Obsidian M. Steven Shackley, 2005-09 Obsidian was long valued by ancient peoples as a raw material for producing stone tools and archaeologists have increasingly come to view obsidian studies as a crucial aid in understanding the past Steven Shackley now shows how the geochemical and contextual analyses of archaeological obsidian can be applied to the interpretation of social and economic organization in the ancient Southwest This book the capstone of decades of investigation integrates a wealth of obsidian research in one volume It covers advances in analytical chemistry and field petrology that have enhanced our understanding of obsidian source heterogeneity presents the most recent data on and interpretations of archaeological obsidian sources in the Southwest and explores the ethnohistorical and contemporary background for obsidian use in indigenous societies Shackley provides a thorough examination of the geological origin of obsidian in the region and the methods used to collect raw material and determine its chemical composition and descriptions of obsidian sources throughout the Southwest He then describes the occurrence of obsidian artifacts and shows how their geochemical fingerprints allow archaeologists to make conclusions regarding the procurement of obsidian The book presents three groundbreaking applications of obsidian source studies It first discusses an application to early Preceramic groups showing how obsidian sources can reflect the range they inhabited over time as well as their social relationships during the Archaic period It then offers an examination of the Late Classic Salado in Arizona's Tonto Basin where obsidian data along with ceramic and architectural evidence suggest that Mogollon migrants lived in economic and social harmony with the Hohokam all the while maintaining relationships with their homeland Finally it provides an intensive look at social identity and gender differences in the Preclassic Hohokam of central Arizona where obsidian source provenance and projectile point styles suggest that male Hohokam sought to create a stylistically defined identity in at least three areas of the Hohokam core area These male sodalities were organized quite differently from female ceramic production groups Today obsidian research in the American Southwest enjoys an equal standing with ceramic faunal and floral studies as a method of revealing social process and change in prehistory Shackley's book discusses the ways in which archaeologists should approach obsidian research no matter what the region offering a thorough survey of archaeological obsidian studies that will have methodological and theoretical applications worldwide The volume includes an extensive glossary created specifically for archaeologists

A Consumer's Guide to Archaeological Science Mary E. Malainey,2010-09-28 Many archaeologists as primarily social scientists do not have a background in the natural sciences This can pose a problem because they need to obtain chemical and physical analyses on samples to perform their research This manual is an essential source of information for those students without a background in science but also a comprehensive overview that those with some understanding of archaeological science will find useful The manual provides readers with the knowledge to use archaeological science methods to the best advantage It describes and explains the analytical techniques in a manner that the average archaeologist can understand and outlines clearly the requirements benefits and limitations of each possible method of analysis so that the researcher can make informed choices The work includes specific information about a variety of dating techniques provenance studies isotope analysis as well as the analysis of organic lipid and protein residues and ancient DNA Case studies illustrating applications of these approaches to most types of archaeological materials are presented and the instruments used to perform the analyses are described Available destructive and non destructive approaches are presented to help archaeologists select the most effective technique for gaining the target information from the sample Readers will reach for this manual whenever they need to decide how to best analyze a sample and how the analysis is performed Obsidian and Ancient Manufactured Glasses

