Abstract. Environmental regulations play a crucial role in shaping the operations of multinational enterprises (MNEs), with different countries adopting diverse approaches to ensure sustainable development and reduce environmental degradation. This essay will provide an in-depth comparison of the environmental regulations in China and the UK, focusing on critical aspects of their regulatory frameworks, climate change and carbon emissions policies, corporate environmental reporting requirements, and enforcement and compliance systems. The central argument of this essay is that the differences in ecological regulations between China and the UK have significant implications for MNEs operating in these countries, affecting their compliance costs, operational risks, and opportunities for innovation. By comparing the regulatory landscapes in China and the UK, this essay provides valuable insights for policymakers, business leaders, and other stakeholders in understanding the complexities and implications of multinational operations in different regulatory environments.

Keywords: Environmental regulation; Multinational enterprises (MNEs); China; United Kingdom (UK); Harmonisation of global standards.

1. Introduction

Environmental regulation ensures that MNEs maintain sustainable business practices while contributing to global efforts in addressing pressing environmental challenges. As MNEs expand their operations across borders, they must navigate complex and often divergent regulatory landscapes in host countries. Among these, China and the United Kingdom present two distinct approaches to environmental regulation, shaped by their unique political, economic, and social contexts. This essay aims to provide a comparative analysis of environmental rules for MNEs in China and the UK, focusing on the differences and similarities in their approaches and the potential implications for MNEs operating in both countries. Both China and the UK face various environmental challenges that have driven their respective efforts in environmental regulation. As the world's second-largest economy, China has undergone swift industrialisation and urbanisation in recent years, resulting in substantial ecological challenges, including air, water, and soil contamination, as well as a rise in greenhouse gas emissions. On the other hand, the United Kingdom, a developed nation with a long history of industrialisation, deals with air pollution, flooding, waste management, and habitat loss, among other environmental concerns.

These environmental challenges have shaped the general ecological regulatory frameworks in both countries. In response to its urgent environmental concerns, China has implemented numerous legislations, including the Environmental Protection Law, the Water Pollution Prevention and Control Law, and the Air Pollution Prevention and Control Law. Moreover, the country has set ambitious targets for renewable energy development and aims to achieve carbon neutrality by 2060. The UK government has established solid regulatory structures via legislation like the Environmental Protection Act, the Climate Change Act, and the Water Resources Act. Additionally, the UK has pledged to achieve net-zero greenhouse gas emissions by 2050 and has introduced forward-thinking policies concerning carbon pricing, renewable energy, and energy efficiency. Despite the shared goal of addressing environmental challenges, there are notable differences and similarities between China's and the UK's regulatory frameworks. One significant difference lies in their approach to

East Central Europe Ágnes Szunomár, 2020-11-23 The rise of multinational enterprises MNEs from emerging markets is topical important and poses a number of questions and challenges that require considerable attention in the future from academia as well as business management The recent takeovers of high profile companies in developed or developing countries by non European emerging market MNEs EMNEs such as Lenovo Wanhua China Hindalco India CVRD Brazil Cemex Mexico Lukoil Russia etc as well as the greenfield or brownfield investments of emerging companies such as Huawei ZTE Tata Pepco etc show a new trend where new kind of firms become major players globally EMNEs have become important players in several regions around the globe ranging from the least developed countries of Africa through the developing markets in Latin America and Asia to the developed countries of the United States or the European Union including East Central European ECE countries EMNEs presence on the global level has resulted in numerous studies in the international literature but those research results barely cover EMNEs activities in the ECE region in the East Central European EU member countries including the Czech Republic Hungary Poland Slovakia and Slovenia The existing books typically focus on the investment activity of a single country or region such as China or East Asia but a comprehensive analysis is still missing in this regard The novelty of this edited volume is that it aims at exploring EMNEs location determinants strategies activities and challenges in East Central Europe by discussing its anomalies to the traditional theories as well as to other types of MNEs in the ECE region The authors focus on EMNEs not only from China but from other important emerging countries too such as Russia India South Korea Taiwan Turkey Brazil or South Africa

Multinationals and East-West Relations J Wilczynski, 2019-03-08 WHEN in the future historians examine the second half of the twentieth century they will no doubt identify the accelerated inter nationalization of production as a landmark comparable with the Industrial Revolution In this process multinational enterprises have been leading actors in the past twenty five years and are certain to continue to be so in the next quarter century In 1975 the sales of the Western multinational corporations represented one fifth of the Gross National Product of all capitalist countries. If their growth is maintained at the same rate as over the period 1950-75, by the end of the century this share will be nearly one half and the whole capitalist economy may very well be dominated by some 200 giant corporations of which three quarters may be American based.

