Third World Governments and Multinational Corporations: Dynamics of Host's Bargaining Power

SHAH M.TARZI

Shah M.Tarzi examines the bargaining relationship between Third World host governments and multinational corporations (MNCs). While host governments seek to encourage firms to locate within their countries on the best terms possible, MNCs want to minimize the conditions and restrictions the host government is able to impose on their operations. Tarzi identifies several factors that affect the bargaining power of the host government. He distinguishes between factors that influence the potential power of the state, such as its managerial skills, and those that affect the ability of the state to exercise its bargaining power. Actual power, as he terms it, is determined by societal pressures the host government faces, the strategy of the MNC, and the international pressures from the MNC's home government.

INTRODUCTION

In their economic relationships with multinational corporations, Third World countries would seem to have the critical advantage, inasmuch as they control access to their own territory. That access includes internal markets, the local labour supplies, investment opportunities, sources of raw materials, and other resources that multinational firms need or desire. In practical terms, however, this apparent bargaining advantage on the part of the host nation, in most instances, is greatly surpassed by the superior advantages of the multinationals. Multinational corporations possess the required capital, technology, managerial skills, access to world markets, and other resources that governments in the Third World need or wish to obtain for purposes of economic development.

In addition to firm-specific assets—technology, managerial skills, capital and access to markets—the economic power of the multinationals grows out of a combination of additional factors. First, foreign investment accounts for large

Multinational Institutions And The Third World:

Multinational Institutions and the Third World Robert Henriques Girling, 1985 As the problem of Third World debt and the inevitable consequences of default loom over the international economic agenda some coherent perspective becomes essential to future planning Multinational Institutions and the Third World provides such a reasoned perspective by bringing a comprehensive discussion of trade and debt issues to bear on the actual and ideal roles of the multinational institution in our international economic environment The United Nations and Other International Institutions Frederick Henry Gareau, 2002 This work is a critical study of the United Nations and other international and intergovernmental organizations such as The International Monetary Fund World Trade Organization Trilateral Commission Group of Seven OPEC and the Organization of American States Frederick Gareau presents these international organizations in action The book goes beyond the description and history of organizations to critically analyze the role of governments especially the United States in the functioning of international organizations The impact of the hegemonic Washington is examined throughout the text The author uses the casebook method to put intergovernmental organizations IGOs in a broad context Special attention is given to the issues of terrorism both state terrorism and individual terrorism This readable book is free of economic and legal jargon and will be a valuable resource to students of international politics and American foreign policy as well as to the lay reader A Burnham Publishers book Multinational Corporations and the Third World Som Deo, 1986

International Law and the Third World Richard Falk, Balakrishnan Rajagopal, Jacqueline Stevens, 2008-03-31 This volume is devoted to critically exploring the past present and future relevance of international law to the priorities of the countries peoples and regions of the South Within the limits of space it has tried to be comprehensive in scope and representative in perspective and participation The contributions are grouped into three clusters to give some sense of coherence to the overall theme articles by Baxi Anghie Falk Stevens and Rajagopal on general issues bearing on the interplay between international law and world order articles highlighting regional experience by An Na im Okafor Obregon and Shalakany and articles on substantive perspectives by Mgbeoji Nesiah Said Elver King Irani Chinkin Charlesworth and Gathii This collective effort gives an illuminating account of the unifying themes while at the same time exhibiting the wide diversity of concerns and approaches

The Third World and International Order Antony Anghie, Bhupinder Chimni, Karin Mickelson, Obiora C. Okafor, 2021-07-26 This collection of essays explores different dimensions of the relationship between the third world and international law The topics covered include third world approaches to international law non state actors and developing countries feminism and the third world foreign investment resistance and international law and territorial disputes and native peoples It is a further contribution to the work done by scholars intent on elaborating what might be termed Third World Approaches to International Law TWAIL This initiative seeks to continue and further develop the important work that has been done over many decades particularly by scholars and jurists from the third world to construct an international law which is sensitive to the needs of third world peoples This body of scholarship has attempted to extend and expand the concerns and materials of international law The essays in this volume are animated by these same motives at a time when unprecedented issues confront third world peoples particularly since the contemporary international system appears to be disempowering third world peoples intensifying inequality between the North and the South and indeed importantly within the North and the South TWAIL scholars attempt to look afresh at the history of colonial international law engage previous trends in third world scholarship in international law take cognizance of the dramatic changes which have characterized the body of international law in the last few decades from the perspective of third world peoples record their resistance to unjust and oppressive international laws and advance new approaches that address their needs and concerns These are the broad themes and concerns which animate this collection of essays

International Law from Below Balakrishnan Rajagopal, 2003-11-06 The emergence of transnational social movements as major actors in international politics as witnessed in Seattle in 1999 and elsewhere has sent shockwaves through the international system Many questions have arisen about the legitimacy coherence and efficiency of the international order in the light of the challenges posed by social movements This book offers a fundamental critique of twentieth century international law from the perspective of Third World social movements It examines in detail the growth of two key components of modern international law international institutions and human rights in the context of changing historical patterns of Third World resistance Using a historical and interdisciplinary approach Rajagopal presents compelling evidence challenging debates on the evolution of norms and institutions the meaning and nature of the Third World as well as the political economy of its involvement in the international system

