Studying Politics Across Media Leticia Bode,Emily K. Vraga,2020-06-29 This book highlights the diverse methods needed to study a complex media environment and the nuance and richness of the understanding gained by doing so by offering examples of political communication research considering multiple platforms simultaneously Political communication research that considers multiple media platforms is difficult and expensive to perform and therefore relatively rare Yet studying media platforms in isolation ignores the realities of the varied and complicated contemporary media experience where most individuals consume information from multiple media outlets Media platforms from traditional outlets such as newspapers and television to newer online platforms such as social media have proliferated in recent years This makes the media environment itself more complex as classic understandings of how the media function give way to a growing recognition of the hybrid media system where divisions between content and producers are opaque and where information is gleaned from increasingly diverse and numerous sources Studying political communication across platforms allows better understanding of which types of experiences and effects are universal and which are specific to particular platforms This book was originally published as a special issue of Political Communication

Youth Activism in Environmental Politics, 2nd Edition Matt Henn,Sarah Pickard,2023-02-02 Recently important new research has emerged to explain the large intergenerational cleavages in values and political preferences in many contemporary societies In most established democracies and many newer democracies young people are more likely to possess progressive values and are much more cosmopolitan in their outlook socially liberal accepting of cultural diversity and outward looking than older generations They tend to reject mainstream electoral politics and authoritarian nationalist forms of populism in favour of alternative progressive political parties and movements Indeed there is burgeoning evidence of a global tendency towards young people's support for and participation in new styles of non institutionalised political action that seem to better fit their life styles and to permit the actualisation of their political aspirations Although there is a considerable body of existing literature that examines the rise of such values and political participation preferences there is little work that focuses on the relationship with the prioritisation of environmental issues and environmental activism as evidenced in the September 2019 global climate strikes The goal of the current Research Topic is to explore the contemporary realities and patterns of youth participation in environmental politics in different societies As such we welcome manuscripts of original research and conceptualization that address the different practices of youth as they seek to effect environmental change and also their motivations for doing so Contributions are welcome from scholars youth practitioners and activists operating in a range of different settings and using diverse disciplinary and multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives
