E. Taplin, Min Qui, Vivian K. Salim, Renlong Han, 2005-01-01 Demonstrating the application of evolutionary computing techniques to an exceptionally complex problem in the real business world Cost Benefit Analysis and Evolutionary Computing will be of great value to academics and those practitioners and researchers interested in addressing the classic issue of evaluating road expansion and maintenance programs BOOK JACKET      From Mobility to Accessibility Jonathan Levine, Joe Grengs, Louis A. Merlin, 2019-11-15 Levine Grengs and Merlin marshal a compelling case to shift to accessibility oriented planning providing much needed conceptual clarity as to what accessibility is and is not But their book also represents a major step toward transforming accessibility from a vaguely defined aspiration into concrete measures that can guide planning decisions Journal of the American Planning Association In From Mobility to Accessibility an expert team of researchers flips the tables on the standard models for evaluating regional transportation performance Jonathan Levine Joe Grengs and Louis A Merlin argue for an accessibility shift whereby transportation planning and the transportation dimensions of land use planning would be based on people's ability to reach destinations rather than on their ability to travel fast Existing models for planning and evaluating transportation which have taken vehicle speeds as the most important measure would make sense if movement were the purpose of transportation But it is the ability to reach destinations not movement per se that people seek from their transportation systems While the concept of accessibility has been around for the better part of a century From Mobility to Accessibility shows that the accessibility shift is compelled by the fundamental purpose of transportation The book argues that the shift would be transformative to the practice of both transportation and land use planning but is impeded by many conceptual obstacles regarding the nature of accessibility and its potential for guiding development of the built environment By redefining success in transportation the book provides city planners decisionmakers and scholars a path to reforming the practice of transportation and land use planning in modern cities and metropolitan areas

Advancing Equity Planning Now Norman Krumholz, Kathryn Wertheim Hexter, 2019-01-15 What can planners do to restore equity to their craft Drawing upon the perspectives of a diverse group of planning experts Advancing Equity Planning Now places the concepts of fairness and equal access squarely in the center of planning research and practice Editors Norman Krumholz and Kathryn Wertheim Hexter provide essential resources for city leaders and planners as well as for students and others interested in shaping the built environment for a more just world Advancing Equity Planning Now remind us that equity has always been an integral consideration in the planning profession The historic roots of that ethical commitment go back more than a century Yet a trend of growing inequality in America as well as other recent socioeconomic changes that divide the wealthiest from the middle and working classes challenge the notion that a rising economic tide lifts all boats When planning becomes mere place making for elites urban and regional planners need to return to the fundamentals of their profession Although they have not always done so planners are well positioned to advocate for greater equity in public policies that address the multiple objectives of urban planning including housing transportation economic development and the removal of noxious land uses in neighborhoods Thanks to generous funding from Cleveland State University the ebook editions of this book are available as Open Access volumes from Cornell Open cornellpress.cornell.edu/cornell-open and other repositories
