academic or public library that endeavors to represent the field A team of subject specialists has taken on the immense task of documenting publications in the area of women s studies in the last decades of the 20th century The result is this truly monumental work which maps the field covering thousands of titles and Web sites in 19 subject areas published between 1985 and 1999 Intended as a reference and collection development tool this bibliography provides a guide for women s studies information for each title along with a detailed often evaluative review The annotations summarize each work s content its importance or contribution to women s studies and its relationship to other titles on the subject Most reviews cite and describe similar and contrasting titles substantially extending the coverage Core titles and titles that are out of print are noted and reviews indicate which titles are appropriate as texts or supplemental texts Taking up where the previous volume by Loeb Searing and Stineman left off this is the definitive guide to the literature of women s studies It is a must purchase for academic libraries that support women s studies programs and a welcome addition to any academic or public library that endeavors to represent the field

Seaway to the Future Alexander Missal,2009-02-01 The building of the Panama Canal became a powerful symbol in a broader search for order as Americans looked to the modern age with both anxiety and anticipation

Embodied Engineering Laura Ann Twagira,2021-08-03 Foregrounding African women s ingenuity and labor this pioneering case study shows how women in rural Mali have used technology to ensure food security through the colonial period environmental crises and postcolonial rule By advocating for an understanding of rural Malian women as engineers Laura Ann Twagira rejects the persistent image of African women as subjects without technological knowledge or access and instead reveals a hidden history about gender development and improvisation In so doing she also significantly expands the scope of African science and technology studies Using the Office du Niger agricultural project as a case study Twagira argues that women used modest technologies such as a mortar and pestle or metal pots and organized female labor to create maintain and reengineer a complex and highly adaptive food production system While women often incorporated labor saving technologies into their work routines they did not view their own physical labor as the problem it is so often framed to be in development narratives Rather women s embodied techniques and knowledge were central to their ability to transform a development project centered on export production into an environmental resource that addressed local taste and consumption needs

Evolutionary History Edmund Russell,2011-04-11 We tend to see history and evolution springing from separate roots one grounded in the human world and the other in the natural world Human beings have however become probably the most powerful species shaping evolution today and human caused evolution in other species has probably been the most important force shaping human history This book introduces readers to evolutionary history a new field that unites history and biology to create a fuller understanding of the past than either can produce on its own Evolutionary history can stimulate surprising new hypotheses for any field of history and evolutionary biology How many art historians would have guessed that sculpture encouraged the evolution of tuskless elephants How many biologists would have predicted that human poverty would accelerate animal evolution How many military historians would have suspected that plant evolution would convert a counter insurgency strategy into a rebel subsidy With examples from around the globe this book will help readers see the broadest patterns of history and the details of their own life in a new light The Engineering-Business Nexus Steen Hyldgaard Christensen, Bernard Delahousse, Christelle Didier, Martin Meganck, Mike Murphy, 2018-11-14 Fascinating and compelling in equal measure this volume presents a critical examination of the multilayered relationships between engineering and business In so doing the study also stimulates ethical reflection on how these relationships either enhance or inhibit strategies to address vital issues of our time In the context of geopolitical economic and environmental tendencies the authors explore the world that we should want to create and the role of the engineer and the business manager in this endeavor Throughout this volume the authors identify periods of alignment and periods of tension between engineering and business They look at focal points of the engineering business nexus related to the development of capitalism The book explores past and present movements to reshape reform or reject this nexus The volume is informed by questions of importance for industry as well as for higher education These are What kinds of conflict arise for engineers in their attempts to straddle both professional and organizational commitments How should professionals be managed to avoid a clash of managerial and professional cultures How do engineers create value in firms and corporations What kinds of tension exist between higher education and industry What challenges does the neoliberal entrepreneurial university pose for management faculty students society and industry Should engineering graduates be ready for work and can they possibly be What kinds of business issues are reflected in engineering education curricula and for what purpose Is there a limit to the degree of business hybridization in engineering degree programs and if so what would be the criterion for its definition Is there a place in engineering education curricula for reflective critique of assumptions related to business and economic thinking One ideal of management and control comes to the fore as the Anthropocene the world transformed into an engineered artefact which includes human existence The volume raises the question as to how engineering and business together should be considered given the fact that the current engineering business nexus remains embedded within an economic model of continual growth By addressing macro level issues such as energy policy sustainable development globalization and social justice this study will both help create awareness and stimulate development of self knowledge among practitioners educators and students thereby ultimately addressing the need for better informed citizens to safeguard planet Earth as a human life supporting system Women's Work Laurel Smith-Doerr, 2004 Women scientists working in small for profit companies are eight times more likely than their university counterparts to head a research lab Why Laurel Smith Doerr reveals that contrary to widely held assumptions strong career opportunities for women and minorities do not depend on the formal policies and long job ladders that large hierarchical bureaucracies provide In fact highly internally linked bio technology firms are far better workplaces for female scientists when compared to university settings or established pharmaceutical companies offering women richer opportunities for career advancement Based on quantitative analyses of more than two thousand life scientists careers and qualitative studies of scientists in eight biotech and university settings Smith Doerr s work shows clearly that the network form of organization rather than fostering old boy networks provides the organizational flexibility that not only stimulates innovation but also aids women s success

