Death in the Middle Ages and Early Modern Times Albrecht Classen, 2016-04-11 Death is not only the final moment of life it also casts a huge shadow on human society at large People throughout time have had to cope with death as an existential experience and this also of course in the premodern world The contributors to the present volume examine the material and spiritual conditions of the culture of death studying specific buildings and spaces literary works and art objects theatrical performances and medical tracts from the early Middle Ages to the late eighteenth century Death has always evoked fear terror and awe it has puzzled and troubled people forcing theologians and philosophers to respond and provide answers for questions that seem to evade real explanations The more we learn about the culture of death the more we can comprehend the culture of life As this volume demonstrates the approaches to death varied widely also in the Middle Ages and the early modern age This volume hence adds a significant number of new facets to the critical examination of this ever present phenomenon of death exploring poetic responses to the Black Death types of execution of a female murderess death as the springboard for major political changes and death reflected in morality plays and art

Recueil de farces André Tissier, 1988 Recueil de farces (1450-1550), 1993 Farce and Farcical Elements, 2016-10-11 Farcical elements were incorporated into non comic drama ever since the theatre had been rediscovered in the Middle Ages Already at a very early stage comic scenes proved to be popular additions to liturgical music drama and later to religious plays in the vernacular Some scholars believe that the genre of farce developed out of these farcical elements The suggestion was made that farces similar to the stuffing of meat or poultry had been added to plays to increase audience involvement Other researchers see quite different origins for the farce The present volume does not aspire to solve the question of the relationship between the two types of comedy on the medieval stages but its editors hope that it will nevertheless contribute to this discussion In addition it will enable its readers to form an impression of the huge variety of the comic in the vast area of medieval and early Renaissance theatre and drama

Representing Religious Pluralization in Early Modern Europe Andreas Höfele, 2007 The title of this volume indicates more than a referential relationship Representing Religious Pluralization entails not just the various ways in which the historical processes of pluralization were reflected in texts and other cultural artefacts but also crucially the cultural work that spawned these processes Reflecting driving shaping and subverting religious systems representation becomes a divisive force in Reformation Europe as religious pluralization erupts in a contest over how to conceive to symbolize and to perform religious belief The essays in this book offer a broad range of perspectives on the pluralizing effects of cultural representation as well as on the various attempts at containing them

Moralité a six personnages Joël Blanchard, 2008 Medieval theater was street theater and a place for protest in which the polysemy of the expression public space is well situated The La Vallière collection remarkably illustrates this alternating four plays two farces each followed by a morality play Of these the morality plays justify the collection's existence Joël Blanchard has already published the first of these Moralité cinq personnages and now publishes Moralité six personnages an exceptional text that combines theater astrology and politics denouncing the governmental methods of Louis XI at the time of the Estates General of 1484 The author possibly Henri Baude was a man of the courts aware of university and political mores and a gifted rhetorician Publishing Moralité six personnages for the first time Joël Blanchard deciphers a difficult text offering new light on the political and cultural history of the second half of the fifteenth century French text
