Madison Ron Grimes, Jane Ammeson, 2006 Madison tucked among the rolling southeastern hills that meander toward the Ohio River was settled when Indiana was still a territory and became a city in 1809 A major river port Madison thrived during the steamboat era as well as when railroads came to dominate the landscape The city's glorious past is still on display Many magnificent edifices dating back to eras from the beginning of the 1800s to the early 20th century provide wonderful examples of Federal Greek Revival and Italianate architecture The National Register of Historic Places lists over 133 Madison blocks making it Indiana's largest historic district To stroll along the main streets of Madison to follow the river as it meanders past the town or to visit the restored railroad station now home to the Jefferson County Historical Society is to follow the paths of history Very few cities in America can boast such centuries old splendor Madison tucked among the rolling southeastern hills that meander toward the Ohio River was settled when Indiana was still a territory and became a city in 1809 A major river port Madison thrived during the steamboat era as well as when railroads came to dominate the landscape The city's glorious past is still on display Many magnificent edifices dating back to eras from the beginning of the 1800s to the early 20th century provide wonderful examples of Federal Greek Revival and Italianate architecture The National Register of Historic Places lists over 133 Madison blocks making it Indiana's largest historic district To stroll along the main streets of Madison to follow the river as it meanders past the town or to visit the restored railroad station now home to the Jefferson County Historical Society is to follow the paths of history Very few cities in America can boast such centuries old splendor

Madison, Connecticut in the Twentieth Century Charlotte L. Evarts Memorial Archives, Madison Historical Society, 1998-09 Throughout the 20th century Madison progressed slowly from a rural economy to one based on seasonal residents and then to that of a largely residential community The development along the shoreline that marked the first 50 years of the century eventually spread inland to the rest of Madison From 1 500 residents in 1900 the population swelled to a suburban community of over 16 000 This book is a photographic journey of this growing town which changed significantly following the completion of the Connecticut Turnpike Images document commercial establishments the 1938 hurricane the Field Company the Future Farmers Fair and the construction of the Connecticut Turnpike

Madison County Linda J. Higgins, Scott Parish, 2009 Madison County became the hub of West Tennessee in the 20th century Now major highways and rail lines traverse the county and its seat Jackson Three railroad companies and industry spawned by the railroads such as the cotton mill town of Bemis provided the main sources of employment during the 1900s As job opportunities abounded the population grew Images of America Madison County features the industrial development business history and lives of those people who were touched by this tremendous growth in Jackson and the county's outlying communities during the 20th century

Devil's Lake, Wisconsin and the Civilian Conservation Corps Robert J. Moore, 2011-06-07 Thousands of young men embarked on the adventure of a lifetime when they joined the Civilian

Conservation Corps during the Great Depression Service at Wisconsin's popular state park offered notoriety absent at most camp assignments While most of the CCC work around the country was in remote forests and farmlands at Devil's Lake tourists could view CCC project activity each day forging that labor into an essential part of the park experience Historian Robert J Moore interviews veterans and mines the archives to preserve this legacy so that the gasps of wonder at nature's marvels remain mixed with respect for the men who helped bring them forth Marshall Susan Collins, Jane Ammeson, 2007 A charming Michigan town and recipient of the Dozen Distinctive Destinations award by the National Trust for Historic Preservation Marshall boasts homes and businesses that are immaculately restored architectural gems whose styles include Gothic Revival Queen Anne and Second Empire To stroll along the streets here past the Honolulu House home to the Marshall Historical Society and a paean to a 19th century judge's passion for the tropics toward the National House an old stagecoach inn dating back to the 1840s and now a thriving bed and breakfast is to appreciate the homage to the past that has kept this jewel of a town a major travel destination for those who honor history History comes alive to those dining at Winn Schuler's the oldest restaurant in the state and a mainstay in downtown Marshall since the beginning of the 20th century In Marshall it is easy to step back in time and enjoy all that life had to offer to travelers of a different era

Galluzzo, Millville Army Air Field Museum, 2011-05-16 Millville had always been known for its glassmaking but with the outbreak of World War II the communitys identity was primed to change forever A private civilian airfield gave way to the creation of Americas first defense airport the training ground for the U S Armys Curtiss P 40 Warhawk and Republic P 47 Thunderbolt pilots Bright and brave young men from across the country converged on Millville in the early 1940s to learn to fly and fight for freedom Some died in training others flew into history as heroes While in Millville they lived the average lives of the countrys military men playing baseball flirting with the girls at the local USO dances and attending Sunday night dinner with local families creating lifelong friendships in a time when a young man's life expectancy was in the hands of America's enemies

Detroit Area Test Tracks Michael W. R. Davis, 2010-01-04 Join author Michael W. R. Davis as he retraces the history of what went on behind the scenes of testing automotive tracks in Detroit, Michigan. The catastrophic failure of a new but unproven copper-cooled Chevrolet in 1923 led the General Motors Corporation to buy back the 100 cars it had sold to the public and recall another 400 in company and dealer hands. As a result, in 1924 General Motors started building the industry's first scientific proving ground to test new vehicle designs before they were released for production and sale. Before this, all automakers tested new cars haphazardly on public roads and within limited engineering laboratories. Better known by the public as test tracks, the proving grounds became a source of curiosity for decades about the secrets they might hold. Detroit Area Test Tracks goes behind the test track walls to show how the facilities evolved and what typically takes place inside.
