Metropolis in Georgia Truman A. Hartshorn,1976 Race and the Greening of Atlanta Christopher C.

Sellers,2023-08-15 Race and the Greening of Atlanta turns an environmental lens on Atlanta's ascent to thriving capital of the Sunbelt over the twentieth century. Uniquely wide ranging in scale from the city's variegated neighborhoods up to its place in regional and national political economies this book reinterprets the fall of Jim Crow as a democratization born of two metropolitan movements: a well known one for civil rights and a lesser known one on behalf of the environment. Arising out of Atlanta's Black and white middle classes respectively, both movements owed much to New Deal capitalism's undermining of concentrated wealth and power, if not racial segregation in the Jim Crow South. Placing these two movements on the same historical page, Christopher C. Sellers spotlights those environmental inequities, ideals and provocations that catalyzed their divergent political projects. He then follows the intermittent, sometimes vital alliances they struck as civil rights activists tackled poverty as a new environmental state arose and as Black politicians began winning elections. Into the 1980s as a wealth concentrating style of capitalism returned to the city and Atlanta became a national poster child for sprawl, the seedbeds spread both for a national environmental justice movement and for an influential new style of antistatism. Sellers contends that this new conservatism, sweeping the South with an antienvironmentalism and budding white nationalism that echoed the region's Jim Crow past, once again challenged the democracy Atlantans had achieved. Where Peachtree Meets Sweet Auburn Gary M. Pomerantz,2021-04-13 A magnificent piece of writing, a beautiful tapestry of prose in which the stories of two of Atlanta's most celebrated families have been woven densely into the history of the city itself. The New York Times. The Intersection of Peachtree Street, historically the residential and commercial street of Atlanta's white elite, and Sweet Auburn Avenue, the spiritual main street of Atlanta's community, mirrors the often separate but mutually dependent worlds of whites and blacks in this Southern city. In Where Peachtree Meets Sweet Auburn, Gary M. Pomerantz traces five generations of two families: the Allens, descended from slave owners, and the Dobbsses, from slaves. These families produced the two most influential mayors of the modern South: Ivan Allen Jr. and Maynard Jackson Jr. Through hundreds of interviews and five years of painstaking research, Pomerantz shows how the families rose to social, economic and political prominence. But he also demonstrates how their interesting lives paralleled the shifting relations between Atlanta's blacks and whites as the city grew to become the capital of the New South. It is a representative story of the transformation of a city and the entire south.

Shopping Centre Development (RLE Retailing and Distribution) John Dawson, Dennis Lord,2012-10-02 The shopping centre has become an established feature of urban structure over the past thirty years. Development of centres has been rapid and little attempt has been made to consider the development process and the problems caused by it. There is a growing awareness that centres are not always wholly beneficial to their host cities and that some public policy control is necessary. This book examines the shopping centre development process and analyses the control policies which have been taken and which are needed It draws on material from throughout the developed world First published 1985 Technical report 13 United States. The Postsouthern Sense of Place in Contemporary Fiction Martyn Bone,2014-01-13 For generations southern novelists and critics have grappled with a concept that is widely seen as a trademark of their literature a strong attachment to geography or a sense of place In the 1930s the Agrarians accorded special meaning to rural life particularly the farm in their definitions of southern identity For them the South seemed an organic and rooted region in contrast to the North where real estate development and urban sprawl evoked a faceless raw capitalism By the end of the twentieth century however economic and social forces had converged to create a modernized South How have writers responded to this phenomenon Is there still a sense of place in the South or perhaps a distinctly postsouthern sense of place Martyn Bone innovatively draws upon postmodern thinking to consider the various perspectives that southern writers have brought to the concept of place and to look at its fate in a national and global context He begins with a revisionist assessment of the Agrarians who failed in their attempts to turn their proprietary ideal of the small farm into actual policy but whose broader rural aesthetic lived on in the work of neo Agrarian writers including William Faulkner and Eudora Welty By the 1950s adherence to this aesthetic was causing southern writers and critics to lose sight of the social reality of a changing South Bone turns to more recent works that do respond to the impact of capitalist spatial development on the South and on the nation generally including that self declared international city Atlanta Close readings of novels by Robert Penn Warren Walker Percy Richard Ford Anne Rivers Siddons Tom Wolfe and Toni Cade Bambara illuminate evolving ideas about capital land labor and class while introducing southern literary studies into wider debates around social cultural and literary geography Bone concludes his remarkably rich book by considering works of Harry Crews and Barbara Kingsolver that suggest the southern sense of place may be not only post Agrarian or postsouthern but also transnational

Inequality in an American City, Atlanta, Georgia, 1960-1970 David Marshall Smith,1981 Cities of Knowledge

Margaret Pugh O'Mara,2015-02-17 What is the magic formula for turning a place into a high tech capital How can a city or region become a high tech powerhouse like Silicon Valley For over half a century through boom times and bust business leaders and politicians have tried to become the next Silicon Valley but few have succeeded This book examines why high tech development became so economically important late in the twentieth century and why its magic formula of people jobs capital and institutions has been so difficult to replicate Margaret O Mara shows that high tech regions are not simply accidental market creations but cities of knowledge planned communities of scientific production that were shaped and subsidized by the original venture capitalist the Cold War defense complex At the heart of the story is the American research university an institution enriched by Cold War spending and actively engaged in economic development The story of the city of knowledge broadens our understanding of postwar urban history and of the relationship between civil society and the state in late twentieth century America It leads us to further redefine the American suburb as being much more than formless sprawl and shows how it is in fact the ultimate post industrial city Understanding this history and geography is essential to planning for the future of the high tech economy and this book is must reading for anyone interested in building the next Silicon Valley Inequality in Atlanta, Georgia, 1960-1980 David Marshall Smith,1985 Catalog of Copyright Entries.
