Documents on the Law of UN Peace Operations Bruce Oswald, Helen Durham, Adrian Bates, 2010-03-25 United Nations peacekeepers currently play a crucial role in international responses to threats to peace and security across the globe. Since 1948 the UN has been involved in over 60 peacekeeping operations. However in the current environment of complex and rapidly changing threats to peace there has been a dramatic increase in the use of UN peacekeepers to deal with situations of instability. In 2009 alone over 100 000 individuals are deployed on such missions. This situation has resulted in a range of new and pressing challenges to the legal framework applicable during such collective international action. This book provides for the first time a comprehensive account of the legal framework regulating this area of collective international action. The book contains key documents in the areas of privileges and immunities, human rights law, international humanitarian law and international criminal law. Types of documents featured include foundational treaties, international rules and regulations, memoranda, judgments of the International Court of Justice and some mission specific documents. Before each document a prefatory note is included outlining the historical development of the document as well as its relevance to UN peace operations. To further assist scholars and practitioners in their work the work concludes with a guide on undertaking further legal research on the laws relevant to peace operations, a list of all UN peace operations and relevant enabling resolutions and a suggested approach to interpreting Security Council mandates. From scholars and students to policy makers, representatives in the military, police and humanitarian organisations, this book will be an invaluable resource in the development of a better understanding of the legal framework surrounding the establishment, management and conduct of peace operations that are mandated and controlled by the UN.
