and their children today and their repercussions in both countries of origin and those where they currently live The End of Compassion will be of interest to researchers and academics studying migration in the United States and ethnic and racial studies and to advanced students of sociology public policy law and political science This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal Ethnic and Racial Studies     Bibliographic Index ,2006     American Education and the Demography of the US Student Population, 1880 - 2014 Richard R. Verdugo,2018-09-28 This monograph examines changes in the American public school population from 1900 to 2010 It shows how different historical periods have affected the composition of the student body and have posed important challenges to those involved in shaping educational policy The author first develops an analytical framework that merges education and applied demography concepts The education concepts include attendance promotion retention high school graduation and college enrollment While the applied demography concepts take into account size distribution and composition He then applies this framework to the four most recent American historical periods the Progressive Era the Great Depression the Post WWII Era and the Post 1983 Era Readers will come to understand the changing socio demographic profile of American schools due to such factors as immigration from Europe child labor laws internal migration greater fertility and the rise of the Baby Boom generation the changing status of women and minorities the urban crises rising social inequality the 2008 recession and globalization Featuring both historical and current data this volume clearly shows how demographic change affects the teaching and learning environment education policy funding and school segregation Overall it offers insightful analysis that may help shape the future of American education     The Bibliographic Index ,2005     Asian American Evangelical Churches Antony William Alumkal,2003 Annotation Based on studies of two congregations in New York the Chinese Community Church and the Korean Presbyterian Church this analysis examines issues of racial formation religious belief and ethnic identity The educational and economic values of the church members and the role their religious beliefs play in their gender and family values are also discussed To carry out his research Alumkal sociology of religion Iliff School of Theology Denver Colorado attended weekly services at the two churches for over a year in the mid 1990s when he also interviewed c 50 church members Annotation c 2003 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews com     Looking for Latino Town Lea Ericsson Turpin,2005     Mexican Immigrants in the Labor Market Maria Luisa Amado,2006 Amado examines the job seeking strategies of recent Mexican immigrants in Atlanta She explores the resources available to job seekers within and outside their immigrant networks and the role of kinship during migration and settlement Strong ties are primary sources of support and job information for new arrivals Ties of kinship and paisanaje are effective work links among male workers involved in dense occupational networks of fellow immigrants This is especially true among informal workers in industries that rely on abundant migrant labor Women are less likely to benefit from these connections due to labor market and network segregation along gender lines Culture, Class, and Work Among Arab-American Women Jen'nan Ghazal Read, 2004 Drawing on US Census data and a national poll of ethnic groups to situate Arab American women in a broader immigrant context Read sociology U of California Irvine expands the demographic profile and understanding of a group often viewed stereotypically In this study of cultural and class influences on workforce participation as correlates of Social Determinants of Immigrant Selection Yukio Kawano, 2006 Self selection theory predicts that skilled workers move to countries with more unequal labor markets and unskilled workers to countries with more equal ones However this thesis alone fails to consider the structural process of uprooting in the sending countries and the process of group adaptation in the host countries Kawano reveals that imbalanced development in peripheral countries induces emigration of skilled workers and that economic and intellectual resources in the receiving coethnic groups positively affect adaptation while social networks and English fluency negatively affect it Racial discrimination in the U S is also a factor Asian and Latino immigrants in Canada and Australia earn at least as much as native whites but much less in the U S Inquiry, 2004 The Remittance Behavior of Immigrant Households Elizabeth M. Grieco, 2003 Annotation Questioning the given that remittances money sent home by immigrants inevitably decline Grieco Migration Policy Institute Washington DC applies migrant network theory and theories of social capital and the strength of social ties to examine remittance behavior of Micronesian immigrants in Guam and Hawaii The analysis of data is designed to shed light on the influence of time family reunification migration network participation and influence of non migrants on remittance behavior The data is derived from the Census of Micronesian Migrants to Guam and Hawaii Annotation c 2003 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews com Mexican Immigrants in the Labor Market Maria Luisa Amado, 2006 Amado examines the job seeking strategies of recent Mexican immigrants in Atlanta She explores the resources available to job seekers within and outside their immigrant networks and the role of kinship during migration and settlement Strong ties are primary sources of support and job information for new arrivals Ties of kinship and paisanaje are effective work links among male workers involved in dense occupational networks of fellow immigrants This is especially true among informal workers in industries that rely on abundant migrant labor Women are less likely to benefit from these connections due to labor market and network segregation along gender lines Latinos in Ethnic Enclaves Stephanie Bohon, 2013-01-11 This work explores the competition for jobs between different Latin American immigrant groups in the U S economy Bohon s research looks at occupational status attainment among Latino groups in Miami and three other U S cities with flourishing Latino enclaves

Mexican Labor Migrants and U Florian K. Kaufmann,2011      Hispanics in the Workplace Stephen B. Knouse,Paul Rosenfeld,Amy L. Culbertson,1992 Hispanics are the fastest growing minority in the United States and are filling an increasingly significant portion of the work force However despite theses facts little or no research has been conducted to date to address this issue Until now The first in its field Hispanics in the Workplace presents a comprehensive exploration of Hispanic employment factors problems at work and work in the government and private sectors Contributors include notable researchers who uncover such specific topics as entry into employment work force characteristics recruiting and selection training and development special problems of women job satisfaction stress management the work ethic stereotyping and language barriers They address various opportunities and problems of Hispanics as they relate to the military civilians in the military the private sector and entrepreneurs If you are a professional academic or student of management organizational studies sociology human resources and or ethnic studies who wants to stay on the cutting edge of the field then this pathbreaker is for you      Latino Workers in the Contemporary South Michael Angrosino,Arthur D. Murphy,Colleen Blanchard,Jennifer A. Hill,2001 Latino populations are currently the fastest growing in the nation and Latinos comprise by far the largest percentage of new immigrants to the southern states Latino Workers in the Contemporary South describes issues these immigrants and refugees face particularly regarding work and also offers accounts of the impact of Latinos on their employers and communities at large Though its discussions span a variety of regions the book focuses in particular on areas of Georgia and Florida where booming Hispanic populations have had considerable influence in recent years It documents the different ways in which Latino immigrants in today s South have adapted to the ambiguous and frequently inaccessible territory of the South s notorious good ole boy network to navigate the world of work Contributors to the volume discuss legal and illegal migration the problem of accurately tracking immigration gender specific issues and language barriers as well as adaptations made by immigrants in the face of hardships Essays highlight specific areas that provide work opportunities to immigrants such as the poultry industry of North Georgia the carpet industry of Dalton Georgia and the onshore oil industry of southern Louisiana The contributors also discuss the changing cultures of areas with large Hispanic populations and the mixture of hospitality and hostility encountered by these new southerners Latino Workers in the Contemporary South offers a great deal of new information about Latino immigrants and the changing face of the South
