Forensic Anthropology C. Clifford Boyd, Jr., Donna C. Boyd, 2017-12-12 Provides comprehensive coverage of everything that students and practitioners need to know about working in the field of forensic anthropology Forensic anthropology has been plagued by questions of scientific validity and rigor despite its acceptance as a section in the American Academy of Forensic Sciences nearly half a century ago Critics have viewed it as a laboratory based applied subfield of biological anthropology and characterised it as emphasising methodology over theory This book shows that these views are not only antiquated but inadequate and inaccurate Forensic Anthropology Theoretical Framework and Scientific Basis introduces readers to all of the theoretical and scientific foundations of forensic anthropology beginning with how it was influenced by the early theoretical approaches of Tyler Morgan Spencer and Darwin It instructs on how modern forensic science relies on an interdisciplinary approach with research being conducted in the fields of archaeology physics geology and other disciplines This modern approach to theory in forensic anthropology is presented through the introduction and discussion of Foundational Interpretive and Methodological theories Sections cover Bias and Objectivity in Forensic Anthropology Theory and Practice The Theory and Science Behind Biological Profile and Personal Identification Scientific Foundation for Interpretations of Antemortem Perimortem and Postmortem Processes and Interdisciplinary Influences Legal Ramifications and Future Directions Illustrates important aspects of the theory building process and reflects methods for strengthening the scientific framework of forensic anthropology as a discipline Inspired by the Application of Theory to Forensic Anthropology symposium presented at the 67th annual meeting of the American Academy of Forensic Sciences Chapters written by experts in the field who were presenters at the symposium Forensic Anthropology Theoretical Framework and Scientific Basis is ideal for university courses in anthropological science forensic science criminal science and forensic archaeology

Side-by-Side Survey Susan Alcock, John Cherry, 2016-10-02 Twenty years ago John Cherry looked forward to the day when archaeological survey projects working around the Mediterranean region the Frogs round the pond would begin to compare and synthesize the information they had collected He anticipated researchers tackling big questions of interregional scope in new and interesting ways working at a geographical scale considerably larger than that of the individual survey Was his optimism misplaced Despite the extraordinary growth of interest in field survey projects and regional analysis and despite the developments in survey methodology that have been discussed and implemented in the past two decades few scholars have attempted to use survey data in a comparative mode and to answer the broad scale questions confronting social historians In this volume which is the outcome of an advanced Workshop held at the University of Michigan in 2002 a number of prominent archaeologists return to the question of comparability They discuss the potential benefits of working in a comparative format with evidence from many different Mediterranean survey projects and consider the practical problems that present roadblocks to achieving that objective From mapping and manuring to human settlement and demography environment and culture each addresses different questions often with quite different approaches together they offer a range of perspectives on how to put surveys side by side Contributors include Susan E Alcock John Cherry Jack L Davis Peter Attema Martijn van Leusen James C Wright Robin Osborne David Mattingly T J Wilkinson and Richard E Blanton
