München Im Bombenkrieg:

München im Bombenkrieg Eva Berthold, Norbert Matern, 1983 Der Bombenkrieg 1939-1945 Rolf-Dieter Müller, 2004 Der Zweite Weltkrieg wurde zu großen Teilen in der Luft ausgetragen. Bomber verwandelten europäische Städte in Ruinenfelder. Allein in Deutschland starben über 450000 Menschen. 5 Millionen wurden obdachlos. Das Buch zur NDR Fernsehdokumentation präsentiert den neuesten Stand der deutschen und internationalen Forschung für ein breites Publikum. Die leicht lesbare Darstellung mit vielen Fotos und Zeitzeugenberichten liefert einen Überblick über Ursachen und Folgen des Bombenkrieges. Sie nicht auf einseitige Opferbetrachtung zielt sondern Daten und Fakten mit historischen Analysen und politischen Hintergründen verbindet. Dadurch ist das Buch nicht nur für die jüngere Generation eine spannende Lektüre sondern kann auch denen, die den Bombenkrieg miterlebten, zusammenhängend neu erklären. Ausgehend von einer knapp gehaltenen Vorgeschichte, die von den Erfahrungen der Bombeneinsätze im Ersten Weltkrieg und im Spanischen Bürgerkrieg bis zum Zweiten Weltkrieg nachzeichnet, werden parallel zur Filmstruktur drei große Themenkomplexe behandelt: die deutschen Angriffsoperationen zu Beginn des Krieges 1939-40 und die Zerstörung europäischer Großstädte wie Warschau, Rotterdam und Coventry; der Gegenschlag der Alliierten 1940-43, um den Kampfgeist der Deutschen zu brechen; und der Bombenkrieg als Selbstzweck mit seinen Fliegerbombardements gegen deutsche Zivilstände 1943-45. Ein packende Darstellung der Ereignisse und ihrer Zusammenhänge, die nicht zuletzt durch unzählige Fotos die todbringende Zeit des Bombenkrieges in Europa ins Bewusstsein rückt.

Munich and Memory Gavriel D. Rosenfeld, 2023-12-22

Munich, notorious in recent history as the capital of the Nazi movement, is the site of Gavriel Rosenfeld's stimulating inquiry into the German collective memory of the Third Reich. Rosenfeld shows, with the aid of a wealth of photographs, how the city's urban form developed after 1945 in direct reflection of its inhabitants' evolving memory of the Second World War and the Nazi dictatorship. In the second half of the twentieth century, the German people's struggle to come to terms with the legacy of Nazism has dramatically shaped nearly all dimensions of their political, social, and cultural life. The area of urban development and the built environment, little explored until now, offers visible evidence of the struggle. By examining the ways in which the people of Munich reconstructed the ruins of their historic buildings, created new works of architecture, dealt with surviving Nazi buildings, and erected new monuments to commemorate the horrors of the recent past, Rosenfeld identifies a spectrum of competing memories of the Nazi experience. Munich's postwar development was the subject of constant controversy, pitting representatives of contending aesthetic and mnemonic positions against one another in the heated battle to shape the city's urban form. Examining the debates between traditionalists, modernists, postmodernists, and critical preservationists, Rosenfeld shows that the memory of Nazism in Munich has never been repressed but has rather been defined by constant dissension and evolution. On balance, however, he concludes that Munich came to embody in its urban form a conservative view of the past that was inclined to diminish local responsibility for the Third Reich.

Europe now at the heart of a united continent it is even more difficult to explain how only 70 years ago European states destroyed much of the urban landscape from the air There were many blitzes between 1940 and 1945 with an estimated 700 000 people killed The purpose of this book is to provide the basis for a comparison of the experience of western states under the impact of bombing In particular it considers the political cultural and social responses to bombing rather than the military strategic and social dimensions which have formed the core of the discussion hitherto This book will correct the popular perception of the British Blitz as the key bombing experience by exposing the reality of life under the bombs for communities as far apart as Brest Palermo and Rostock An international panel of historians consider the issues raised amidst the bombing of human rights and protection of civilians in this seminal event in C20th history Wandlungen der Erinnerungskultur: Gibt es eine "neue deutsche Opfergeschichte?" explores changing German memories of World War II as it analyzes the construction of narratives in the postwar period including the depiction of the bombing of individual German cities. The book offers a corrective notion rising in the late 1990s notion that discussions of the Allied bombing were long overdue because Germans who had endured the bombings had largely been condemned to silence after 1945. David Crew shows that far from being marginalized in postwar historical consciousness the bombing war was in fact a central strand of German memory and identity. Local narratives of the bombing war including photographic books had already established themselves as important vectors of memory in the late 1940s and early 1950s. The bombing war had allowed Germans to see themselves as victims at a time when the Allied liberation of the concentration camps and the Nuremberg trials presented Germans to the world as perpetrators or at least as accomplices. The bombing war continued to serve this function even as Germans became more and more willing directly to confront the genocide of European Jews which by the 1960s was beginning to be referred to as the Holocaust. Bodies and Ruins examines a range of local publications that carried photographic images of German cities destroyed in the air war images that soon entered the visual memory of World War II. Despite its obvious importance historians have paid very little attention to the visual representation of the bombing war. This book follows the search for what were considered to be the right stories and the right pictures of the bombing war in local publications and picture books from 1945 to the present and is intended for historians as well as general readers interested in World War II the Allied bombing of German cities the Holocaust the history of memory and photographic visual history.

Terror From the Sky Igor Primoratz, 2010-06-01 In this first interdisciplinary study of this contentious subject leading experts in politics history and philosophy examine the complex aspects of the terror bombing of German cities during World War II. The contributors address the decision to embark on the bombing campaign the moral issues raised by the bombing and the main stages of the campaign and its effects on German civilians as well as on Germany's war effort. The book places the bombing campaign within the context of the history of air warfare presenting the bombing as the first stage of the particular type of state terrorism that led to Hiroshima and Nagasaki and brought about the Cold War era balance of terror. In doing so it makes an important contribution to current debates about terrorism. It also analyzes the public debate in Germany about the historical moral and political significance of the deliberate killing of up to 600 000 German civilians by the British and American air forces. This pioneering collaboration provides a platform for a wide range of views some of which are controversial on a highly topical painful and morally challenging subject.

Victims and Perpetrators: 1933-1945 Laurel Cohen-Pfister, Dagmar Wienroeder-Skinner, 2012-03-12 This volume examines the politics of history and memory in Germany today through a review and analysis of seminal developments in the current discourse on 1933-1945. An interdisciplinary work this book examines questions of representing the past from the perspective of literary studies social psychology film studies history and cultural studies. Themes include transgenerational memory and remembrance the air war and German literature commemoration and silences transnational reconciliation and historical consciousness in the German present. The collected essays make clear that as the current discourse contributes toward an historically informed differentiated understanding of individuals' roles in the Third Reich and World War Two, victim and perpetrator identities cannot be defined as exclusive from one another. The discourse emphasizes personal over collective experience and answers questions of responsibility and guilt on the individual level.
