Studying Human Origins Raymond Corbey, Wil Roebroeks, 2001 This history of human origin studies covers a wide range of disciplines

This important new study analyses a number of key episodes from palaeolithic archaeology palaeoanthropology primatology and evolutionary theory in terms of various ideas on how one should go about such reconstructions and what if any the uses of such historiographical exercises can be for current research in these disciplines Their carefully argued point is that studying the history of palaeoanthropological thinking about the past can enhance the quality of current research on human origins The main issues in the present volume are the uses of disciplinary history in terms of present day research concerns the relative weight of cultural and other external contexts and continuity and change in theoretical perspectives The book's overall approach is an epistemological one It does not in other words primarily address anthropological data as such but our ways of handling such data in terms of our most fundamental but usually quite implicit theoretical presuppositions

Time Maps Eviatar Zerubavel, 2003-05-15 Time Maps extends beyond all of the old clichés about linear circular and spiral patterns of historical process and provides us with models of the actual legends used to map history It is a brilliant and elegant exercise in model building that provides new insights into some of the old questions about philosophy of history historical narrative and what is called straight history Hayden White University of California Santa Cruz Who were the first people to inhabit North America

Does the West Bank belong to the Arabs or the Jews Why are racists so obsessed with origins Is a seventh cousin still a cousin Why do some societies name their children after dead ancestors As Eviatar Zerubavel demonstrates in Time Maps we cannot answer burning questions such as these without a deeper understanding of how we envision the past In a pioneering attempt to map the structure of our collective memory Zerubavel considers the cognitive patterns we use to organize the past in our minds and the mental strategies that help us string together unrelated events into coherent and meaningful narratives as well as the social grammar of battles over conflicting interpretations of history Drawing on fascinating examples that range from Hiroshima to the Holocaust from Columbus to Lucy and from ancient Egypt to the former Yugoslavia Zerubavel shows how we construct historical origins how we tie discontinuous events together into stories how we link families and entire nations through genealogies and how we separate distinct historical periods from one another through watersheds such as the invention of fire or the fall of the Berlin Wall Most people think the Roman Empire ended in 476 even though it lasted another 977 years in Byzantium Challenging such conventional wisdom Time Maps will be must reading for anyone interested in how the history of our world takes shape

Burn Herman Pontzer PhD, 2022-04-19 One of the foremost researchers in human metabolism reveals surprising new science behind food and exercise We burn 2 000 calories a day And if we exercise and cut carbs we ll lose more weight Right Wrong In this paradigm shifting book Herman Pontzer reveals for the first time how human metabolism really works so that we can finally manage our weight and improve our health Pontzer s groundbreaking studies with hunter gatherer tribes show how exercise doesn t increase our metabolism Instead we burn calories within a very narrow range nearly 3 000 calories per day no matter our activity level This was a brilliant evolutionary strategy to survive in times of famine Now it seems to doom us to obesity The good news is we can lose weight but we need to cut calories Refuting such weight loss hype as paleo keto anti gluten anti grain and even vegan Pontzer discusses how all diets succeed or fail For shedding pounds a calorie is a calorie At the same time we must exercise to keep our body systems and signals functioning optimally even if it won t make us thinner Hunter gatherers like the Hadza move about five hours a day and remain remarkably healthy into old age But elite athletes can push the body too far burning calories faster than their bodies can take them in It may be that the most spectacular athletic feats are the result not just of great training but of an astonishingly efficient digestive system Revealing irreverent and always entertaining Pontzer has written a book that will change how you eat move and live

Home John S Allen, 2015-12-29 A leading anthropologist studies the science behind feeling at home to show us how home made us human Home is where the heart is Security comfort even love are all feelings that are centered on the humble abode But what if there is more to the feeling of being at home Neuroanthropologist John S Allen believes that the human habitat is one of the most important products of human cognitive technological and cultural evolution over the past two million years In Home Allen argues that to feel at home is more than just an expression but reflects a deep seated cognitive basis for the human desire to have use and enjoy a place of one s own Allen addresses the very basic question How did a place to sleep become a home Within human evolution he ranks house and home as a signature development of our species as it emerged alongside cooperative hunting language and other critical aspects of humanity Many animals burrow making permanent home bases but primates generally speaking do not most wander making nests at night wherever they might find themselves This is often in home territory but it isn't quite home Our hominid ancestors were wanderers too so how did we over the past several million years find our way home To tell that story Allen will take us through evolutionary anthropology neuroscience the study of emotion and modern sociology He examines the home from the inside of our heads out homes are built with our brains as much as with our hands and tools Allen argues that the thing that may have been most critical in our evolution is not the physical aspect of a home but developing a feeling of defining creating and being in a home whatever its physical form The result was an environment relatively secure against whatever horrors lurked outside that enabled the expensive but creative human mind to reach its full flowering Today with the threat of homelessness child foster care and foreclosure this idea of having a home is more powerful than ever In a clear and accessible writing style Allen sheds light on the deep cognitive sources of the pleasures of having a home the evolution of those behaviors and why the deep reasons why they matter Home is the story about how humans evolved to create a space not only for shelter but also for nurturing creativity innovation and culture and why feeling at home is a fundamental aspect of the human condition

Human Origins, 2011 Describes how mapping the human genome has aided paleoanthropologists in their study of ancient bones used to explore human origins from the earliest humans bipedal apes up to Martin Pickford's Millennium Man

The Social Origins of Language Danny Dor, Chris Knight, Jerome Lewis, 2014 This book presents a new perspective on the origins of language and highlights the key role of social and cultural dynamics in driving language evolution It considers among other questions the role of gesture in communication mimesis play dance and song in extant hunter gatherer communities and the time frame for language evolution

Africa from MIS 6-2 Sacha C. Jones, Brian A. Stewart, 2016-03-04 Bringing together archaeological paleoenvironmental paleontological and genetic data this book makes a first attempt to reconstruct African population histories from our species evolution to the Holocene Africa during Marine Isotope Stages MIS 6 to 2 190 12 000 years ago witnessed the biological development and behavioral florescence of our species Modern human population dynamics which involved multiple population expansions dispersals contractions and extinctions played a central role in our species evolutionary trajectory So far the demographic processes modern human population sizes distributions and movements that occurred within Africa during this critical period have been consistently under addressed The authors of this volume aim at 1 examining the impact of this glacial interglacial glacial cycle on human group sizes movements and distributions throughout Africa 2 investigating the macro and micro evolutionary processes underpinning our species anatomical and behavioral evolution and 3 setting an agenda whereby Africa can benefit from and eventually contribute to the increasingly sophisticated theoretical and methodological palaeodemographic frameworks