Gender and Early Television Sarah Arnold,2021-05-20 Between the nineteenth century and the mid twentieth century television transformed from an idea to an institution In Gender and Early Television Sarah Arnold traces women s relationship to the new medium of television across this period in the UK and USA She argues that women played a crucial role in its development both as producers and as audiences long before the golden age of television in the 1950s Beginning with the emergence of media entertainment in the mid nineteenth century and culminating in the rise of the post war television industries Arnold claims that all along the way women had a stake in television As keen consumers of media women also helped promote television to the public by performing as television girls Women worked as directors producers technical crew and announcers It seemed that television was open to women However as Arnold shows the increasing professionalisation of television resulted in the segregation of roles Production became the sphere of men and consumption the sphere of women While this binary has largely informed women s role in television through her analysis Arnold argues that it has not always been the case

Strange Sounds Timothy D Taylor,2014-01-02 In Strange Sounds Timothy D Taylor explains the wonder and anxiety provoked by a technological revolution that began in the 1940s and gathers steam daily Taylor discusses the cultural role of technology its use in making music and the inevitable concerns about authenticity that arise from electronic music Informative and highly entertaining for both music fans and scholars Strange Sounds is a provocative look at how we perform listen to and understand music today

Daniela K Rosner,2018-07-17 A proposal to redefine design in a way that not only challenges the field s dominant paradigms but also changes the practice of design itself In Critical Fabulations Daniela Rosner proposes redefining design as investigative and activist personal and culturally situated responsive and responsible Challenging the field s dominant paradigms and reinterpreting its history Rosner wants to change the way we historicize the practice reworking it from the inside Focusing on the development of computational systems she takes on powerful narratives of innovation and technology shaped by the professional expertise that has become integral to the field s mounting status within the new industrial economy To do so she intervenes in legacies of design expanding what is considered design to include long silenced narratives of practice and enhancing existing design methodologies based on these rediscovered inheritances Drawing on discourses of feminist technoscience she examines craftwork s contributions to computing innovation how craftwork becomes hardware manufacturing and how hardware manufacturing becomes craftwork She reclaims for example NASA s Little Old Ladies the women who built information storage for the Apollo missions by weaving wires through magnetized metal rings Mixing history theory personal experience and case studies Rosner reweaves fibers of technoscience by slowly reworking the methods and margins of design She suggests critical fabulations as ways of telling stories that awaken alternative histories and offers a set of techniques and orientations for fabulating its future Critical Fabulations shows how design s hidden inheritances open different possibilities for practice Does America Need More Innovators? Matthew Wisnioski, Eric S.

