Multiple Systems Organ Failure Michael R. Pinsky, George M. Matuschak, 1989 Multiple Organ Failure Arthur E. Baue, Eugen Faist, Donald Fry, 2000-06-08 Inflammation in itself is not to be considered as a disease and in disease where it can alter the diseased mode of action it likewise leads to a cure but where it cannot accomplish that solitary purpose it does mischief John Hunter A Treatise on the Blood ITfllammation and Gunshot Woundr London 1794 1 As we reached the millennium we recognized the gap between our scientific knowledge of biologic processes and our more limited clinical capabilities in the care of patients Our science is strong Molecular biology is powerful but our therapy to help patients is weaker and more limited For this reason this book focuses on the problems of multiple organ failure MOF multiple organ dysfunction syndrome MODS and systemic inflammatory response syndrome is patients who have severe injuries require major SIRS in high risk patients that overwhelming operations or have serious illnesses requiring intensive care patients who have diseases elsewhere in other organs or systems that limit their capabilities to survive a new insult and patients who are elderly or at high risk for sepsis or other complications These are the patients who need our help They need the advances in science in molecular biology immunology pathophysiology biochemistry genetics high technology and other areas of maximum support at the bedside These advances could potentially have the greatest impact on improving patient care

The Complement System Janos Szebeni, 2007-05-08

As a phylogenetically old system complement is now regarded as a part of innate immunity But it is much more than that It bridges innate and adapted immunity participates not only in host defense but also in many essential physiological processes old and new diseases and adverse conditions Indeed complement became a term that almost defies categorization What was for a long time a subject for a limited number of specialists has now moved into the mainstream of experimental and clinical immunology In 1973 I visited the Basel Institute of Immunology and met its director the eminent scientist and Nobel laureate Nils Jerne When I entered his office he greeted me with the following words Complement does that really exist I was never certain whether he wanted only to tease me or whether he sincerely believed that the complement system was an unimportant biological curiosity a misstep of evolution But of course missteps do not survive the evolutionary process Little did I foresee the dramatic developments of recent years when Hans J Müller-Eberhard and I started to unravel the specifics of the action of the cobra venom factor on the complement system in 1968 and defined a new pathway to its activation An elucidation of the role of the system in diseases and its control for therapeutic reasons is now getting closer to actual realization in the clinic although many problems in particular those of highly specific inhibition free of side effects have still to be resolved
