Reconstruction Of Thinking:

Reconstruction of Thinking Robert Cummings Neville, 1981-06-30 The Renaissance development of science fulfilled the ancient ideal of integrating quantitative and qualitative thinking but failed to recognize valuational thinking and thus deprived moral aesthetic and political thought of cognitive status The task of this book is to reconstruct the concept of thinking in order to exhibit valuation not reason as the foundation for thinking and to integrate valuational with quantitative and qualitative modes Part I explains the broad thesis interpreting the problem of the foundations for thinking and providing a general theory of value Part II explains the role of valuation at the imaginative level of thinking with discussions of synthesis perception form and art The method of reconstruction requires a cosmology that is generated in successive waves

The Making of American Liberal Theology Gary J. Dorrien, 2006-01-01 In this first of three volumes Dorrien identifies the indigenous roots of American liberal theology and demonstrates a wider longer running tradition than has been thought The tradition took shape in the nineteenth century motivated by a desire to map a modernist third way between orthodoxy and rationalistic deism atheism It is defined by its openness to modern intellectual inquiry its commitment to the authority of individual reason and experience its conception of Christianity as an ethical way of life and its commitment to make Christianity credible and socially relevant to modern people Dorrien takes a narrative approach and provides a biographical reading of important religious thinkers of the time including William E Channing Ralph Waldo Emerson Horace Bushnell Henry Ward Beecher Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Charles Briggs Dorrien notes that although liberal theology moved into elite academic institutions its conceptual foundations were laid in the pulpit rather than the classroom

The Rural Modern Kate Merkel-Hess, 2016-08-17 The Rural Modern by historian Kate Merkel Hess is the first book to discuss the importance of rural China in the nation s efforts to define itself as modern in the twentieth century Discussions of modernization efforts in twentieth century China have usually focused on modernity s manifestations from ironworks to banking to dancehalls in China s cities As a result the Communist peasant revolution appears to be a historical break But Merkel Hess shows that the countryside was crucial for reformers in Republican China much before the peasant revolution of the communist period. Reformers hoped that once the rural masses were educated enough to realize how China had been taken advantage of by imperial powers they would act to repel foreign intervention. The Rural Reconstruction Movement's agenda was not a partisan plan for revitalization but rather a fundamentally Chinese one: a reconfiguration of traditional ways of engaging the countryside. In international Shanghai, modernity usually signaled what was foreign and new, but as Merkel Hess argues, it was the rural modern that captured the Chinese people's desire for a modernity rooted in Chinese tradition, and rural reform thus became crucial to China's self-definition. The book sheds much needed light on the tensions between foreign and traditional Chinese urban and rural tradition and reconstruction that roiled the Chinese intellectual world in the early twentieth century: tensions that informed people's actions and social relations, government policies, and subsequent efforts to create a modern nation during the communist period.

Essays in Philosophy and Its History Wilfrid Sellars, 2012-12-06. In pulling these essays together for inclusion in one volume, I do not believe that I have done them violence. Since they originally appeared at different times and places, they constitute a scattered object. Nevertheless, to the author's eye, they have unities of theme and development which, if they fail to give them the true identity of the book, may adapt a metaphor from Hume: generate those smooth and easy transitions of the imagination which arouse dispositions appropriate to surveying such identical objects. For the juxtaposition of historical and systematic studies, I make no apology. It has been suggested, with a friendly touch of malice, that if Science and Metaphysics consists, as its subtitle proclaims, of Variations on Kantian Themes, it would be no less accurate to subtitle my historical essays variations on Sellarsian themes. But this is as it should be. Philosophy is a continuing dialogue with one's contemporaries, living and dead, and if one fails to see oneself in one's respondent, and one's respondent in oneself, there is confrontation but no dialogue. The historian, as Collingwood points out, becomes Caesar's contemporary by learning to think Caesar's thoughts. And it is because Plato thought so many of our thoughts that he is our contemporary and companion.

How Does God Talk to Us? Frank Hofmann, 2021-12-17. How does God talk to us? The image of the speaking God offers a profound insight into the nature of communication. The idea of the God's Word runs like a red thread through the entire Bible. Few theologians, however, have interpreted the concept Word of God as a linguistic phenomenon, but Augustine, Luther, and Barth are among those who have. What sets this study apart from others is its emphasis on the aspects of semiotics, Augustine semantics, Luther and pragmatics. Barth Hofmann then places these three theologians in the context of the linguistic analytical philosophy of Ludwig Wittgenstein, Ian Ramsey, and John L. Austin. This work carries forward the dialogue between theology and modern philosophy of language while at the same time opening up the Word of God for human reality. It also touches on the fields of the doctrine of God and Christology, attempting nothing less than a comprehensive language theory of the Word of God.
