heroes have always been storytellers like the late Charles Kuralt of CBS's On The Road and Sunday Morning He was inspired by the great Hoosier war correspondent Ernie Pyle Today there's the great American raconteur Bob Dotson Not long ago when the NBC Today Show reporter spoke to a group of our students at Indiana University he reminded us of the wonderful stories that have made our country great He said to remember The reason you got here is because of all those who came before We are not cut from one cloth he said He's not talking about retelling the day to day murder mayhem and politics journalists must cover but looking under rocks and beside creeks to find stories about folks who work hard play hard and pray hard These are people who fly under the celebrity radar but who are the sturdy foundation of our country A lot of folks like that can be found in Indiana I'll never be able to take you on the remarkable journeys that Bob does with his words but I can share what it is about Indiana people places and things that I've come to hold dear in my world Much of it revolves around my family which is probably a lot like yours What I wrote was the mood and passion of my heart at that time in that place It is true that precious people and things reveal themselves in passing from us I'd like to share some of my precious memories from the past Maybe it will stir your memories and help encourage us all to appreciate the here and now

An Amazing Adventure Joseph I. Lieberman, Hadassah Lieberman, 2003-01-17 A groundbreaking memoir featuring the personal recollections of former Senator Joe Lieberman and his wife Hadassah of their 2000 vice-presidential campaign. From the second they find out that Joe had been chosen by Al Gore as his running mate, the Liebermans' lives drastically changed: privacy vanished as political handlers took over. Now Joe and Hadassah recount the excruciating vetting process, the exhilaration of the Democratic National Convention, the tension of the debates, and finally the drama of Election Day and of the contentious weeks that followed. Thrilled to be running in a national campaign that they regarded as immensely important to the national purpose and profoundly moved by the audiences that came to see and hear them, the Liebermans nevertheless admit that it was a complicated and demanding experience. The Liebermans' voices alternate throughout the book as they describe the excitement, their sense of the honor of being chosen, the extraordinary and sometimes exhausting demands, and the satisfactions and joys of the hard-fought campaign they waged as a team. Woven throughout this inspirational but cautionary tale are the Liebermans' opinions, including their take on Joe's being the first Jewish vice-presidential candidate and on Hadassah's debut to a national public as a first-generation American and child of Holocaust survivors. An Amazing Adventure is an honest, high-spirited, revealing, and ultimately optimistic book from the candidate and his wife on the American way of running for national office.

Humor in the White House Arthur A. Sloane, 2001-03-23 I heard one presidential candidate say that what this country needed was a president for the 90s. Ronald Reagan once said, "I was set to run again." I thought he said a president in his 90s. Abraham Lincoln, in one instance, was able to put a serious injury in a humorous light in response to a young woman's question about where a soldier was wounded. Lincoln replied, "Ma'am, the bullet that wounded him would not have wounded you." Presidents often bring a sense of humor to the White House, with them allowing the American public to catch a glimpse of their not-so-serious sides. This book examines how five of the nation's funniest chief executives—Abraham Lincoln, Calvin Coolidge, Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy, and Ronald Reagan—used wit and humor to their advantage during their terms as president and how their management of the Executive Branch was thereby enhanced. As a bonus, the effective use of humor by several unsuccessful presidential candidates is surveyed.