Hintz, Marie Stettler Kleine,2019-04-09 A critical exploration of today s global imperative to innovate by champions critics and reformers of innovation Corporate executives politicians and school board leaders agree Americans must innovate Innovation experts fuel this demand with books and services that instruct aspiring innovators in best practices personal habits and workplace cultures for fostering innovation But critics have begun to question the unceasing promotion of innovation pointing out its gadget centric shallowness the lack of diversity among innovators and the unequal distribution of innovation's burdens and rewards Meanwhile reformers work to make the training of innovators more inclusive and the outcomes of innovation more responsible This book offers an overdue critical exploration of today's global imperative to innovate by bringing together innovation's champions critics and reformers in conversation The book presents an overview of innovator training exploring the history motivations and philosophies of programs in private industry universities and government offers a primer on critical innovation studies with essays that historicize contextualize and problematize the drive to create innovators and considers initiatives that seek to reform and reshape what it means to be an innovator

Handbook on Alternative Theories of Innovation Godin, Benoît, Gaglio, Gérald, Vinck, Dominique, 2021-10-12 This insightful Handbook scrutinizes alternative concepts and approaches to the dominant economic or industrial theories of innovation Providing an assessment of these alternatives it questions the absence of these neglected types of innovation and suggests diverse theories American Independent Inventors in an Era of Corporate R&D Eric S. Hintz, 2021-08-17 How America's individual inventors persisted alongside corporate R D labs as an important source of inventions During the nineteenth century heroic individual inventors such as Thomas Edison and Alexander Graham Bell created entirely new industries while achieving widespread fame However by 1927 a New York Times editorial suggested that teams of corporate scientists at General Electric AT T and DuPont had replaced the solitary garret inventor as the wellspring of invention But these inventors never disappeared In this book Eric Hintz argues that lesser known inventors such as Chester Carlson Xerox photocopier Samuel Ruben Duracell batteries and Earl Tupper Tupperware continued to develop important technologies throughout the twentieth century Moreover Hintz explains how independent inventors gradually fell from public view as corporate brands increasingly became associated with high tech innovation Focusing on the years from 1890 to 1950 Hintz documents how American independent inventors competed and sometimes partnered with their corporate rivals adopted a variety of flexible commercialization strategies established a series of short lived professional groups lobbied for fairer patent laws and mobilized for two world wars After 1950 the experiences of independent inventors generally mirrored the patterns of their predecessors and they continued to be overshadowed during corporate R D's postwar golden age The independents enjoyed a resurgence however at the turn of the twenty first century as Apple's Steve Jobs and Shark Tank's Lori Greiner heralded a new generation of heroic inventor entrepreneurs By recovering the stories of a group once considered extinct Hintz shows that independent inventors have long been and remain an important source of new technologies Gadamer

Maja Hojer Bruun, Ayo Wahlberg, Rachel Douglas-Jones, Cathrine Hasse, Klaus Hoeyer, Dorte Brogård Kristensen, Brit Ross Winthereik, 2022-03-23 This Handbook offers an overview of the thriving and diverse field of anthropological studies of technology. It features 39 original chapters each reviewing the state of the art of current research and enlivening the field of study through ethnographic analysis of human technology interfaces, forms of social organisation, technological practices and or systems of belief and meaning in different parts of the world. The Handbook is organised around some of the most important characteristics of anthropological studies of technology today: the diverse knowledge practices that technologies involve and on which they depend; the communities, collectives and categories that emerge around technologies; anthropology's contribution to proliferating debates on ethics, values and morality in relation to technology and infrastructures that highlight how all technologies are embedded in broader political economies and socio-historical processes that shape and often reinforce inequality and discrimination while also generating diversity. All chapters share a commitment to human experiences, embodiments, practices and materialities in the daily lives of those people and institutions involved in the development, manufacturing, deployment and/or use of particular technologies. Chapters 11 and 31 are available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via link.springer.com. From Hyperspace to Hypertext Christopher Leslie, 2023-09-25 This book illuminates how science fiction studies can support diversity, equity and inclusion in science and engineering. Shortly before science fiction got its name, a new paradigm connected whiteness and masculinity to the advancement of civilization. In order to show how science fiction authors supported the social construction of these gender and racial norms and also challenged them, this study analyzes the impact of three major editors and the authors in their orbits: Hugo Gernsback, John W. Campbell Jr. and Judith Merril. Supported by a fresh look at archival sources and the author's experience teaching Science and Technology Studies at universities on three continents, this study demonstrates the interconnections among discourses of imperialism, masculinity and innovation. Readers gain insights into fighting prejudice, the importance of the community of authors and readers and ideas about how to challenge racism, sexism and xenophobia in new creative work. This stimulating book demonstrates how education in science, technology, engineering and mathematics STEM can be enhanced by adding the liberal arts such as historical and literary studies to create STEAM.