Archaeological Variability and Interpretation in Global Perspective Alan P. Sullivan, Deborah Irene Olszewski, 2016-12-01 In Archaeological Variability and Interpretation in Global Perspective contributors illustrate the virtues of various ecological experimental statistical typological technological and cognitive social approaches for understanding the origins formation histories and inferential potential of a wide range of archaeological phenomena As archaeologists worldwide create theoretically inspired and methodologically robust narratives of the cultural past their research pivots on the principle that determining the origins and histories of archaeological phenomena is essential in understanding their relevance for a variety of anthropological problems The chapters explore how the analysis of artifact assemblage and site distributions at different spatial and temporal scales provides new insights into how mobility strategies affect lithic assemblage composition what causes unstable interaction patterns in complex societies and which factors promote a sense of place in landscapes of abandoned structures In addition several chapters illustrate how new theoretical approaches and innovative methods promote reinterpretations of the regional significance of historically important archaeological sites such as Myrtos Pyrgos Crete Greece Aztalan Wisconsin USA Tabun Cave Israel and Casas Grandes Chihuahua Mexico The studies presented in Archaeological Variability and Interpretation in Global Perspective challenge orthodoxy raise research worthy controversies and develop strong inferences about the diverse evolutionary pathways of humankind using theoretical perspectives that consider both new information and preexisting archaeological data Contributors C Michael Barton Brian F Byrd Gerald Cadogan Philip G Chase Harold L Dibble Matthew J Douglass Patricia C Fanning Lynne Goldstein Simon J Holdaway Kathryn A Kamp Sam Lin Emilia Oddo Zeljko Rezek Julien Riel Salvatore Gary O Rollefson Jeffrey Rosenthal Barbara J Roth Sissel Schroeder Justin I Shiner John C Whittaker David R Wilcox New Mexico and the Pimería Alta John G. Kuhn, 2020-09-14 The Evolution of Paleolithic Technologies provides a novel perspective on long term trajectories of evolutionary change in Paleolithic tools and tool makers Members of the human lineage have been producing stone tools for more than 3 million years These artefacts provide key evidence for important evolutionary developments in hominin behaviour and cognition Avoiding conventional approaches based on progressive stages of development this book instead examines global trends in six separate dimensions of technological behaviour between 2.6 million and 10 000 years ago. Combining these independent trends results in both a broader and a more finely punctuated perspective on key intervals of change in hominin behaviour. To draw this picture together the concluding section explores behavioural, cognitive and demographic implications of developments in material culture and technological procedures at seven key intervals during the Pleistocene. Researchers interested in Paleolithic archaeology will find this book invaluable. It will also be of interest to archaeologists researching stone tool technology and to students of human evolution and behavioural change in prehistory. Ancient Turkey Antonio Sagona, Paul Zimansky, 2015-02-24. Students of antiquity often see ancient Turkey as a bewildering array of cultural complexes. Ancient Turkey brings together in a coherent account the diverse and often fragmented evidence both archaeological and textual that forms the basis of our knowledge of the development of Anatolia from the earliest arrivals to the end of the Iron Age. Much new material has recently been excavated and unlike Greece, Mesopotamia and its other neighbours, Turkey has been poorly served in terms of comprehensive up to date and accessible discussions of its ancient past. Ancient Turkey is a much needed resource for students and scholars providing an up to date account of the widespread and extensive archaeological activity in Turkey. Covering the entire span before the Classical period, fully illustrated with over 160 images and written in lively prose, this text will be enjoyed by anyone interested in the archaeology and early history of Turkey and the ancient Near East. Households on the Mimbres Horizon Barbara J. Roth, 2023-03-28. Pithouse sites represent the basic form of occupation in the Mimbres-Mogollon region of southwestern New Mexico from AD 200 to the late 900s. This study presents the results of excavations of one such site called La Gila Encantada. Little is known about the variability present at pithouse sites away from the major Mimbres and Gila River Valleys. Nonriverine occupations have been understudied until now. This book describes subsistence and settlement practices and compares the results with recent research conducted at the larger villages in the Mimbres River Valley. Despite basic similarities in material culture, households at La Gila Encantada appear to have followed different trajectories than those along the rivers. Examining these differences, archaeologist Barbara J. Roth provides insights into some of the reasons why they existed and shows that the variability present in pithouse occupations over the years was tied to multiple factors including environmental differences, economic practices and the social composition of groups occupying the sites. With chapters assessing ceramic data, chipped and groundstone analysis, shell and mineral jewelry and regional context, this look at the past offers relevant insights into current issues in Southwest archaeology including identity, interaction and household organization. Engaging Archaeology Stephen W. Silliman, 2018-01-26. Bringing together 25 case studies from archaeological projects worldwide, Engaging Archaeology candidly explores personal experiences, successes, challenges and even frustrations from established and senior archaeologists who share invaluable practical advice for students and early career professionals engaged in planning and carrying out their own archaeological research. With engaging chapters such as How Not to Write a PhD Thesis on Neolithic Italy and Accidentally Digging Central America's Earliest Village readers are transported to the desks, digs and data labs of the authors learning the skills, tricks of the trade and potential pit falls of archaeological fieldwork and collections research. Case studies collectively span many regions, time periods, issues, methods and materials. From the pre-Columbian Andes to Viking Age Iceland, North America to the Middle East, Medieval Ireland to remote north Australia and Europe to Africa and India, Engaging Archaeology is packed with rich first-hand source material. Unique and thoughtful Stephen W. Silliman's guide is an essential course book for early stage researchers, advanced undergraduates and new graduate students as well as those teaching and mentoring. It will also be insightful and enjoyable reading for veteran archaeologists.

Trade and Exchange Carolyn D. Dillian, Carolyn L. White, 2009-12-05 Long before the advent of the global economy, foreign goods were transported, traded and exchanged through myriad means over short and long distances. Archaeological tools for identifying foreign objects such as provenance studies, stylistic analyses and economic documentary sources reveal non-local materials in historic and prehistoric assemblages. Trade and exchange represent more than mere production and consumption. Exchange of goods also led to an exchange of cultural and social experiences. Discoveries of the sources of alien objects surpass archaeological expectations of exchange and geographic distance, revealing important technological advances. With thirteen case studies from around the world, this comprehensive work provides a fresh perspective on material culture studies. Evidence of ongoing negotiation between individuals, villages and nations provides insight into the impact of trade on the micro, meso and macro level. Covering a wide array of time periods and areas, this work will be of interest to archaeologists, anthropologists and anyone working in cultural studies.

The Pueblo Bonito Mounds of Chaco Canyon Patricia L. Crown, 2016-04-15 Archaeologists use the artifacts and fauna they found to examine the lives and activities of the inhabitants of Pueblo Bonito as well as to further interpret current models of Chaco archaeology.

Routes and Roads in Anatolia from Prehistory to Seljuk Times Lutgarde Van deput, Stephen Mitchell, 2025-08-05 Turkey has always been a crossroads and therefore offers an ideal location to study interaction between individuals and human communities and societies through time. Interaction has always necessarily involved movement which in turn did not occur randomly in the landscape but was instead focused on routes and roads that secured faster and easier connections. There is substantial evidence that exchange networks already existed in Anatolia at least since the Neolithic period with goods traveling over long distances. From the second millennium BC onwards, textual evidence has improved understanding of traveling routes. The Roman long-distance road network has been a focus of research over decades but local roads and pathways around individual sites are still mostly unknown. Byzantine roads have also received attention whereas the Seljuk road and routes system is less well known. It is likely that the younger roads and routes are overlying older ones at least partially but these palimpsests of older roads are hardly researched. In this volume, experts from different disciplines using a variety of methods and approaches aim to transcend the present fragmentation of knowledge and create a new level of understanding of connecting road and route systems in Anatolia throughout time for the first time
