Agriculture and Developing Countries Anwarul Hoda, Ashok Gulati, 2007 The World Trade Organization's Doha Round of trade talks has been plagued by a lack of concrete progress toward establishing a fair and harmonious agricultural trading system. Because the results of the Doha Round could have far reaching implications for the trade and economic prospects of developing countries in the twenty first century it is critical for these countries to fully understand the issues involved in the negotiations on agriculture. However there has been no authoritative analysis of the rules and modalities on which governments of developing countries can rely. This book coauthored by an insider to the trade talks that led to the establishment of the WTO fills this gap. The volume begins with a detailed analysis of the provisions of the WTO's Agreement on Agriculture and the modalities of the negotiations. It examines the implementation experience of key members of the WTO then traces the developments in the negotiations up to the recent impasse. In light of these considerations and on the basis of a case study of India the authors propose various elements of a negotiating position and strategy for developing countries. The authors offer tough but realistic recommendations regarding tariffs, market access, treatment of sensitive or special products and other aspects of international trade. This book will be of particular interest to researchers and practitioners as well as students seeking in depth knowledge of the recent history of agricultural trade talks. Agriculture in the GATT Charles E. Hanrahan, 1986 Review of the Uruguay Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations Under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade United States. Congress. House. Committee on Agriculture. Subcommittee on Department Operations, Research, and Foreign Agriculture, 1992 Agricultural liberalization in multilateral and regional trade negotiations (Working Paper SITI = Documento de Trabajo IECI n. 3) Marcos Sawaya Jank, Ian Fuchsloch, Géraldine Kutas, 2003 Agricultural Trade Negotiations United States. General Accounting Office, 1991 Agricultural Trade Negotiations United States. General Accounting Office, 1988 Developing Countries and the Next Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations Anne O. Krueger, 2016 Broad based liberalization is in the interests of developing countries. Developing countries became full fledged participants in multilateral trade negotiations only with the Uruguay Round during which they succeeded in bringing agriculture into the GATT WTO reaching agreement on phasing out the Multi Fibre Arrangement within 10 years and beginning work on services among other things. Their overriding interest in the new round is still to ensure the healthy expansion of an open multilateral trading system. Developing countries should seek across the board liberalization rather than zero for zero reductions which tend to favor the interests of industrial countries which focus on sectors in which they have comparative advantage and diminish the support for further cuts Liberalization of agricultural trade provides important opportunities Developing countries have a considerable stake in reducing agricultural protection and subsidies and prohibiting agricultural taxes and export quotas Of particular interest are agreements covering services including for example agreements on ways to permit the temporary immigration of construction workers It is important that labor standards not be used to stifle competition from labor abundant developing countries that any agreement about labor standards not raise the costs of unskilled labor in countries whose comparative advantage lies in exported products that use unskilled labor extensively and that excessively high product standards not be imposed Developing countries can increase their leverage substantially by forming coalitions based on common interests in a wide range of areas as the Cairns group did in the Uruguay Round This paper a product of Trade Development Research Group is part of a larger effort in the group to identify opportunities for developing countries in the WTO 2000 negotiations The author may be contacted at akrueger leland stanford edu

International Agricultural Trade Negotiations in the Mid-1980's United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry,1986 Australia and the Next Multilateral Trade Negotiations for Agriculture Ivan Roberts,1997 Trade, Tokyo Round of the Multilateral Trade Negotiations, Alcoholic Beverages ,1981 Reforming Agricultural Trade for Developing Countries Alex F. McCalla,John D. Nash,2006-11-09 In the ongoing Doha Development Round of World Trade Organization negotiations developing countries have had much greater leverage due at least in part to their large and growing share of world trade But will the increased influence of developing countries translate into a final agreement that is truly more development friendly What would be key ingredients in such a final outcome of the negotiations and what would the developing countries really get out of it This two volume set seeks to answer these questions This volume Volume 2 addresses the question of how a development friendly outcome to the talks would affect developing countries by quantifying the impact of multilateral trade reform It presents several different approaches to modeling the effects of the outcome of negotiations and then investigates why these and other modeling efforts produce such divergent results Volume 1 is issues oriented It takes up some key questions in the negotiations setting the stage with a historical overview of the Doha Development Agenda to help identify issues of most significance to developing countries and then explores select issues in greater depth Aimed at policymakers and stakeholders this two volume effort puts into the public domain important analytical work that will improve the chance for a pro development outcomes of the Doha round negotiations

Agriculture in the Uruguay Round R.C. Hine,K.A. Ingersent,A.J. Rayner,1993-11-26 Agriculture was a major item on the agenda of the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT launched in 1986 In this specially commissioned volume the national positions on agriculture taken up by the major players during the course of these negotiations are set out and analysed country by country by a team of internationally renowned experts The editors have selected and ordered the studies to provide a coherent assessment and synthesis of the main issues and areas of controversy raised by the negotiations Examination of the reasons for the holding of different national perspectives on the issue of agricultural policy and trade reform helps to explain why reaching international agreement in this area of the GATT negotiations has been so elusive Report on Agricultural Concessions in the Multilateral Trade Negotiations ,1981
