Paths To State Repression Human Rights Violations And Contentious Politics:

Paths to State Repression Christian Davenport, 2000-03-15 In the last ten years there has been a resurgence of interest in repression and violence within states Paths to State Repression improves our understanding of why states use political repression highlighting its relationship to dissent and mass protest The authors draw upon a wide variety of political economic contexts methodological approaches and geographic locales including Cuba Nicaragua Peru Sri Lanka Indonesia Israel Eastern Europe and Africa This book is invaluable to all who wish to better understand why central authorities violate and restrict human rights and how states can break their cycles of conflict

State Repression in Post-Disaster Societies Clair Apodaca, 2017-01-20 A natural hazard is a physical event but a disaster is a social and political phenomenon Natural hazards are for the most part unavoidable and apolitical However they carry with them serious political economic and social consequences Disasters also have adverse consequences on human rights standards An understanding of the relationship between disasters and human rights outcomes requires knowledge of how disasters increase grievance and frustration and impact the probability of contentious political behavior To date there has been little empirical or theoretical research on the specific circumstances under which disasters impact antigovernment political behavior and even less is known of the causal chain between a natural disaster protest activity and human rights violations In this book Clair Apodaca maps a comprehensive causal model of the complex interactions between disasters and human rights violations She claims that pre existing inequalities and societal grievances turn a natural hazard into a disaster A grievance based theory of protests suggests that the underlying structural causes are social and economic group disparities political exclusion along with population pressures To turn these all too common conditions into active political behavior requires a triggering event When a damage loss is the primary consequence of a disaster the government and international community can compensate victims by providing rebuilding and reconstruction aid However when the disaster results in high numbers of fatalities the government and international community cannot adequately compensate survivors for their losses Grievances cannot be easily or effectively eliminated and survivors and their supporters mobilize for change even if they are likely to face state repression Clair Apodaca offers a unique contribution to our understanding of human rights violations She effectively shows that there is a causal process between hazard events protest activities and government repression a finding that is key to scholars practitioners and policy makers working in this field

Repression and Mobilization Christian Davenport, Hank Johnston, Carol McClurg Mueller, 2005-01-01 In was the summer of 2001 when political scientists and sociologists gathered at the University of Virginia to present new information and assess the status of study about political mobilization and political repression The 10 papers presented and printed here focus on interactions between protesters and police case studies come from Germany the Protest, Repression and Political Regimes Sabine C. Carey, 2009-01-13 This volume investigates the relationship between protest repression and political regimes in Latin America and sub Saharan Africa Considering how different political regimes use repression and respond to popular protest this book analyzes the relationship between protest and repression in Africa and Latin America between the late 1970s and the beginning of the twenty first century Drawing on theories multi method empirical analyses and case studies the author of this volume sets out to investigate the reciprocal dynamics between protest and repression Distinctive features of this volume include quantitative analyses that highlight general trends in the protest repression relationship case studies of different political regimes in Chile and Nigeria emphasising the dynamics at the micro level an emphasis on the importance of full democratization in order to reduce the risk and intensity of intra state conflict Focusing on political regimes in different areas of the world Protest Repression and Political Regimes will be of vital interest to students and scholars of conflict studies human rights and social movements

Understanding Human Rights Violations Steven C. Poe, 2019-06-04 Originally published in 2004 This excellent volume presents a systematic analysis of various human rights violations around the globe focusing on security and subsistence rights The book collects important contributions to the theoretical development of the human rights phenomenon covering a wide range of human rights issues and research approaches The research presented combines a variety of qualitative and quantitative approaches and brings together both theoretical and empirical work It places particular emphasis on making the advanced statistical methods that are used to test the arguments accessible to a wider readership Understanding Human Rights Violations will prove a useful tool for all in the fields of international human rights peace studies political violence and international law and offers a valuable introduction into the literature on human rights violations

