essays addressing contemporary issues in foreign and second language education. In particular, it addresses language learner autonomy both as a theoretical construct and in relation to areas of application such as the Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR), the European Language Portfolio (ELP), teacher training, Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL), and minority language provision. The contributors, well-known researchers, policy makers, teachers, and teacher trainers, provide a multi-faceted insight into an innovative and influential approach to language education. David Little, to whom the volume is dedicated, was Associate Professor of Applied Linguistics and Head of the School of Linguistic Speech and Communication Sciences at Trinity College Dublin. He is recognised worldwide as a leading proponent of the theory of language learner autonomy and has been a driving force behind many influential language education initiatives internationally.

A Conversation Analysis Approach to French L2 Learning Clelia König, 2019-12-06. This book offers a critical examination of second language (L2) learning outside institutional contexts, with a focus on the way second language learners introduce, close, and manage conversational topics in everyday settings. König adopts a Conversation Analysis for Second Language Acquisition (CA SLA) approach in analyzing oral data from a longitudinal study of L2 learners of French au pairs in Swiss families over several years. With this approach, the author presents insights into the ways in which L2 learners introduce and close conversational topics in ongoing conversations and how these strategies evolve over time, setting the stage for future research on this little-documented process in second language acquisition. This volume contributes toward a greater understanding of L2 learning in the wild, making it key reading for students and researchers in second language acquisition, applied linguistics, and French language learning and teaching.
