

MATTER

An Erotic Ecology

A painting of a forest scene. In the center, a small, young tree with bright, golden-yellow leaves stands out against the darker, muted greens and browns of the surrounding forest. The tree's leaves appear to be glowing. The forest floor is covered in fallen leaves and branches. In the background, several tall, slender trees rise up, their trunks dark and textured. The overall atmosphere is mysterious and ethereal.

Matter Of Desire A Novel:

The Matter of Desire Edmundo Paz Soldán, 2003 Paz Soldán leading spokesperson for the McOndo literary movement which embraces an urban vision of American pop culture in today's Latin America combines elements of political thriller and family mystery with a torrid illicit love affair

World Exhaustion in Latin American Literatures and Cultures / El agotamiento del mundo en las literaturas y culturas de América Latina Gesine Müller, Ignacio M. Sánchez

Prado, 2025-03-31 The volume analyzes the implications of the world exhaustion concept that has emerged in a post global cultural context and whose effects are particularly salient in Latin American literatures and cultures This conceptual term aptly describes the ambivalent lived experiences of societies that have been marked by centuries of globalization and the artistic production that seeks to give form and meaning to these experiences

Faulkner and the Craft of Fiction Doreen Fowler, Ann J. Abadie, 2010-01-06 In 1944 William Faulkner wrote to Malcolm Cowley I'm telling the same story over and over which is myself and the world That's all a writer ever does he tells his own biography in a thousand different terms With these words Faulkner suggests that what changes in the course of his prolific novel writing career is not so much the content but the style the thousand different terms of his fiction The essays in Faulkner and the Craft of Fiction first presented at the 1987 Faulkner and Yoknapatawpha Conference at the University of Mississippi focus on Faulkner's narrative inventiveness on how Faulkner like his character Benjy in The Sound and the Fury relentlessly kept trying to say The contributors' authorities on Faulkner's narrative offer a wide variety of critical approaches to Faulkner's fiction writing process Cleanth Brooks for example applies the strategies of New Criticism to Faulkner's rendering of the heroic and pastoral modes Judith L. Sensibar attempts to locate biographical sources for repeated Faulknerian paradigms and Philip M. Weinstein draws on the theories of the Marxist Althusser and the French psychoanalyst Lacan The topics examined are similarly wide ranging

Desire and Domestic Fiction Nancy Armstrong, 1990-02-22 Desire and Domestic Fiction argues that far from being removed from historical events novels by writers from Richardson to Woolf were themselves agents of the rise of the middle class Drawing on texts that range from 18th century female conduct books and contract theory to modern psychoanalytic case histories and theories of reading Armstrong shows that the emergence of a particular form of female subjectivity capable of reigning over the household paved the way for the establishment of institutions which today are accepted centers of political power Neither passive subjects nor embattled rebels the middle class women who were authors and subjects of the major tradition of British fiction were among the forgers of a new form of power that worked in and through their writing to replace prevailing notions of identity with a gender determined subjectivity Examining the works of such novelists as Samuel Richardson Jane Austen and the Brontës she reveals the ways in which these authors rewrite the domestic practices and sexual relations of the past to create the historical context through which modern institutional power would seem not only natural but also humane and therefore to be desired

Cruising Modernism Michael Trask, 2018-05-31 Modern society Michael Trask argues in this incisive and original book chose to couch class difference in terms of illicit sexuality Trask demonstrates how sexual science's concept of erotic perversion mediated the writing of both literary figures and social theorists when it came to the innovative and unsettling social arrangements of the early twentieth century Trask focuses on the James brothers in a critique of pragmatism and anti immigrant sentiment shows the influence of behavioral psychology on Gertrude Stein's work uncovers a sustained reflection on casual labor in Hart Crane's lyric poetry and traces the identification of working class Catholics with deviant passions in Willa Cather's fiction Finally Trask examines how literary leftists borrowed the antiprostitution rhetoric of Progressive era reformers to protest the ascendance of consumerism in the 1920s Viewing class as a restless and unstable category Trask contends American modernist writers appropriated sexology's concept of evasive unmoored desire to account for the seismic shift in social relations during the Progressive era and beyond Looking closely at the fraught ideological space between real and perceived class differences Cruising Modernism discloses there a pervasive representation of sexuality as well

A Matter of Complexion Tess Chakkalalakal, 2025-02-04 Amid today's movement against D E I and Black studies Tess Chakkalalakal's A Matter of Complexion makes an urgent case for the importance of Black artistry during racially reactive and violent times Chakkalalakal's thoughtfully written biography is a timely reminder of the influence of artists like Charles W Chesnutt today when perhaps only literature has the power to sustain us The New York Times Book Review A biography of Charles Chesnutt one of the first American authors to write for both Black and white readers In A Matter of Complexion Tess Chakkalalakal gives readers the first comprehensive biography of Charles W Chesnutt A complex and talented man Chesnutt was born in 1858 in Cleveland to parents who were considered mixed race He spent his early life in North Carolina after the Civil War Though light skinned Chesnutt remained a member of the black community throughout his life He studied among students at the State Colored Normal School who were formerly enslaved He became a teacher in rural North Carolina during Reconstruction His life in the South of those years the issue of race and how he himself identified as Black informed much of his later writing He went on to become the first Black writer whose stories appeared in The Atlantic Monthly and whose books were published by Houghton Mifflin Through his literary work as a writer critic and speaker Chesnutt transformed the publishing world by crossing racial barriers that divided black writers from white and seamlessly including both Black and white characters in his writing In A Matter of Complexion Chakkalalakal pens the biography of a poor teacher raised in rural North Carolina during Reconstruction who became the first professional African American writer to break into the all white literary establishment and win admirers as diverse as William Dean Howells Booker T Washington Ida B Wells and Lorraine Hansberry

