Local Memories in a Nationalizing and Globalizing World M. Beyen, B. Deseure, 2015-03-10 In historical studies collective memory is most often viewed as the product of nationalizing strategies carried out by political elites in the hope to create homogeneous nation states In contrast this book asserts that collective memories develop out of a never ending triangular negotiation between local national and transnational actors

Human Memory and Amnesia (PLE: Memory) Laird Cermak, 2014-05-09 Originally published in 1982 this book brings together two areas of research previously studied in parallel with little interaction particularly in the US normal memory processing and the amnesic syndrome When trying to document the relationship between the two it became apparent that there was much crossover and duplication of effort in a number of areas whether long term memory and short term memory truly represent independent storage systems or are simply points on a continuum trying to determine the primary locus of variables influencing the rate at which information is lost during retention whether episodic memory and semantic memory represent two different storage systems or are simply artifacts produced by different kinds of query to a single memory system and finally whether visual and verbal memory are independent It was written following a meeting in 1979 by a small group of investigators brought together to explore this commonality and to share data and theory thus beginning the promise of a bright future of interdisciplinary interaction in
