Metropolitan Housing Market Meera Mehta, Dinesh Mehta, H. M. Shivanand Swamy, 1989 Metropolitan Housing Market Meera Mehta, Dinesh Mehta, 1989 This book examines the housing supply and demand processes within a metropolitan setting. It provides a descriptive account of the nature and changes in the supply of housing by the public and private sectors and the impact of various policies on the supply of housing in the city. The analysis of demand for housing provides income and price elasticities of demand for owner and rented housing across various income groups. Residential behaviour is examined within the perspective of needs and preferences, mobility and upward mobility in housing.

Urbanisation, Citizenship and Conflict in India Tommaso Bobbio, 2015-06-19 Urbanisation is rapidly changing the geographic and social landscape of India and indeed Asia as a whole. Issues of collective violence, urban poverty and discrimination become crucial factors in the redefinition of citizenship not only in legal terms but also in a cultural and socio-economic dimension. While Indian cities are becoming the centres of a culture of exclusion against vulnerable social groups, a long-term perspective is essential to understand the patterns that shaped the space, politics, economy and culture of contemporary metropolises. This book takes a critical longer-term view of India's economic transition. The idea that urban growth goes hand in hand with the modernisation of the country does not account for the fact that increasingly higher portions of the urban population are comprised of lower income groups, casual labourers and slum dwellers. Using the case study of Ahmedabad, this book investigates the history of the city and of its people over the twentieth century. It analyses the contrasting relationship between urban authorities and the inhabitants of Ahmedabad and examines instances of antagonism and negotiation amongst people groups and between the people and the public authority that have continuously shaped, transformed and redefined life in the city. This book offers an important tool for understanding the bigger context of the conflicts, the social and cultural issues that accompanied the broader process of urbanisation in contemporary India. It will be of interest to scholars of Urban History, studies of collective violence and South Asian Studies. Handbook of Regional and Urban Economics Peter Nijkamp, E.S. Mills, P.C. Cheshire, 1986 Fifteen essays in this handbook are divided into four parts. Part I surveys basic spatial and spatially related research. Part II surveys literature on specific urban markets. Part III is devoted to studies of urban development and problems in developing countries. Part IV contains papers on specific urban problems and sectors.

Housing Policy Matters Shlomo Angel, 2000-11-16 This book unifies housing policy by integrating industrialized and developing country interventions in the housing sector into a comprehensive global framework. and Massoumi's text addresses the ways in which religion can affect the city and indeed how the city can affect religion. International experts in sociology, anthropology, religious studies, urban planning, and geography come together to provide thought-provoking pieces on whether a fundamentalist city is possible. National Trends in Housing-production Practices, 1993. Squatters as Developers? Vinit Mukhija, 2017-03-02. In the mid 1990s the state government of Maharashtra introduced an innovative strategy of slum redevelopment in its capital city Mumbai (Bombay). Based on demolishing existing slums and rebuilding on the same sites at a higher density, it is very distinct from the two prevalent conventional strategies with respect to slums in developing countries: slum clearance and slum upgrading. So why did the slum redevelopment strategy originate in Mumbai and how did it do so? What were the key issues in the implementation of such a project? This critical volume responds to these questions by closely examining one particular redevelopment project over a period of twelve years: the Markandeya Cooperative Housing Society (MCHS). It analyzes the problems faced and the solutions innovated, identifies non-traditional issues often overlooked in housing improvement strategies, reveals the complexities involved in housing production for low-income groups, and combines in-depth empirical research with historical, institutional, spatial, and financial perspectives to improve our understanding of complex urban development processes. Urban Development

Purewal,2024-11-01 This title was first published in 2000 The privatization of former social state housing through recent public private partnerships is becoming increasingly prevalent in Third World as well as in Western countries In most Third World countries this shift has had profound effects upon the patterns of access of shelter Drawing on studies of South Asian and other Third World contexts as well as original in depth empirical research from Amritsar a city in North West India this book offers an analysis of the withdrawal of state housing provision It develops and applies a unique model based on social status to analyze the new routes of access to housing and land by the urban poor Its conclusions argue that these new privatization policies largely rely upon already existing informal and self help settlements which continue to attract the poor and to be the largest housing providers in many cities thus providing a ready made safety net for such policies The inter linkages between the private state and the public market make up a highly diversified and complex picture of shelter arrangements being accessed by the poor which is reflected in the social differentiation and increasingly stratified housing market The book argues that these partnership policies therefore have long term implications upon social patterns of inclusion and exclusion which must be addressed
