The Return of the Native, 2005-02-10 To be loved to madness such was her great desire Eustacia Vye criss crosses the wild Egdon Heath eager to experience life to the full in her quest for music poetry passion war She marries Clym Yeobright native of the heath but his idealism frustrates her romantic ambitions and her discontent draws others into a tangled web of deceit and unhappiness Early readers responded to Hardy's insatiably observant descriptions of the heath a setting that for D H Lawrence provided the real stuff of tragedy For modern readers the tension between the mythic setting of the heath and the modernity of the characters challenges our freedom to shape the world as we wish like Eustacia we may not always be able to live our dreams This edition has a critically established text based on the manuscript and first edition and without the later changes that substantially altered Hardy's original intentions Thomas Hardy and Empire Jane L.

Bownas, 2016-02-24 Unlike many of his contemporaries Thomas Hardy is not generally recognized as an imperial writer even though he wrote during a period of major expansion of the British Empire and in spite of the many allusions to the Roman Empire and Napoleonic Wars in his writing Jane L Bownas examines the context of these references proposing that Hardy was a writer who not only posed a challenge to the whole of established society but one whose writings bring into question the very notion of empire Bownas argues that Hardy takes up ideas of the primitive and civilized that were central to Western thought in the nineteenth century contesting this opposition and highlighting the effect outsiders have on so called primitive communities In her discussion of the oppressions of imperialism she analyzes the debate surrounding the use of gender as an articulated category together with race and class and shows how in exposing the power structures operating within Britain Hardy produces a critique of all forms of ideological oppression Thomas Hardy Lance St. John Butler, 1978
