Luggage of Life Frank William Boreham,1930 The Luggage of Life Frank Boreham,2015-06-16 Excerpt from The Luggage of Life These leaves are of Australian growth It is both unnecessary and impossible to disguise it The breath of the bush is on them There were however so many who found them good either for food or for medicine in these Britains of the South that it was suggested that the plant might survive the ordeal of transplantation to a northern clime England is a land of noble hospitalities And after all men are built pretty much the same way all the world over A thing that is true under these soft southern skies is no less true where northern constellations burn A word that wakens thought beneath the shadow of the wattle may lead a man to rub his eyes under a spreading English oak A message that brings back the smile of courage to the bronzed face of a disheartened squatter may relieve a bruised spirit in London s central roar And so I venture I only hope that I may take the sob from one throat or make one song more blithe About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
