Multiple Sclerosis Rosalind Kalb, 2005-09-01 Because most people who are diagnosed with MS are between the ages of 15 55 years the disease has a significant impact not only on the individual with the disease but also on the family members and loved ones whose lives are interwoven with them Families experiencing multiple sclerosis often find themselves in uncharted territory Prior patterns of interacting with each other may no longer work roles often shift with dramatic emotional impact guilt anger sadness and a sense of burden may create a barrier to intimacy joy growth and family unity There are ways out of this debilitating situation and many families have restored their balance humor productivity and family solidarity Multiple Sclerosis A Guide for Families can lead the way for your family to strengthen its coping skills and to receive targeted information about the disease and its ramifications This complete yet highly readable guide for families living with multiple sclerosis addresses these issues and more Families must learn how to strike a reasonable balance between the interests and needs of its members and to accommodate the limitations imposed by MS without allowing them to impact every aspect of family life This is easier said than done and extensive discussions consider how the basic goals of living with this chronic disease can be met

Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging Barbara

Berkman,2006-02-09 The Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging is the first reference to combine the fields of health care aging and social work in a single authoritative volume These areas are too often treated as discrete entities while the reality is that all social workers deal with issues in health and aging on a daily basis regardless of practice specialization As the baby boomers age the impact on practice in health and aging will be dramatic and social workers need more specialized knowledge about aging health care and the resources available to best serve older adults and their families The volume s 102 original chapters and 13 overviews written by the most experienced and prominent gerontological health care scholars in the United States and across the world provide social work practitioners and educators with up to date knowledge of evidence based practice guidelines for effectively assessing and treating older adults and their families new models for intervention in both community based practice and institutional care and knowledge of significant policy and research issues in health and aging A truly monumental resource this handbook represents the best research on health and aging available to social workers today
