Fabbri, 2012-12-06 Human clustering in coastal areas The coastal zone has gained a solid reputation as a place vocated for recreational activities and this is generally related to the presence of the sea The relationship however does not appear univocal or simple the sea can be perceived as a hostile element by humans and the more general question of whether the presence of the shore is in itself a favourable repulsive or irrelevant factor to settlement is a debatable point at least for pre industrial societies Back in the early part of the 19th century Friedrich Hegel regarded oceans and rivers as unifying elements rather than dividing ones thus implying a trend towards the concentration of human settlements along them The sea he wrote stimulates 1 courage and conquest as well as profit and plunder although he realized that this did not equally apply to all maritime peoples In Hegel s view different approaches to the sea were mainly the results of cultural factors and in fact he recognized that some people living in coastal areas perceive the sea as a dangerous and alien place and the shore as aftnis terrae Assateague Island National Seashore United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. Subcommittee on Parks and Recreation, 1965 Parliamentary Debates New Zealand. Parliament, New Zealand. Parliament. House of Representatives, 1925 The Ecosystem Approach to Marine Planning and Management Sue Kidd, Andy Plater, Chris Frid, 2012-08-06 The marine environment is one of our most precious yet fragile natural resources It provides a wide range of essential goods and services including food regulation of climate and nutrient cycling as well as a setting for transport recreation and tourism This environment is however extremely complex and very sensitive to development pressures and other forms of human influence Planning and management of the sea are similarly complicated reflecting intricate legal institutional and ownerships patterns This creates a situation where marine ecosystems are vulnerable to over exploitation or neglect The Ecosystem Approach to

Marine Planning and Management describes how growing concern about the state of our seas is resulting in the development of new approaches to marine planning and management For example the United Nations Environment Programme has called for the widespread introduction of Marine Spatial Planning MSP and the European Union has recently been consulting on a new European Maritime Policy designed to stimulate economic growth but at the same time protect the resource base Within the United Kingdom the 2010 Marine Act draws upon the experience of town and country planning and brings into being a new system of Marine Spatial Planning The authors show that a common feature of all these developments is an appreciation that more integrated forms of planning and management are required for our seas and that new arrangements must draw together understanding from natural science social science and many other perspectives Adopting such a trans disciplinary and holistic or ecosystems approach the book distils the expertise of these different disciplines and seeks to promote a broader understanding of the origins and practicalities of new approaches to marine planning and management
