UNESCO Biosphere Reserves BRs are designated areas in geographical regions of global socio ecological significance This definitive book shows their global relevance and contribution to environmental protection biocultural diversity and education Initiated in the 1970s as part of UNESCO s Man and Biosphere MAB Programme BRs share a set of common objectives to support and demonstrate a balance between biodiversity conservation sustainable development and research The world s 701 BRs form an international intergovernmental network to support the aims of sustainability science but this purpose has not always been widely understood In three distinct sections the book starts by outlining the origins of BRs and the MAB Programme showing how they contribute to advancing sustainable development The second section documents the evolution of BRs around the world including case studies from each of the five UNESCO world regions Each case study demonstrates how conservation sustainable development and the role of scientific research have been interpreted locally The book concludes by discussing thematic lessons to help understand the challenges and opportunities associated with sustainability science providing a unique platform from which lessons can be learned This includes how concepts become actions on the ground and how ideas can be taken up across sites at differing scales This book will be of great interest to professionals engaged in conservation and sustainable development NGOs policy makers and advanced students in environmental management ecology sustainability science environmental anthropology and geography Annual Report - Canada Council Canada Council,1972 Info MAB ,1993 American Land Sovereignty Protection Act United States. Congress. House. Committee on Resources,1999 Full of Life German MAB National Committee,2004-09-10 Biosphere reserves serve in some ways as living laboratories for testing and demonstrating integrated management of land water and biodiversity With this publication the national MAB committee of Germany gives a detailed presentation and description of the Biosphere Reserves of Germany Large-scale Livestock Grazing Harald Plachter,Ulrich Hampicke,2010-02-02 One of the main objectives of nature conservation in Europe is to protect valuable cultural landscapes characterized by a mixture of open habitats and hedges trees and patchy woodland semi open landscapes The development of these landscapes during the past decades has been characterized by an ongoing intensification of land use on the one hand and an increasing number of former meadows and pastures becoming fallow as a result of changing economic conditions on the other hand Since species adapted to open and semi open landscapes contribute to biodiversity in Europe in a major way this development is of great concern to nature conservation In several countries largescale nature adapted pastoral systems have been recognized as one solution to this problem These systems could offer an alternative to industrial livestock raising and keep a high biodiversity on the landscape level Against the background of livestock diseases such as BSE and Foot and Mouth Disease and the efforts to reform the Common Agricultural Policy in the EU by changing the criteria for agricultural subsidies these concepts gain particular significance They could also represent an alternative to the established costly habitat management tools
