

3 Types of Relationship-based Outsourcing Models

These outsourcing models differ based on task management and accountability.

Project-based model

This model is suitable for short or one-time projects with low or medium complexity. The BPO company manages the entire project based on predefined requirements, from planning to execution.

Dedicated team

This approach offers a dedicated team of professionals for your project. The outsourcing provider hires them based on your requirements, and you and the provider share the responsibility for task management and reporting.

Staff augmentation

The third-party staff works remotely as an extension of your in-house team. This BPO strategy can be short- or long-term, giving you more control over your project.