Multinational Enterprises, Markets and Institutional Diversity Alain Verbeke, Rob van Tulder, Sarianna Lundan, 2014-10-29. This research volume in honour of the late Daniel Van Den Bulcke, one of the founding fathers of the European Business Academy EIBA and a core institution builder of the Academy of International Business AIB, focuses on conceptual innovations in assessing the impact of institutions on multinational enterprise (MNE) strategies.

Multinational Enterprises and the Global Economy John H. Dunning, Sarianna M. Lundan, 2008-01-01. For many years to come, this volume is surely going to be the ultimate reference work on international business. Thanks to Dunning and Lundan, we have at our disposal a wealth of relevant data as well as theoretical and empirical analyses which will enable us to assess the capabilities, contributions and challenges posed by the multinational enterprises to the global economy. Seev Hirsch, International Business Review. Multinational Enterprises and the Global Economy has become a classic in international business. Yet the book's second edition is even better than the first, in part because of Professor Dunning's wise decision to choose Dr Lundan as his co-author and to draw upon her deep knowledge of various strands of research on business-government relations and the societal effects of firm behaviour. In addition to being a remarkably useful reference book, Multinational Enterprises and the Global Economy is the first book any IB doctoral student should read to understand the significance and richness of IB scholarship as it has developed over the past 50 years. Alain Verbeke, Journal of International Business Studies. The second edition of Multinational Enterprises and the Global Economy provides unparalleled coverage, not only of the literature relevant to IB research but also of the evolution of IB in the world economy. Dunning and Lundan offer powerful insights into the societal effects of MNEs and the role of business-government relations in the IB context. Journal of International Business Studies. This wonderful book offers the definitive synthesis of the modern literature on the economic aspects of international business. It is encyclopedic yet full of incisive insights. It is a creative masterpiece which unbundles the DNA of the multinational enterprise and shows how it is the cornerstone of the field of international business. Alan M. Rugman, University of Reading, UK. The rise of the multinational enterprise and the consequent globalisation of the world economy was arguably the single most important phenomenon of the second half of the twentieth century. This magisterial book, written by two leading authorities, examines this phenomenon in depth. It explains how foreign investment by multinationals diffused advanced technologies and novel management methods, driving productivity growth in Europe, Asia and North America; however, economic inequalities were reinforced as rich countries attracted more foreign investment than poor ones. This new edition of a classic work is not only an authoritative guide to contemporary multinational business but a major historical resource for the future. Mark Casson, University of Reading, UK. This thoroughly updated and revised edition of a widely acclaimed classic text will be required reading for academics, policymakers and advanced students of international business worldwide. Employing a distinctive and unified framework, this book draws together research across a range of academic fields to offer a synthesis of the determinants of MNE activity and its effects on the economic and social well-being of developed and developing countries. Unique to the new edition is its focus on the institutional underpinnings of the resources and capabilities of MNEs and the role of MNE activity in transmitting and facilitating institutional change. Since the initial publication of this book more than a decade ago, the economic, managerial and social implications of globalisation and technological advancement have become even more varied and prominent. Accompanying these developments, there has been a rise in scholarly interest in interdisciplinary research addressing the important challenges of an ever-changing physical and human environment. Drawing on articles and books from international business and economics, as well as economic geography, political economy and strategic management, a systematic overview of the developments in scholarly thinking is presented.

Ahmed, Omer F. Genc, 2024-12-23 Globalization has changed the world economic picture and emerging markets have developed very fast. Several multinational companies from emerging markets came to world arena and compete with big multinationals from developed countries. This book explores the ways in which emerging multinational enterprises (eMNEs) work to become competitive global brands. It explores eMNEs from industries such as airlines, banking, food distribution, automotive and information technology. These cases are useful to researchers, scholars, students and practitioners interested in eMNEs, branding and emerging markets.
