

HOW RED WINE IS MADE

The only range of wine-making equipment in the world that's designed for the home

Harvest grapes

The vintage (harvest) starts in late August and it's done by hand or machine. Generally speaking, red wine grapes are harvested in the autumn from white wine grapes.

Prepare grapes

Grapes are washed and destemmed. Some wineries ferment whole clusters to add flavour. The result is a complex wine with more body. Most winemakers will remove the stems, leaving them for the next stage.

Clarification

Clarifying or 'fining' agents such as egg whites or vegetable protein are added to the wine. These help to remove any remaining solids. Some wines are left to clarify naturally.

Press

After the fermentation process, the juice is pressed out of the skins and seeds. The juice is then filtered to remove any remaining solids.

Fermentation

Grapes are left to ferment in the barrel for several days. The juice is then filtered to remove any remaining solids. The result is a clear wine.

Add yeast

Yeast is added to the wine to start the fermentation process. The yeast will convert the sugar in the wine into alcohol. The wine is then left to ferment for several days.

Bottling

Bottling is done with care to ensure the wine is preserved. The bottles are sealed and the wine is then left to age.

Malolactic

As wine matures, it can develop a malolactic fermentation. This is a natural process where the lactic acid in the wine is converted into alcohol. This process is often used to create a smoother, more balanced wine.

Aging

Red wine is often aged in barrels for several months. This helps to develop the wine's flavor and texture. The wine is then filtered and bottled.

Blending

The winemaker blends the wine from different barrels to create a balanced, harmonious wine. The wine is then filtered and bottled.

Bottle aging

Some wines are aged in the bottle for several years. This helps to develop the wine's flavor and texture. The wine is then filtered and bottled.
