If experience has established any one thing in this world it has established this that it is well for any great class or description of men in society to be able to say for itself what it wants and not to have other classes the so called educated and intelligent classes acting for it as its proctors and supposed to understand its wants and provide for them They do not really understand its wants they do not really provide for them A class of men may often itself not either fully understand its own wants or adequately express them but it has a nearer interest and a more sure diligence in the matter than any of its proctors and therefore a better chance of success It is an infamous thing in our American life and fundamentally treacherous to our institutions to apply to any man any test save that of his personal worth or to draw between two sets of men any distinction save the distinction of conduct the distinction that marks off those who do well and wisely from those who do ill and foolishly There are good citizens and bad citizens in every class as in every locality and the attitude of decent people toward great public and social questions should be determined not by the accidental questions of employment or locality but by those deep set principles which represent the innermost souls of men A healthy republican government must rest upon individuals not upon classes or sections As soon as it becomes government by a class or by a section it departs from the old American ideal About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