The Battle for International Law Jochen von Bernstorff, Philipp Dann, 2019-10-22 This volume provides the first comprehensive analysis of international legal debates between 1955 and 1975 related to the formal decolonization process It is during this era couched between classic European imperialism and a new form of US led Western hegemony that fundamental legal debates took place over a new international legal order for a decolonised world The book argues that this era presents in essence a battle a battle that was fought out in particular over the premises and principles of international law by diplomats lawyers and scholars In a moment of relative weakness of European powers newly independent states and international lawyers from the South fundamentally challenged traditional Western perceptions of international legal structures engaging in fundamental controversies over a new international law The legal outcomes of this battle have shaped the world we live in today Contributions from a global set of authors cover contemporary debates on concepts central to the time such as self determination sources and concessions non intervention wars of national liberation multinational corporations and the law of the sea They also discuss influential institutions such as the United Nations International Court of Justice and World Bank The volume also incorporates contemporary regional approaches to international law in the decolonization era and portraits of important scholars from the Global South

U.S. Foreign Policy and the Third World--agenda 1985-86 John Williamson Sewell, 1985

Human Rights and Development in International Law Tahmina Karimova, 2016-04-28 This book addresses the legal issues raised by the interaction between human rights and development in contemporary international law In particular it charts the parameters of international law that states have to take into account in order to protect human rights in the process of development In doing so it departs from traditional analyses where human rights are mainly considered as a political dimension of development Rather the book suggests focusing on human rights as a system of international norms establishing minimum standards of protection of individuals and minimum standards applicable in all circumstances on what is essential for a dignified existence The various dimensions covered in the book include the discourse on human rights and development interrelationship particularly opinio juris and the practice of states on the question the notion of international assistance and cooperation in human rights law under legal regimes such as international humanitarian law and emerging rules in the area of protection of persons in the event of disasters the extraterritorial scope of economic social and cultural rights treaties and legal principles on the respect for human rights in externally designed and planned development activities Analysis of these topics sheds light on the question of whether international law as it stands today addresses most of the issues concerning the protection of human rights in the development process

The Making of Global International Relations Amitav Acharya, Barry Buzan, 2019-02-14 This book presents a challenge to the discipline of international relations IR to rethink itself in the light of both its own modern origins and the two centuries of world history that have shaped it By tracking the development of thinking about IR and the practice of world politics this book shows how they relate to each other across five time periods from nineteenth century colonialism through two world wars the Cold War and decolonization to twenty first century globalization It gives equal weight to both the neglected voices and histories of the Global South and the traditionally dominant perspectives of the West showing how they have moved from nearly complete separation to the beginnings of significant integration The authors argue that IR needs to continue this globalizing movement if it is to cope with the rapidly emerging post Western world order with its more diffuse distribution of wealth power and cultural authority

Economic Development in the Third World Michael P. Multilateral Institutions Morten Bøås, Desmond McNeill, 2003-02-20 In recent years a great deal of public attention has been focussed on multilateral institutions such as the World Bank IMF and WTO This book offers students practitioners and activists a critical guide to these and other major institutions the Regional Development Banks and UNDP that make up the multilateral development system It analyses how they operate with respect to financing and lending the various roles that they play and related changes in their policy concerns such as structural adjustment sustainable development and governance The emphasis is on politics within and also between multilateral institutions analysing the relations both competitive and collaborative between for example the World Bank and UNDP NGOs are also shown to be important actors and the role they have played in recent years is critically assessed The book concludes with some emerging trends the privatisation of the system regionalisation and the politics of protest B s and McNeill do not simply take the policies of multilateral institutions at face value but ask how and why these policies came into existence They seek to promote critical but informed engagement both with the member states of multilateral institutions and the institutions themselves

Rich Country Interests and Third World Development Robert Cassen, Richard Jolly, John W. Sewell, Robert Wood, 2025-04-01 First published in 1982 Rich Country Interests and

Third World Development adds breadth and specificity to the exploration of the interests in Third World development of eleven rich countries the United States Canada Japan Australia the United Kingdom the Federal Republic of Germany The Netherlands Denmark Sweden Norway and France The authors analyze a spectrum of Northern economic political and security interests in development in the South They also examine how national experiences political traditions humanistic values and changing attitudes have influenced perceptions of and relationships with Third World countries over three decades of dramatic change in the North South environment This book helps lay a foundation for negotiated solutions to North South issues by offering a greater appreciation of differences as well as commonalities in interests both among and within industrial and developing countries An overview chapter points to issues broader than those raised in the country studies and addresses a critical question On what terms is it in the interests of the North and South to pursue and fashion interdependence between them in the 1980s

International Institutions and Power Politics Anders Wivel,T.V.

Paul,2019-10-01 This book moves scholarly debates beyond the old question of whether or not international institutions matter in order to examine how they matter even in a world of power politics Power politics and international institutions are often studied as two separate domains but this is in need of rethinking because today most states strategically use institutions to further their interests Anders Wivel T V Paul and the international group of contributing authors update our understanding of how institutions are viewed among the major theoretical paradigms in international relations and they seek to bridge the divides Empirical chapters examine specific institutions in practice including the United Nations International Atomic Energy Agency and the European Union The book also points the way to future research International Institutions and Power Politics provides insights for both international relations theory and practical matters of foreign affairs and it will be essential reading for all international relations scholars and advanced students
