Asia-Pacific Symposium on Mangrove Ecosystems Yuk-Shan Wong,Nora F.Y. Tam,2012-12-06 Mangrove ecosystems are typical formations found in coastal deposits of mud and silt throughout the tropics and some distance into the subtropical latitudes The total worldwide mangrove area which is estimated at about 170 000 km² with some sixty species of trees and shrubs exclusive to the habitat dominates approximately 75% of the world s coastline between latitudes 25 N and 25 S Such unique intertidal ecosystems support genetically diverse communities of terrestrial and aquatic organisms that are of direct or indirect socioeconomic values Mangrove forests play important roles as coastal stabilization and protection against winds and storms producers of nutrients forest resources and animal species of economic importance Recently the issues on the conservation proper utilization and management of mangrove forests have been widely discussed Unfortunately overexploitation and destruction of mangroves seriously threatens the sustainability of such a unique ecosystem This volume includes papers on three main areas recent advances in mangrove ecology application and utilization of mangrove resources and conservation and management of the ecosystems

Asian Tourism Janet Cochrane,2008 Tourism in Asia is growing faster than anywhere else in the world Despite the significance of the tourism industry in this area it is under researched This book addresses this imbalance by providing an edited collection of chapters which explore the domestic and intraregional tourism in Asia

Asia-Pacific Conference on Science and Management of Coastal Environment Yuk-Shan Wong,Nora Fung-Yee Tam,2012-12-06 Human beings have a long historical relationship with the coast Initially it provided food and security later forming important locations for industrial and commercial development Now the emphasis has shifted towards leisure and conservation although the former functions remain crucial However it is only very recently that people have started viewing the coast as a common and valuable resource that requires rational utilisation and scientific management in order to sustain its attractiveness. Of course enlightened management comes only through understanding of the complicated coastal regions which enables coastal managers to balance pressures from different sectors and to minimize risks. Scientific knowledge will continue to be the most important basis for resolving the conflicts between coastal users and interest groups such as developers and ecologists. Coastal management has also shifted from traditional restorative or remedial actions towards planned avoidance of other conflicts. Despite rapid advancement in coastal sciences over recent decades most of the major coastal issues have remained outstanding in the agenda. Control of shoreline erosion and protecting sea level rise continue to be crucial problems facing coastal scientists. Destructive coastal storms still cause tremendous damage particularly in low altitudes. Wetland and estuary reclamation have led to the loss of the most valuable estuary wetlands which are required to sustain biological productivity and biodiversity. This volume includes papers on marine and coastal pollution, eutrophication, aquaculture, conservation and utilization of coastal wetlands and coastal zone management.

Asian Marine Biology 18 (2001) Brian Morton, 2003-06-01. This is the annual journal of the Marine Biological Association of Hong Kong. It contains papers on marine subjects of interest to all Asian biologists.
