S. Nijenhuis, Kathy Steele, 2006-11-17 Life is an ongoing struggle for patients who have been chronically traumatized They typically have a wide array of symptoms often classified under different combinations of comorbidity which can make assessment and treatment complicated and confusing for the therapist Many patients have substantial problems with daily living and relationships including serious intrapsychic conflicts and maladaptive coping strategies Their suffering essentially relates to a terrifying and painful past that haunts them Even when survivors attempt to hide their distress beneath a facade of normality a common strategy therapists often feel besieged by their many symptoms and serious pain Small wonder that many survivors of chronic traumatization have seen several therapists with little if any gains and that quite a few have been labeled as untreatable or resistant In this book three leading researchers and clinicians share what they have learned from treating and studying chronically traumatized individuals across more than 65 years of collective experience Based on the theory of structural dissociation of the personality in combination with a Janetian psychology of action the authors have developed a model of phase oriented treatment that focuses on the identification and treatment of structural dissociation and related maladaptive mental and behavioral actions The foundation of this approach is to support patients in learning more effective mental and behavioral actions that will enable them to become more adaptive in life and to resolve their structural dissociation This principle implies an overall therapeutic goal of raising the integrative capacity in order to cope with the demands of daily life and deal with the haunting remnants of the past with the unfinished business of traumatic memories Of interest to clinicians students of clinical psychology and psychiatry as well as to researchers all those interested in adult survivors of chronic child abuse and neglect will find helpful insights and tools that may make the treatment more effective and efficient and more tolerable for the suffering patient

Trauma and Dissociation in a Cross-Cultural Perspective George F Rhoades Jr, Vedat Sar, 2013-05-13 An international look at the similarities and differences of long lasting trauma Trauma and Dissociation in a Cross Cultural Perspective examines the psychological sociological political economic and cultural aspects of trauma and its consequences on people around the world Dispelling the myth that trauma related dissociative disorders are a North American phenomenon this unique book travels through more than a dozen countries to analyze the effects of long lasting traumatization both natural and man made on adults and children Working from theoretical and clinical perspectives the field s leading experts address trauma in situations that range from the psychological effects of the Troubles in Northern Ireland to the emergence of Hikikomori the phenomenon of social withdrawal in Japanese youth Reactions to trauma can be both unique according to a person s culture and similar to the experiences of others around the world Dissociation intense grief anger and survivor s guilt are common responses as people split off mentally physically and emotionally from the source of the trauma whether it s an act of nature tsunami earthquake flood etc or the trauma created by violence physical sexual and emotional abuse assault confinement kidnapping and war Trauma and Dissociation in a Cross Cultural Perspective examines the efforts of clinicians and researchers in Europe Asia the Middle East South America Australia and New Zealand to develop sociopsychological methods of providing counseling to people who are suffering physically emotionally and spiritually training for professionals counted on to dispense that counseling and economic and political solutions that might help to limit the devastating effects of natural disasters Trauma and Dissociation in a Cross

Cultural Perspective examines the tensions between the National Health Service and the private sector in the United Kingdom how the Mandarin version of the Dissociative Experiences Scale DES is used in China Djinnai a culture bound syndrome and possession trance disorder found in Iran how colonialism has transmitted trauma to the Maori people of New Zealand transgenerational trauma in Turkey religious rituals and spirit possession in the Philippines memory wars in Israel traumatic syndromes among the French differences in dissociative experiences among Chinese and Japanese youth childhood trauma in Argentina and much more Trauma and Dissociation in a Cross Cultural Perspective is an enlightening professional resource for anyone working in psychology sociology psychiatry and psychotherapy Trauma, Dissociation, and Impulse Dyscontrol in Eating Disorders Johan Vanderlinden, Walter Vandereycken, 1997 In the past decade therapists have begun to see a relationship between experiencing trauma and the development of eating disorders Trauma Dissociation and Impulse Dyscontrol in Eating Disorders explores this relationship and presents the latest in theory assessment and treatment of traumatic and dissociation experiences coupled with eating disorders Many examples and practical guidelines are given throughout the book about assessment and treatment Original research findings extensive case vignettes detailed therapeutic guidelines a full copy of several new questionnaires and a complete list of references on the subject are also included Finally the authors discuss critical issues regarding risks complications and pitfalls in treatment and analyzing the outcome of the approach used by the therapist Trauma, Dissociation, And Impulse Dyscontrol In Eating Disorders P.E.R., 2013-05-13 Published in 1997 Trauma Dissociation And Impulse Dyscontrol In Eating Disorders is a valuable contribution to the field of Psychotherapy Treating Trauma-Related Dissociation Kathy Steele, Suzette Boon, Onno van der Hart, 2016-11-29 Winner of the 2017 International Society for the Study of Trauma and Dissociation ISSTD Pierre Janet Writing Award Establishing safety and working with dissociative parts in complex trauma therapy Therapists around the world ask similar questions and struggle with similar challenges treating highly dissociative patients This book arose not only out of countless hours of treating patients with dissociative disorders but also out of the crucible of supervision and consultation where therapists bring their most urgent questions needs and vulnerabilities The book offers an overview of the neuropsychology of dissociation as a disorder of non realization as well as chapters on assessment prognosis case formulation treatment planning and treatment phases and goals based on best practices The authors describe what to focus on first in a complex therapy and how to do it how to help patients establish both internal and external safety without rescuing how to work systematically with dissociative parts of a patient in ways that facilitate integration rather than further dissociation how to set and maintain helpful boundaries specific ways to stay focused on process instead of content how to deal compassionately and effectively with disorganized attachment and dependency on the therapist how to help patients integrate traumatic memories what to do when the patient is enraged chronically ashamed avoidant or unable to trust the therapist and how to compassionately understand and work with resistances as a co creation of both patient and therapist

