Causatives and Causation Jae Jung Song, 2014-06-11 Causatives and Causation is the first comprehensive study of causative constructions found in the world's languages. This important new research based on a data base of more than 600 languages not only investigates fully the richness and variety of causative types but also presents an alternative perspective to the traditional typological approach. The new typology enables a better understanding of how the human mind cognizes causation and how this is reflected in language. Causatives and Causation is also an important attempt to integrate language typology with diachrony by constructing a diachronic model of causative affixes on the basis of this new typology. Drawing on the theoretical insight of Role and Reference Grammar, this book provides a case study of the causative constructions in Korean providing additional support for both the proposed new typology and the diachronic model. It also examines the pragmatic foundations of causatives, an important but previously unexplored area of study.

The Languages of the Soviet Union Bernard Comrie, 1981-06-04 A general account of the languages of the Soviet Union, one of the most diverse multinational and multilingual states in the world as well as one of the most important. There are some 130 languages spoken in the USSR belonging to five main families and ranging from Russian which is the first language of about 130 000 000 people to Aluet spoken only by 96 in the 1970 census. Dr Comrie has two general aims. First he presents the most important structural features of these languages: their genetic relationships and classification and their distinctive typological features. Secondly he examines the social and political background to the use of functioning of the various languages in a multilingual state. The volume will be of importance and interest to linguists and to those with a broader professional interest in the Soviet Union.

Typological Studies

Guglielmo Cinque, 2014-02-04 In this book Cinque takes a generative perspective on typological questions relating to word order and to the syntax of relative clauses. In particular Cinque looks at the position of the Head vis vis the relative clause in relation to the position of the verb vis vis his object, a general cross linguistic analysis of correlatives, the need to distinguish a sentence grammar from a discourse grammar, type of non restrictives with languages differing as to whether they possess both one the other or neither, a selective type of extraction from relative clauses and a tentative sketch of a more ample work in progress on a unified analysis of externally headed, internally headed and headless relative clauses.
