other trade Their evening will be given to study Those silent dignified Indians with straight black hair and broad strong features are training their hands and minds in the hope that some day they may stand beside the white man as equals Behind them laughing gayly and chattering as if without a care in the world comes a larger group of kinky haired thick lipped youths with black skins and African features They too have been working with the hands to train the mind Those two diverse races red and black sit down together in a classroom and to them comes another race The faces that were expressionless or merely mirthful a minute ago light up with serious interest as the teacher comes into the room She stands there a slender golden haired blue eyed Anglo Saxon girl just out of college a mere child compared with the score of swarthy stalwart men as old as herself who sit before her Her mobile features seem to mirror a hundred thoughts while their impassive faces are moved by only one Her quick speech almost trips in its eagerness not to waste the short precious hour Only a strong effort holds her back while she waits for the slow answers of the young men whom she drills over and over again in simple problems of arithmetic The class and the teacher are an epitome of American history They are more than that They are an epitome of all history We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience

Chronicles of America Ellsworth Huntington, 2013-06-03 In writing this book the author has aimed first to present in readable form the main facts about the geographical environment of American history Many important facts have been omitted or have been touched upon only lightly because they are generally familiar On the other hand special stress has been laid on certain broad phases of geography which are comparatively unfamiliar One of these is the similarity of form between the Old World and the New and between North and South America another is the distribution of indigenous types of vegetation in North America and a third is the relation of climate to health and energy In addition to these subjects the influence of geographical conditions upon the life of the primitive Indians has been emphasized This factor is especially important because people without iron tools and beasts of burden and without any cereal crops except corn must respond to their environment very differently from civilized people of today Limits of space and the desire to make this book readable have led to the omission of the detailed proof of some of the conclusions here set forth The special student will recognize such cases and will not judge them until he has read the author's fuller statements elsewhere The general reader for whom this book is designed will be thankful for the omission of such purely technical details The Red Man's Continent
