Currents of Archival Thinking Heather MacNeil, Terry Eastwood, 2017-01-09 With new technologies and additional goals driving their institutions archives are changing drastically This book shows how the foundations of archival practice can be brought forward to adapt to new environments while adhering to the key principles of preservation and access Archives of all types are experiencing a resurgence evolving to meet new environments digital and physical and new priorities To meet those changes professional archivist education programs now one of the more active segments of LIS schools are proliferating as well This book identifies core archival theories and approaches and how those interact with major issues and trends in the field The essays explore the progression of archival thinking today discussing the nature of archives in light of present day roles for archivists and archival institutions in the preservation of documentary heritage Examining new conceptualizations and emerging frameworks through the lenses of core archival practice and theory the book covers core foundational topics such as the nature of archives the ruling concept of provenance and the principal functions of archivists discussing each in the context of current and future environments and priorities Several new essays on topics of central importance not treated in the first edition are included such as digital preservation and the influence of new technologies on institutional programs that facilitate archival access advocacy and outreach the changing legal context of archives and archival work and the archival collections of private persons and organizations Readers will also learn how communities of various kinds intersect with the archival mission and how other disciplines perspectives on archives can open new avenues

Law, Memory, Violence Stewart Motha, Honni van Rijswijk, 2016-02-22 The demand for recognition responsibility and reparations is regularly invoked in the wake of colonialism genocide and mass violence there can be no victims without recognition no perpetrators without responsibility and no justice without reparations Or so it seems from law's limited repertoire for assembling the archive after the disaster Archival and memorial practices are central to contexts where transitional justice addressing historical wrongs or reparations are at stake The archive serves as a repository or storehouse of what needs to be gathered and recognised so that it can be left behind in order to inaugurate the future The archive manifests law's authority and its troubled conscience It is an indispensable part of the liberal legal response to biopolitical violence This collection challenges established approaches to transitional justice by opening up new dialogues about the problem of assembling law s archive The volume presents research drawn from multiple jurisdictions that address the following questions What resists being archived What spaces and practices of memory conscious and unconscious undo legal and sovereign alibis and confessions And what narrative forms expose the limits of responsibility recognition and reparations By treating the law as an archive this book traces the failure of universalised categories such as perpetrator victim responsibility and innocence posited by the liberal legal state It thereby uncovers law s counter archive as a challenge to established forms of representing and responding to violence
