Conservation for Historic House Museums Jane Merritt, Julie A. Reilly, 2010-01-16 Preventive Conservation for Historic House Museums is a primer on the preventive care practices that these unique sites need to slow the rate of deterioration and prevent damage and wear to the property and its collections. It proposes a collaborative approach to preservation planning that is based on interdisciplinary research, critical thinking and observation rather than rote maintenance schedules and everyday residential cleaning practices. The authors recommend that sites have documents and plans in place that direct the intellectual and physical control of the collections and site. The intellectual controls include administrative and management policies and procedures; the physical controls include security and safety precautions, routine maintenance and cleaning practices among others. Historic house administrators, staff, board members and volunteers will find this volume indispensable. Professionals who deal with historic sites from the museum administrator or curator to architect to engineer as well as students pursuing studies in the field of preservation and conservation will also find this a valuable reference. This volume promotes a pro active approach to preservation planning for historic sites and their collections. Spaces that Tell Stories Donna R. Braden, 2019-07-12 Historical environments delight visitors because of their ability to make them feel transported to another time and place. These environments found in both museum exhibitions and historic structures are usually rich with objects that hint at deeper stories and context. But these spaces often lack rigor in terms of historical and interpretive methodology along with a thoughtful and purposeful integration of storytelling principles. Spaces That Tell Stories: Creating Historical Environments offers a fresh look at historical environments providing a roadmap for applying this rigor and integrating these principles into the creation of such environments. It begins by delving into the power of these environments for museum visitors drawing upon multiple cross disciplinary fields. An in depth how to methodology follows which begins with the steps of framing the project by aligning it with institutional goals, defining audiences, involving visitor studies and inviting community engagement. It continues through the steps of researching, creating, interpreting, refining and evaluating the impact of the environment. The author's methodology is applicable to environments in both historic structures and museum exhibits from different eras, places and topics. It is also scalable to museums varying sizes and budgets. To give a sense of how the methodology laid out in this book translates into real world practice, detailed case studies appear throughout along with practical tips, checklists, charts, descriptive photographs and source lists. An extensive bibliography follows. Spaces That Tell Stories: Creating Historical Environments is a unique contribution to the museum field. It is a must read for museum professionals installing or upgrading historic environments while the methodology and case studies also offer practical strategies for other museum professionals working with collections, exhibitions and interpretation and how these are integrated. Thoughtful insights into museum practice for students and a helpful toolkit for local historians.

Afro-Americans in Antebellum Boston Carol Buchalter Stapp, 2019-01-15 First published in 1993 The probate records of antebellum black Bostonians offer an ideal opportunity to compare the literature to a primary source both in terms of content and method Critical reviews of the scholarship first on black social history and then on probate inventories as historic sources precede an examination of the probate records themselves and a comparison of the literature to probate records The study concludes by indicating that the shortcomings of probate records arise from their leaving much mysterious or misunderstood without recourse to other sources while their strengths reside in their intimate and subtle suggestions for understanding a purportedly inarticulate population

Stories from Home Margaret Ponsonby, 2016-04-01 Most homes in the past were not elite wealthy interiors complete with high fashion furnishings designed by well known architects and designers as many domestic histories often seem to have assumed As this book makes clear there were in fact an enormous variety of house interiors in England during the period 1750 1850 reflecting the location status and gender of particular householders as well as their changing attitudes tastes and aspirations By focusing on non metropolitan homes which represented the majority of households in England this study highlights the need for historians to look beyond prevailing attitudes that often reduce interiors to generic descriptions based on high fashions of the decorative arts. Instead, it shows how numerous social and cultural influences affected the manner in which homes were furnished and decorated. Issues such as the availability of goods, gender, regional taste, income, the second hand market, changing notions of privacy and household hierarchies, and print culture could all have a significant impact on domestic furnishing. The study ends with a discussion of how domestic interiors of historic properties have been presented and displayed in modern times, highlighting how competing notions of the past can cloud as well as illuminate the issue. Combining cultural history and qualitative analysis of evidence, this book presents a new way of looking at ordinary and provincial homes that enriches our understanding of English domestic life of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries.

Making the American Home Marilyn Ferris Motz, Pat Browne, 1988. The transformation of a house into a home has been in our culture a traditional task of women. The articles examine this process as they reflected the role of American middle class women as homemakers in the years 1840-1940.

Houses and Homes Barbara Howe, 1997. This volume in the Nearby History series helps the reader document the history of a home. The reader will learn to examine written records, oral testimonies, visual sources, and the house's surroundings. The author covers American housing patterns, the individual characteristics of houses in different regions, construction techniques and materials, household technology, and family life styles. Houses and Homes is Volume 2 in The Nearby History Series.

Think Like a Curator Donna R. Braden, 2025-04-01. Most history museums, large and small, indoor and outdoor, have a staff member with the title of curator or at minimum have tasks that can be classified as curator's work. But understanding what is involved in doing this work is more complicated than it seems. This book will help you to think like a curator. Written by an author who has spent 45 years doing this type of work at one of the largest history museums in the country, this book guides the reader through curatorial methodology in today's world with topics that include reading objects, shaping collections, engaging in rigorous research, the curatorial role in exhibitions, and historic site interpretation, the basics of curatorial writing, and curators as leaders. It gives special focus to applying DEI lenses as well as aligning with institutional mission and goals, incorporating audience perspectives, and using conceptual and systems thinking. Both succinct and substantial, this book includes easy explanations, step by step process guides, practical tips, real life examples, activities, and source lists.
