the type of local order that a leading state prefers and the type of local power shift that appears to be taking place The first captures a leading state's main interest in a peripheral region and serves as the baseline for its evaluation of any changes in the status quo Would the leading state like to see a balance of power rather than a preponderance of power does it favor primacy over parity instead or is it impartial between these alternatives The second indicates how a local power shift is likely to unfold In particular which regional order is an emerging power trying to create and does a leading state expect it to succeed Montgomery tests his arguments by analyzing Great Britain's efforts to manage the rise of Egypt the Confederacy and Japan during the nineteenth century and the United States efforts to manage the emergence of India and Iraq during the twentieth century
