Negotiating Culture and Human Rights Lynda Schaefer Bell, 2001 Rights Lucinda Joy Peach The Culturalization of Human Rights Law Federico Lenzerini, 2014-02-06 The idea of multi culturalism has had a significant impact across many areas of law This book explores how it has shaped the recent development of international human rights law Custodians of human rights especially international monitoring bodies try to advance the effectiveness of human rights standards by interpreting these standards according to a method strongly inspired by the idea of cultural relativism By using elements of cultural identity and cultural diversity as parameters for the interpretation adjudication and enforcement of such standards human rights are evolving from the traditional universal idea to a multi cultural one whereby rights are interpreted in a dynamic manner which respond to the particular needs of the communities and individuals directly concerned This book shows how this is epitomized by the rise of collective rights which is intertwined with the evolution of the rights of minorities and indigenous peoples in contrast with the traditional vision of human rights as inherently individual It demonstrates how the process of culturalization of human rights law can be shown through different methods the most common being the recourse to the doctrine of the margin of appreciation left to states in defining the content of human rights standards extensively used by human rights bodies such as the European Court of Human Rights Secondly different meanings can be attributed to the same human rights standards by adapting them to the cultural needs of the persons and especially communities specifically concerned This method is particularly used by the Inter American Court of Human Rights and the African Commission of Human and Peoples Rights The book concludes that the evolution of human rights law towards multi cultural relativism is not only maximizes the effectiveness of human rights standards but is also necessary to improve the quality of communal life and to promote the stability of inter cultural relationships However to an extent notions of universalism remain necessary to defend the very idea of human dignity

Nathan, Kavita Philip, 2015-06-01 Both human rights and globalization are powerful ideas and processes capable of transforming the world in profound ways Notwithstanding their universal claims however the processes are constructed and they draw their power from the specific cultural and political contexts in which they are constructed Far from bringing about a harmonious cosmopolitan order they have stimulated conflict and opposition In the context of globalization as the idea of human rights has become universal its meaning has become one more terrain of struggle among groups with their own interests and goals Part I of this volume looks at political and cultural struggles to control the human rights regime that is the power to construct the universal claims that will prevail in a territory with respect to property the state the environment and women Part II examines the dynamics and counterdynamics of transnational networks in their interactions with local actors in Iran China and Hong Kong Part III looks at the prospects for fruitful human rights dialogue between competing universalisms that by definition are intolerant of contradiction and averse to compromise
