Murder In The Madhouse:

Murder in the Madhouse Jonathan Latimer, 2014-04-29 To catch a thief a detective has himself committed to a high class asylum The orderlies do not need a straitjacket for Bill Crane He is not violent although he does have a bad habit of making embarrassing deductions about the doctors This sarcastic hard drinking man has deluded himself into thinking he is Edgar Allan Poe s great detective C Auguste Dupin For this he has been put away in a stately mental hospital on the Hudson But Crane is not as delusional as he appears Though he may not be Dupin he certainly is a detective one of the greatest and occasionally drunkest of them all Sent undercover to investigate the theft of an inmate s fortune Crane finds the institution not as comfortable as he had hoped When his fellow patients start dying he must solve the murders or risk losing his sanity after all Murder in a madhouse C. B. Molyneaux, 1946

Stewards of the House Bill Brubaker, 1993 Jonathan Latimer 1906 1983 wrote nine detective novels He also wrote or co wrote 20 film scripts including such noir classics as the second version of Dashiell Hammett s The Glass Key Kenneth Fearing s The Big Clock and Cornell Woolrich s The Night Has a Thousand Eyes Moving to television writing he scripted 45 original stories and adapted 50 Eric Stanley Gardner novels for the Perry Mason series

Economic Investigations in Twentieth-Century Detective Fiction Yan Zi-Ling, 2016-03-09 In his study of Golden Age and hard boiled detective fiction from 1890 to 1950 Yan Zi Ling argues that these two subgenres can be distinguished not only by theme and style but by the way they structure knowledge value and productive labour Using the detective as a reference point and enactor of socially based interests Yan shows that Golden Age texts are distinguished by their conservatism and not only by their conservatism with the detectives actions serving to stabilize institutions with specific ideological aims In contrast the criminal investigations of the hard boiled detective who is poorly aligned with institutions and strong interest groups reveal the fragility of the status quo in the face of escalating cycles of violence Key to Yan s discussion are theories of exchange value and the gift the latter of which he suggests is more akin to detective work than is wage labour Analyzing texts by a wide range of authors that includes Arthur Conan Doyle Agatha Christie Dashiell Hammett Raymond Chandler Dorothy Sayers Raoul Whitfield George Harmon Coxe and Mickey Spillane Yan demonstrates that the detective s truth generating function most often characterized as a process of discovery rather than creation is in fact crucial to the institutional and class based interests that he or she serves

In a Madhouse's Din Susan M. Weill, 2002-03-30 Mississippi is a unique case study as a result of its long standing defiance of federal civil rights legislation and the fact that nearly half its population was black and relegated to second class citizenship According to the vast majority of Mississippi daily press editorials examined between 1948 and 1968 the notion that blacks and whites were equal as races of people was a concept that remained unacceptable and inconceivable While the daily press certainly did not advocate desegregation in contrast to what many media critics have reported about the Southern press promoting violence to suppress civil rights activity Mississippi daily newspapers never encouraged or condoned violence during the time periods under evaluation Weill places coverage of these important events within a historical context shedding new light on media opinion in the state most resistant to the precepts of the civil rights movement This is the first comprehensive examination of civil rights coverage and white supremacist rhetoric in the Mississippi daily press during five key events the 1948 Dixiecrat protest of the national Democratic platform the Brown v Board of Education Supreme Court decision to desegregate public schools in 1954 the court ordered desegregation of Ole Miss in 1962 Freedom Summer in 1964 and the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr in 1968 From nearly 5 000 issues of Mississippi daily newspapers more than 1 000 editorials and 7 000 news articles are documented in this volume
