Cruising Utopia José Esteban Muñoz, 2009-11-01 The LGBT agenda for too long has been dominated by pragmatic issues like same sex marriage and gays in the military It has been stifled by this myopic focus on the present which is short sighted and assimilationist Cruising Utopia seeks to break the present stagnancy by cruising ahead Drawing on the work of Ernst Bloch Jos Esteban Mu oz recalls the queer past for guidance in presaging its future He considers the work of seminal artists and writers such as Andy Warhol LeRoi Jones Frank O Hara Ray Johnson Fred Herko Samuel Delany and Elizabeth Bishop alongside contemporary performance and visual artists like Dynasty Handbag My Barbarian Luke Dowd Tony Just and Kevin McCarty in order to decipher the anticipatory illumination of art and its uncanny ability to open windows to the future In a startling repudiation of what the LGBT movement has held dear Mu oz contends that queerness is instead a futurity bound phenomenon a not yet here that critically engages pragmatic presentism Part manifesto part love letter to the past and the future Cruising Utopia argues that the here and now are not enough and issues an urgent call for the revivification of the queer political imagination

Rethinking Utopia David M. Bell, 2017-01-20 Over five hundred years since it was named utopia remains a vital concept for understanding and challenging the world s we inhabit even in or rather because of the condition of post utopianism that supposedly permeates them In Rethinking Utopia David M Bell offers a diagnosis of the present through the lens of utopia and then by rethinking the concept through engagement with utopian studies a variety of radical theories and the need for decolonizing praxis shows how utopianism might work within against and beyond that which exists in order to provide us with hope for a better future He proposes paying a subversive fidelity to utopia in which its three constituent terms good eu place topos and no ou are rethought to assert the importance of immanent affective relations The volume engages with a variety of practices and forms to articulate such a utopianism including popular education critical pedagogy musical improvisation and utopian literature The problems as well as the possibilities of this utopianism are explored although the problems are often revealed to be possibilities provided they are subject to material challenge Rethinking Utopia offers a way of thinking about and perhaps realising utopia that helps overcome some of the binary oppositions structuring much thinking about the topic It allows utopia to be thought in terms of place and process affirmation and negation and the real and the not yet It engages with the spatial and affective turns in the social sciences without ever uncritically being subsumed by them and seeks to make connections to indigenous cosmologies It is a cautious careful critical work punctuated by both pessimism and hope and a refusal to accept the finality of this or any world
