Breastfeeding and Media Katherine A. Foss, 2017-06-14 This book centers on the role of media in shaping public perceptions of breastfeeding Drawing from magazines doctors office materials parenting books television websites and other media outlets Katherine A Foss explores how historical and contemporary media often undermine breastfeeding efforts with formula marketing and narrow portrayals of nursing women and their experiences Foss argues that the media's messages play an integral role in setting the standard of public knowledge and attitudes toward breastfeeding as she traces shifting public perceptions of breastfeeding and their corresponding media constructions from the development of commercial formula through contemporary times This analysis demonstrates how attributions of blame have negatively impacted public health approaches to breastfeeding thus confronting the misperception that breastfeeding and the failure to breastfeed rests solely on the responsibility of an individual mother Protecting, Promoting and Supporting Breastfeeding Mary A.

Uyoga, Seema Miharshahi, Bindi Borg, 2025-03-14 Breastfeeding is widely recognized as the best start to life for all infants and one of the most effective and cost effective investments nations can make for the future health of their community The World Health Organisations recommend exclusive breastfeeding for the first 6 months of life and introduction of nutritionally adequate and safe complementary solid foods at 6 months together with continued breastfeeding up to 2 years of age or beyond Enabling women to breastfeed is key to the sustainable development goals as it improves nutrition ensures food security and reduces inequalities between and within countries Lack of breastfeeding is an important issue with health social and economic implications Infants who do not receive breast milk are more likely to experience infections and poorer health outcomes than breastfed infants In addition there are also health implications for mothers who do not breastfeed