Falling Into Matter Elizabeth R. Napier, 2012-01-01 Falling into Matter examines the complex role of the body in the development of the English novel in the eighteenth century Elizabeth R Napier argues that despite an increasing emphasis on the need to present ideas in corporeal terms early fiction writers continued to register spiritual and moral reservations about the centrality of the body to human and imaginative experience Drawing on six works of early English fiction Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe Jonathan Swift's Gulliver's Travels Samuel Richardson's Clarissa Henry Fielding's Tom Jones Elizabeth Inchbald's A Simple Story and Mary Shelley's Frankenstein Napier examines how authors grappled with technical and philosophical issues of the body questioning its capacity for moral action its relationship to individual freedom and dignity and its role in the creation of art Falling into Matter charts the course of the early novel as its authors engaged formally stylistically and thematically with the increasingly insistent role of the body in the new genre

Matter, Magic, and Spirit Rolland Murray, David Murray, 2007-01-05 In Our Living Manhood Rolland Murray examines how James Baldwin John Edgar Wideman Clarence Major John Oliver Killens and other writers challenged the Black Power movement's political commitment to masculinity in the 1960s Estranging the Novel Katarzyna Bartoszyńska, 2021-08-03 To develop a theory of world literature this book demands that the theory of the novel can no longer ignore literary forms other than realism Winner of the Donald Murphy Prize for a Distinguished First Book by the American Conference on Irish Studies and the Wacław Lednicki Award in the Humanities by the Polish Institute of Arts and Sciences of America For centuries the standard account of the development of the novel focused on the rise of realism in English literature Studies of early novels connected the form to various aspects of British life across the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries including the burgeoning middle class the growth of individualism and the emergence of democracy and the nation state But as the push for teaching and learning global literature grows this narrative is insufficient for studying novel forms outside of a predominately English speaking British and American realm In Estranging the Novel Katarzyna Bartoszyńska explores how the emergence and growth of world literature studies has challenged the centrality of British fiction to theories of the novel's rise She argues that a historicist approach frequently reinforces the realist paradigm that has cast other traditions as minor conceding a normative vision of the novel as it seeks to explain why historical forces produced different forms elsewhere Recasting the standard narrative by looking at different novelistic literary forms including the Gothic travel writing and queer fiction Bartoszyńska offers a compelling comparative study of Polish and Irish works published across the long nineteenth century that emphasize fictionality or the problem of world building in literature Reading works by Ignacy Krasicki Jan Potocki Narcyza Michowska and Witold Gombrowicz alongside others by Jonathan Swift Charles Maturin Oscar Wilde and Samuel Beckett Bartoszyńska shows that the history of the novel's rise demands a more capacious and rigorous approach to form as well as a reconceptualization of the relationship between fiction and its cultural contexts By modeling such a heterogeneous account of the novel form Estranging the Novel paves the way for a bracing and diverse understanding of the makeup of contemporary world literature and the many texts it encompasses and a new perspective on the British novel as well Style is Matter Leland De la Durantaye, 2007 How should we read Lolita The beginning of an answer is that we should read it the way all great works deserve to be read with attention and intelligence But what sort of attention should we pay and what sort of intelligence should we apply to a work of art that recounts so much love so much loss so much thoughtlessness and across which flashes something we might be tempted to call evil To begin with we should read with the attention and intelligence we call empathy A point on which all readers can agree is that great literature offers us a lesson in empathy it encourages us to feel with the strange and the familiar the strong and the weak the vulgar and the cultivated the young and the old the lover and the beloved It urges us to see our own fates as connected to those of others to link the starry sky we see above us with whatever moral laws we might sense within from Style is Matter Some of my characters are no doubt pretty beastly but I really don't care they are outside my inner self like the mournful monsters of a cathedral facade demons placed there merely to show that they have been booted out Vladimir Nabokov Strong Opinions With this quote Leland de la Durantaye launches his elegant and incisive exploration of the ethics of art in the fiction of Vladimir Nabokov Focusing on Lolita but also addressing other major works especially Invitation of a Beulah and Pale Fire the author asks whether the work of this writer whom many find cruel contains a moral message and if so why that message is so artfully concealed Style is Matter places Nabokov's work once and for all into dialogue with some of the most basic issues concerning the ethics of writing and of reading itself De la Durantaye argues that Humbert's narrative confession artfully seduces the reader into complicity with his dark fantasies and even darker acts until the very end where he expresses his bitter regret for what he has done In this sense Lolita becomes a study in the danger of art the artist's responsibility to the real world and the perils and pitfalls of reading itself In addition to Nabokov's fictions de la Durantaye also draws on his nonfiction writings to explore Nabokov's belief that all genuine art is deceptive as is nature itself Through de la Durantaye's deft and compelling writing we see that Nabokov learned valuable lessons in mimicry and camouflage from the intricate patterns of the butterflies he adored
