Red Passion And Patience In The Desert:

Red Terry Tempest Williams, 2008-12-30 In this potent collage of stories essays and testimony Williams makes a stirring case for the preservation of America's Redrock Wilderness in the canyon country of southern Utah As passionate as she is persuasive Williams the beloved author of Refuge is one of the country's most eloquent and imaginative writers The desert is her blood Here she writes lyrically about the desert's power and vulnerability describing wonders that range from an ancient Puebloan sash of macaw feathers found in Canyonlands National Park to the desert tortoise an animal that can teach us the slow art of revolutionary patience as it extends our notion of kinship with all life She examines the civil war being waged in the West today over public and private uses of land an issue that divides even her own family With grace humor and compassionate intelligence Williams reminds us that the preservation of wildness is not simply a political process but a spiritual one Conflicted American Landscapes David E. Nye, 2021-04-27 How conflicting ideas of nature threaten to fracture America's identity. Amber waves of grain, purple mountain majesties. Americans invest much of their national identity in sites of natural beauty. And yet American lands today are torn by conflicts over science, religion, identity, and politics. Creationists believe that the Biblical flood carved landscapes less than 10,000 years ago; environmentalists protest pipelines. Western states argue that the federal government's land policies throttle free enterprise. Native Americans demand protection for sacred sites. In this book, David Nye looks at Americans' irreconcilably conflicting ideas about nature. A landscape is conflicted when different groups have different uses for the same location: for example, when some want to open mining sites that others want to preserve, or when suburban development impinges on agriculture. Some landscapes are so degraded from careless use that they become toxic anti-landscapes. Nye traces these conflicts to clashing conceptions of nature, ranging from pastoral to Native American to military industrial, that cannot be averaged into a compromise. Nye argues that today's environmental crisis is rooted in these conflicting ideas about land. Depending on your politics, global warming is either an inconvenient truth or fake news. America's contradictory conceptions of nature are at the heart of a broken national consensus.

Thomas Merton's Gethsemani Monica Weis, 2014-10-17 For twenty-seven years, renowned and beloved monk Thomas Merton (1915-1968) belonged to Our Lady of Gethsemani, a Trappist monastery established in 1848 amid the hills and valleys near Bardonia, Kentucky. In Thomas Merton's Gethsemani, dramatic black and white photographs by Harry L. Hinkle and artful text by Merton scholar Monica Weis converge in a unique experience for lovers of Merton. Hinkle was allowed unprecedented access to many areas inside the monastery and on its grounds that are generally restricted. His photographs invite the reader to experience the various knobs, lakes, woods, and hermitages Merton sought out for times of solitude and contemplation and for reading and writing. These unique images, each accompanied by a passage from Merton's writings, evoke personal reflection and a deeper understanding of how and why Merton came to recognize himself as a part of his Kentucky landscape. Woven throughout the book, Weis's text explores Merton's fascination with nature not only at Gethsemani but during his early childhood, throughout his spiritual conversion to Roman Catholicism, and while a member of the Trappist community. She examines how Merton's lifelong interaction with nature subtly revealed and informed his profound spiritual experiences and his writing about contemplation. Thomas Merton's Gethsemani replicates Merton's path on his solitary hikes in the woods and conveys the wonder of the landscapes that inspired him.