Relational ways of being with the patient are the backbone of treatment and are themselves essential therapeutic interventions. As such, the book also focused not only on highly practical and theoretically sound interventions, not only on what to do and say but places strong emphasis on how to be with patients, describing innovative, compassionately collaborative approaches based on the latest research on attachment and evolutionary psychology. Throughout the book, core concepts, fundamental ideas that are highlighted in the text in bold so they can be seen at a glance, are emphasized. These serve as guiding principles in treatment as well as a summing up of many of the most important notions in each chapter. Each chapter concludes with a section for further examination. These sections include additional ideas and questions, exercises for practicing skills, and suggestions for peer discussions based on topics in a particular chapter meant to inspire further curiosity, discovery, and growth.

Changes in the Therapist Stephen Kahn, Erika Fromm, 2000-10-01. Modern therapy has shifted its emphasis to focus on the interpersonal field and on mutuality of influence. The therapist and the patient are now seen as participating in an ongoing feedback loop with each influencing the other. This interpersonal focus has brought the therapists and their reactions more into the foreground. Experiences with patients can in fact have strong reverberations in practitioners' own lives and can be the cause or source of essential changes in the psyche of the therapist. This book is the first to explore how efforts to work through issues in therapeutic relationships may permanently affect therapists' beliefs, feelings, and/or actions. The authors, all highly regarded senior clinicians, describe their own reactions and the types of changes that they went through as a consequence of their treatment of a particular patient. They do not make the therapeutic process seem artificially smooth and seamless. In probing their own struggles and difficulties, they illuminate the in-depth workings of the therapeutic relationship. The editors' introduction constructs a systematic framework within which to think about the changes the authors recount. Changes in the Therapist will be of compelling interest to all those involved in therapy.

Phenomenological Inquiry in Psychology Ron Valle, 2013-11-11. This fine new book, the third in a series, brings psychologists up to date on the advances of phenomenological research methods in illuminating the nature of human awareness and experiences. In the more congenial and welcoming intellectual climate of the 1990s, phenomenological methods have moved to the forefront of discourse on research methods that support and advocate an expanding view of science. In Valle and King 1978, phenomenological methods were presented as alternatives to behavioral methods. In Valle and Halling 1989, phenomenological methods were advanced to perspectives in psychology. This new volume is even less cautious, indeed bolder, in relation to conventional methods and epistemologies. By now, people knowledgeable about psychology and most psychologists have digested the criticisms directed against methods that operationalize, quantify, and often minimize human behavior. In bringing us up to date on the growing power of phenomenological methods, this volume brings welcome coherence and integrity to an increasingly harried science attempting to reenchant itself with meaning and depth, an endeavor artfully exemplified by phenomenological inquiries of the last several decades.

A Multi-modal

Approach to Creative Art Therapy Arthur Robbins, 1994 This text recasts Arthur Robbins early work within the framework of modern psychodynamic theory The creative intent of this text is to offer a structure that is not limited to one therapeutic model and to open up the doors for the creative art therapist to be effective with a wide range of patient populations

Abused by Therapy Katharine Mair, 2013-10-01 Abused by Therapy debunks an enduring myth dating back to Freud that certain conditions are nearly always caused by childhood trauma Therapists believing this will use recovered memory therapy to search for this hidden cause behind current problems They may find it but what exactly are they finding When their clients recover memories of horrifying trauma often involving sexual abuse by their parents does this reveal what really happened or does it merely reflect the therapist's assumptions This unique book gives an inside view of the process by which people are persuaded to rewrite their past history so that loving parents become seen as abusers who must be rejected The new memories may be completely false yet they can shatter the lives of all concerned not just the clients and their accused families but also the therapists themselves who become trapped into upholding increasingly implausible and distressing beliefs An international campaign is now promoting the view that dissociative disorders such as multiple personality disorder are caused by severe early trauma It is argued that there is no scientific basis for this claim and that the recommended treatment has not been shown to confer any benefits that outweigh its heavy cost
