Modern British Posters Paul Rennie,2010 Modern British Posters explores the interaction between modern art and graphic design in Britain throughout the twentieth century A distinctive characteristic of modern society is the progressively more complete integration of art design and architecture The poster has been an integral expression of this phenomenon since its invention in modern form during the 1860s The poster was made possible by the development of industrial colour lithography and by the appearance of large hoardings as a consequence of metropolitan redevelopment Furthermore this coincidence developed at precisely the same time as the birth of the cultural avant garde Following the First World War during a period of social and political realignment major artists embraced the developing technologies of graphic reproduction to make commercial poster images and reach out to an audience beyond the complacent limits of the gallery This required artists to embrace the possibilities of new technologies in print media and was thus instrumental in transforming commercial art into graphic design. From this point forward the poster and the artistic avant garde have been inextricably linked. The poster reached a level of maturity in design just as the cultural reform of the 1920s was beginning. This synchronicity has established the poster as a particularly significant cultural object. Every great artist in Britain contributed to this effort and Modern British Posters features the work of artists such as John Minton, Paul Nash, Hubert Williams, Edward McKnight Kauffer, Leonard Cusden, Edward Wadsworth, and Tom Eckersley amongst many others. These images speak broadly of people, landscape, technology, and identity and cover themes such as transport, architecture, the seaside, accident prevention, and popular culture. In Britain the graphic archive is dispersed amongst various institutions. This fragmentation means that for practical purposes the general story of British poster design remains to be told. As such Modern British Posters provides an important addition to the history of visual culture in Britain during the twentieth century. An Exhibition of the Work of Modern British Artists Institute of Contemporary Art (Boston, Mass.), 1946. Handbook of Modern British Painting and Printmaking, 1900-1990 Alan Windsor, 1998. The Handbook of Modern British Painting and Printmaking 1900-1990 has been designed for people who enjoy study and buy British art. The only portable dictionary style guide to the life and work of modern British painters and printmakers, the book provides information on some 2 000 artists as well as entries on schools of art, on museums, galleries, and collections, on societies and groups, and critics and patrons who have influenced the development of modern art in Britain. Artists are included if they at one end of the timescale had finished their training by 1900 and were truly beginning their professional career in the twentieth century and at the other end of the timescale had established themselves professionally on the national scene by 1990. If the artist was foreign born, he or she is included if they resided in Britain and exhibited or worked here long enough for their presence to be of significance for British art.