Secessionism and Separatism in Europe and Asia Jean-Pierre Cabestan, Aleksandar Pavković, 2013 The boundaries between secessionism and separatism are often blurred and in many cases study of secessionism encompasses that of separatism and vice versa Recognising this inherent relationship this book provides a comparative survey of recent attempts at secession and separatist movements from across Europe and Asia and assesses the responses of the respective host governments The essays address two main questions which arise from the relationship between state governments and secessionist movements first how secessionist or separatist movements gather support and mobilize their target populations and second how central political authorities respond to the challenges that secessionist or separatist movements pose to their capacity to control the country With political analysis of recent cases ranging from the Balkans the USSR the UK and the Basque Country to Sri Lanka Burma China Tibet and Taiwan the authors identify both similarities and differences in the processes and outcomes of secessionist and separatist movements across the two distinct regions This volume will be an invaluable resource for those who wish to understand the dynamics of secessionist movements and as such will appeal to students and scholars of Asian and European politics comparative politics international relations and conflict studies It will also be helpful to practitioners and policy makers who wish to understand and contribute to the resolution of such conflicts

Media Bias, Perspective, and State Repression Christian Davenport, 2010 This book examines information reported within the media regarding the interaction between the Black Panther Party and government agents in the Bay Area of California 1967 1973 Christian Davenport argues that the geographic locale and political orientation of the newspaper influences how specific details are reported including who starts and ends the conflict who the Black Panthers target government or non government actors and which part of the government responds the police or court Specifically proximate and government oriented sources provide one assessment of events whereas proximate and dissident oriented sources have another both converge on specific aspects of the conflict The methodological implications of the study are clear Davenport s findings prove that in order to understand contentious events it is crucial to understand who collects or distributes the information in order to comprehend who reportedly does what to whom as well as why

Conflict and Compliance Sonia Cardenas,2011-03-18 International human rights pressure has been applied to numerous states with varying results In Conflict and Compliance Sonia Cardenas examines responses to such pressure and challenges conventional views of the reasons states do or do not comply with international law Data from disparate bodies of research suggest that more pressure to comply with human rights standards is not necessarily more effective and that international policies are more efficient when they target the root causes of state oppression Cardenas surveys a broad array of evidence to support these conclusions including Latin American cases that incorporate recent important declassified materials a statistical analysis of all the countries in the world and a set of secondary cases from Eastern Europe South Africa China and Cuba The views of human rights skeptics and optimists are surveyed to illustrate how state rhetoric and behavior can be interpreted differently depending on one s perspective Theoretically and methodologically sophisticated Conflict and Compliance paints a new picture of the complex dynamics at work when states face competing pressures to comply with and violate international human rights norms

Human Rights Michael Goodhart,2013 Human Rights Politics and Practice is an introduction to human rights that goes beyond a purely legal perspective to look at theoretical issues and practical approaches Bringing together leading experts it is up to date with cutting edge research in a constantly evolving field

Impediments to the Prevention and Intervention of Genocide Samuel Totten,2013-01-23 Academics NGOs the United Nations and individual nations are focused on the prevention and intervention of genocide Traditionally missions to prevent or intervene in genocide have been sporadic and under resourced The contributors to this volume consider some of the major stumbling blocks to the avoidance of genocide Bartrop and Totten argue that realpolitik is the major impediment to the elimination of genocide Campbell examines the lack of political will to confront genocide and Theriault describes how denial becomes an obstacle to intervention against genocide Loyle and Davenport discuss how intervention is impeded by a lack of reliable data on genocide violence and Macgregor presents an overview of the influence of the media Totten examines how the UN Convention on Genocide actually impedes anti genocide efforts and how the institutional configuration of the UN is itself often a stumbling block Addressing an issue that is often overlooked Travis examines the impact of global arms trade on genocide Finally Hiebert examines how international criminal prosecution of atrocities can impede preventive efforts and Hirsch provides an analysis of the strengths weaknesses and effectiveness of major international and national prescriptions developed over the last decade The result is a distinguished addition to Transaction s prestigious Genocide Studies series
